FINNISH CABINET TO RESIGN

Moscow Pressure To Be Ignored

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"
HELSINGFORS, March 19 (UP).—Premier Rytty's Cabinet will resign to-morrow as a matter of form after the peace ratifications have been exchanged with Russia.

The measure is being openly discussed in the press and it is not expected that the new Cabinet will eliminate the policies followed by Mr. Tanner as Foreign Minister, and that pressure from Moscow will be ignored.

Delegation in Moscow
MOSCOW, March 19 (UP).—The Finnish delegation headed by M. Paasilinna arrived here at 5.12 p.m. to-day.

NO PEACE BASIS

Despondency Follows
Welles' Visit

WASHINGTON, March 19 (UP).—Mr. Stephen Early, Secretary to the White House, to-day said official advices from Europe make the peace headlines seem empty.

"On the basis of all authoritative reports received and carefully read and analysed by President Roosevelt, there seems no basis in fact for the reports published, neither do they give an authoritative basis for peace."

Welles' Work Finished
ROME, March 19 (UP).—Mr. Sumner Welles, following a luncheon with Count Ciano to-day, announced the official conclusion of his talks with European statesmen and leaders.

He leaves Rome for Genoa at 11 o'clock to-night and will arrive at 6.30 a.m. to-morrow when he boards the Conte di Savoia which sails for New York at noon.

Meanwhile, Signor Virginio Gayda, writing in the Giornale d'Italia to-day says: "The Bruner Pass talks have two well-defined aims: firstly, the construction of a better Europe based on the equality of rights; secondly, the protection of Italian interests in this new Europe alongside the safeguarding of German interests."

"It is absurd and grotesque for the democracies to continue to attribute to Mussolini the role of European peacemaker."

Peace Plan Discounted
WASHINGTON, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—The reports of the German 11-point peace plan are discounted by Mr. Stephen Early, President Roosevelt's private secretary, who told reporters that no information had been transmitted to the United States Government to support the published reports of such a plan.

On the basis of authoritative reports received by the United States Government, the "peace headlines" would appear to be very empty, he said.

Mr. Early added that President Roosevelt had carefully read and analysed all reports received.

Purely Propaganda
LONDON, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—Commenting on the well-publicised 11 point peace plan, a diplomatic observer here says that whether true or false they do represent the kind of peace which could be expected from the Nazis.

For propaganda purposes there is a reference to disarmament and liberty of trade.

There is a sop for Italy in the clauses about Djibouti and the Suez Canal and a sop for Britain in the clause saying that 20 years should be allowed for the solution of the colonial problem.

Beyond that, however, Germany would get everything she wants in Europe and there would be no way to right the wrongs she has inflicted on her neighbours.

BRITAIN'S BUDGET

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

LONDON, Mar. 19 (UP).—The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir John Simon announced in the House of Commons to-day that he will present the Budget on April 23.

Sir Andrew Duncan, President of the Board of Trade, announced that the Anglo-Spanish Loan and Payments agreement was signed in Madrid on Monday.

2 GIANT LINERS FOR AUSTRALIA

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

NEW YORK, Mar. 19 (UP).—Reports that the 81,200-ton Cunard-White Star liner Queen Mary and the 34,000-ton Mauretania are leaving New York for an Australian port now appear to be confirmed.

The greatest secrecy is being observed regarding the ultimate destination of the two great British liners, and reports that they are to be used for the transport of troops from the Antipodes to the war zone cannot be officially confirmed.

Some circles believe that the two ships are en route to Australia to remain there for the duration of the war.

It is pointed out in this connection that the Queen Mary alone is US$5,000 a week.

There are only three deep-water harbours in Australia capable of accommodating the Queen Mary, and the Royal Navy, on Thursday, are Albany in Western Australia, Port Darwin in North Australia and Sydney.

Naval Protection
Reliable sources state that the two ships will sail in convoy, protected by units of the Royal Australian Navy and the Royal Navy, on Thursday.

They are both painted battleship grey, and appear drab in comparison with their pre-war colours.

Over seven hundred sailors have arrived from England by the Cunard White Star liner Antonia and have been transferred to the Queen Mary and Mauretania, which have had only skeleton crews since they have been tied up.

This morning, for the first time in six months, smoke is pouring from the funnels of the two ships, indicating that their departure is imminent.

New York police guards have been warned to flush headquarters if any planes approach the two vessels at an altitude of less than 1,000 feet.

Tripled Aircraft Production

WASHINGTON, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—America's production of aeroplane parts and engines has tripled during the past year, President Roosevelt told a Press conference during a discussion on the controversy over the release of planes of recent design to foreign powers.

President Roosevelt said that there was no question of giving away military secrets as the designs of the planes were not secret, but "only devices on them."

Calm Day On The Western Front

PARIS, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—To-day's communiqué says that there was a calm day on the whole front. West of the Saar, a German reconnaissance party fell into one of our ambushes and suffered fairly serious losses.

DRAMATIC BROADCAST FROM PARTICIPANTS

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

AS THIS EDITION OF THE "TELEGRAPH" WENT TO PRESS AN UNSPECIFIED NUMBER OF R.A.F. BOMBERS WERE ENGAGED ON A BOMBING RAID ON NAZI AIR BASES ON THIS ISLAND OF SYLT. THE RAID, IN WHICH AN UNSPECIFIED NUMBER OF PLANES ARE TAKING PART, IS STILL IN PROGRESS.

The only details received by the Air Ministry in London are conveyed in brief radio messages from the planes engaged in the raid, says "United Press".

The R.A.F. attack started while the House of Commons was in session last night.

Members were electrified when the Air Minister, Sir Kingsley Wood, rose to make an announcement.

He told the House that brief radio messages had been received from one of the leading machines, giving details of the raid. SEVERELY DAMAGED

As the British machines finished their story to London, bombs were dropping on Hornum, the Nazi air base on the Island of Sylt.

One message relayed the information that the Nazi base had been severely damaged.

Full details of the raid are still awaited from the British machines.

This is the first time in the history of aerial warfare that the story of a battle has been released for publication while the battle has been in progress.

Only the science of modern radio communication has made it possible.

Optimistic Hitler

Sees Success In New Peace Offensive

BERLIN, Mar. 19 (UP).—Hitler and his Foreign Minister arrived here at 11.25 a.m. to-day.

The Fuehrer was in excellent spirits and proceeded immediately to the Chancellery where he conferred with Goering and his military leaders.

Triangular Talks Soon

Informed quarters here understand that ranking Soviet officials, at present in Berlin, will soon begin triangular talks. The German Ambassadors Schulenburg and Von Papen are returning from the Balkans and Turkey to report before Easter.

Informed sources said that Moscow is shortly to be co-ordinated in the German-Italian programme to the tripartite Anglo-French influence in the southeast. It is also understood that Hitler told Mussolini that Italy's political collaboration will be sufficient to force peace on the basis of the German-Italian terms.

Irrevocable Decisions

AMSTERDAM, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—Wilhelmstrasse spokesmen told neutral correspondents that people abroad still did not seem to understand that the German Government had taken two decisions:

(1) To continue the war until complete victory is achieved;
(2) After victory to secure Germany's vital interests once and for all, and end the eternal menace of the plebeian democracies.

In the meantime the Wilhelmstrasse is openly discussing the desirability of a better understanding between Russia and Italy.

"Reuter" understands that a visit by Herr von Ribbentrop, the German Foreign Minister, to Moscow is still possible.

Nothing More To Say
BERLIN, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—An inspired statement denying peace plan rumours declares that Germany has nothing to say on the question of peace.

Eden May Become Minister For Air Cabinet Re-shuffle Indicated

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

NEW YORK, March 18 (Dome).—A reshuffle of the Chamberlain Cabinet with a view to reinvigorating Britain's war policy is near at hand, according to the London Bureau of the "Associated Press."

The report says that political circles in London believe that a reorganization of the British Cabinet is inevitable.

The "Associated Press" further asserts that Sir Kingsley Wood, the Air Minister, Mr. Leslie Burgin, the Minister of Supply, and Lord Hankey, the Minister without Portfolio, will probably retire and will be replaced by Mr. Anthony Eden, the Dominions Secretary, Mr. Clement Attlee, leader of the Labour Party, and Sir Archibald Sinclair, leader of the Liberal Party respectively.

It is understood that the forthcoming reshuffle will bring about a National Cabinet to cope with the war.

Some circles suggest that Mr. Lloyd George, the Prime Minister during the last War, will also be called.

JAPANESE AGREE TO WITHDRAW TROOPS

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

NANKING, Mar. 19 (UP).—The Propaganda Minister, Lin Pal-sheng, on behalf of Wang Ching-wei, said to-day that it was agreed to return to China the military control the Japanese forces exercise in the occupied areas. Wang Ching-wei declares that this will assure an army establishment of the new Chinese Government.

The Central Political Conference opens on Wednesday, the meeting lasting three or four days, for the purpose of preparing for the "return of the National Government to Nanking" which will be possibly proclaimed next week, although the date is not fixed. Twenty-two out of 30 delegates are former officials of the National Government which evacuated to Nanking in 1937.

Busy Conference
The conference will pass a resolution empowering Wang Ching-wei to determine a policy for readjustment of Sino-Japanese relations, draw up an outline for establishment of the new Government, and also decide the date of establishment and structure as well as abolition of the Peiping and Nanking regimes, determine the political programme of the new regime, establish a policy vis-a-vis Chungking and the question of its liquidation, and also decide the convocation of the National Assembly and the question of enforcing a constitutional government.

Around The Courses

I wonder if this is a bit of Einstein's theory of relativity? It is all relative.

Included in these complicated movements is the transference of weight from one foot to the other. Then there is the advice to hit against a braced left leg. What do these things imply? The first is the bringing of the body into the shot, and the second is the checking of that force so as not to take one completely off one's feet.

Mind you, the wrists must have that certain strength in order to hold the club firm at the speed with which it is hitting the ball, but they have no great rebound to counter—the momentum of the club-head does the very greater proportion of the work in sending that ball on its journey—the wrists see to it that the club-head is travelling along the right path.

In the iron shots, I grant, that the wrists do have a greater burden to carry. The arc of swing is not so full, and a greater "punch" has to be put into the shot with the arms and wrists. This is because the club is shorter and the swing is shorter. The speed of the club-head has to be generated over a much shorter distance. But the body work is still there—the "feel" of weight is still the same—and I wonder if it could ever be computed in terms of energy how much work is done by the arms (especially the forearms)?

Ernest Jones in his book "Swinging Into Golf" points out that one can sit on a chair and hit a ball some 200 yards down the fairway. Jimmy Thomson, one of the longest hitters in golf to-day, almost pivots himself off his feet—and his wrists don't do that—while Alex Morrison has shown in a diagram that the muscles which do the greatest work in a golf shot are those of the back and thighs.

So it seems that elsewhere, too, there are different means of attaining the same end with a golf ball—so why bother too much about how you get there as long as you do?

THE annual golf match between Kowloon and Happy Valley will be played at Kowloon on Friday, and I notice that the first game of the singles is between these redoubtable golfers from the Royal Naval Dockyard—A. E. Davies (Kowloon) and J. T. Smith (Happy Valley).

Smith is the Colony champion who has done most great things at the Royal Hongkong G.C., Fanning, while Davies is his counter-part who has covered the market of trophies at Kowloon during the past year. The odds are on Smith winning this match, but it would be worth following.

OPTIMISTIC HITLER

peace after the rejection of the Führer's offer on October 6, 1939, an offer made only once.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—Official quarters here persist in affirming that Mr. Sumner Welles had no hand in the Brenner Conference.

It is suggested here that Hitler is seeking to use Mr. Sumner Welles' presence for his own purposes.

The press here are of the opinion that Hitler is probably trying with the idea of bringing about improved Russo-Italian relations, and that Mussolini will consider the stabilisation of the Balkans worth the price of shaking hands with Moscow.

According to the "Baltimore Sun", President Roosevelt is considering the resumption of full diplomatic relations with Germany and his choice for United States Ambassador for Berlin will probably be Mr. Clarence Piccott, leading figure in Quaker relief work and peace activities.

A Look Through The "Telegraph"

50 YEARS AGO

March 20, 1890.
It appears, says an American paper, that there are only about one hundred native born American tars in the United States Navy. All the rest are Chinese, negroes, Portuguese, Greeks, Cannucks, Malays, and Patagonians. The one hundred are now lonely and are about to petition the Secretary of the Navy to give them an occasional week ashore so that they shall not forget how to speak the English language.

The popular belief in the sanitary efficacy of red underwear is a clinging superstition, nothing more. It was in ancient times considered a potent charm against the evil eye. At one time in the 16th century, when the evil eye was deemed to be especially triumphant in England, there was a boom in red tape which it has never since experienced. Many people to this day believe that a red string worn about the neck is a sure preventive of asthma, measles and mumps. The police of this old faith are to-day best preserved in the great confidence which obtains in the medical virtue of red flannel, and not so widespread belief that the milk of a red cow is better than that of any other cow. As to red flannel, it has the same merit over other fabrics in that the dyeing material destroys all vestige of animal life in the wool, and that red flannel does not shrink as white flannel does.

A new use has been found for the carrier pigeon in Russia—carrying negatives taken in a balloon to the photographers. The "Novoye Vremya" gives an account of some experiments to this effect recently made, in which the Czar's winter palace was photographed in the air, the plane being held in place by a pigeon's foot, and sent to the developer.

The use of compressed air as a motive power for tramways in France is extending. The system adopted in the city of Lyons, which has been open since 1879. The inventor asserts that the system is far more economical than horse traction—the cost of electricity being only 10 to 15 per cent. of the cost of steam power, and that the machinery is simple and does not require a skilled mechanic to control it.

25 YEARS AGO

March 20, 1915.
A Paris evening communique states:—A Zeppelin has dropped bombs on Calais, killing seven station employees.

The destruction of German power or influence in the Far East now having been accomplished, says the "London and China Express," the future of the Pacific—a problem that long filled the minds of the Chancellors of the world—has been solved. The German Colonies, of course, shall remain under the Union Jack, and in all probability shall be administered by the United States. New Guinea, every inch of which must eventually come under the British flag by treaty or cession. Never again can Great Britain afford to take the risks that she has taken in the past 20 years by allowing a strong Power to challenge her supremacy at almost every point on the five continents.

10 YEARS AGO

March 20, 1930.
Hopes for the establishment of an air mail service between Hongkong and London, via Singapore and India, in the not too distant future, are encouraged by the fact that the British Government has agreed to take the air estimates, when Mr. F. Montague introduced the Air Estimates.

5 YEARS AGO

March 20, 1935.
Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, the Prime Minister, to-day told the House of Commons that Great Britain had already taken steps to defend herself against possible air raids in the future. The estimates provide for a programme involving an increase of the fighting machines of the R.A.F. to a total of 1,400 by 1938.

Declaring that the British Air Defence programme was entirely inadequate, Mr. Winston Churchill to-day gave a sensation in the House of Commons when he asserted that the British Air Force had been allowed to stand inferior in strength to that of Germany's. The country was faced by a situation very like the possibility of a resumption of the war which ended in 1918, he challenged.

Speaking for the Government, Sir Philip Sassoon, Under-Secretary for Air, admitted that the political situation was most anxious, but asserted that the Government was determined to see that no stone was left unturned for the adequate defence of the country and the Empire.

The feature of the debate on the Air Estimates was Mr. Winston Churchill's assertion that last November, when Great Britain and Germany were virtually of equal air strength, but that since then the British position had materially worsened relatively.

"We have entered into a period of greatest peril and are faced with something very like the possibility of a resumption of the war which ended in 1918," Mr. Churchill cried.

However, he still hoped and believed that the danger of armed conflict in Europe might be averted.

Replying for the Government, Sir Philip Sassoon said that according to the Government's latest information he had every reason to think that Great Britain was still stronger than Germany in the air.

General Wavell who arrived on Sunday for consultations with the United Government yesterday visited the various defence points on the Cape peninsula.

He lunched with His Excellency and Lady Duncan and dined last night with General Smuts, the Prime Minister.

Hitler May Tell Of Brenner Parleys

AMSTERDAM, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—Hitler may summon the Reichstag in the next few days to hear the result of the Brenner meeting. It is learned from a Berlin source.

The decision probably depends on the final message from Rome after Signor Mussolini's farewell talk with Mr. Sumner Welles.

Press Opinions

Sympathetic Roosevelt Supporting Cause Of The Allies

LONDON, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—The New York "Mirror" says: "Current opinion in the United States is sympathetic to the cause of the Allies and antagonistic to the cause of the Dictators. Certainly he sent Mr. Sumner Welles to Europe to find out how American opinion helps to direct a policy that will not embarrass or jeopardise the interests of the Allies."

The Swiss Press attitude to the Hitler-Mussolini meeting is best summed up by the "Bund," which says: "We cannot help believing that Hitler's journey must have some connection with Mr. Welles' last days in Europe."

The article ends: "The political significance of the meeting will consist in Mussolini once more reminding Hitler that Italy's actions are conditioned by Italy's interests and nothing else."

Tide Talk
The "Basler Nachrichten" says: "In Rome there is much idle talk of a possible change of Italian policy towards Russia, but opinion here maintains that there is no good reason now why Italy should want this."

The "Zürcher" says: "In Berlin and in transport circles here, it is believed that an increase in coal deliveries to Italy via Brenner is only possible if tremendous quantities of munitions are sent to Italy. The slightest interruption will endanger the whole."

Soviet Press Views
Foreign news columns in the Soviet Press are lately occupied mainly with the following themes: (1) The imperialists, thwarted in the plot to force Scandinavia into a war against the U.S.S.R., are now busily trying to create a new war front elsewhere. Only the peace-loving policy of the U.S.S.R. has, till now, kept the European war from becoming a world conflagration.

(2) British designs in the Near East generally and the Balkans in particular are proved, by the presence of large numbers of British troops in Egypt, Iraq, Palestine and Kenya, and the army in the Near East under General Weygand.

(3) The imperialists hope to re-peat the "Finnish experiment."

The Russian Aim
These three tendencies, reports, published daily, are designed to show an imminent conflict between the Allies and Italy as the result of ambitions clashing over the Balkans, the Suez Canal, etc.

The London "Times," in a leader entitled "Fishing For Information," points out that the German attack on Seno Flot was a duck. The German Command must, therefore, rely on such information as the British Government can be induced to vouchsafe.

The favourite German device is to vociferously insist on the hope to prevent Admiralty detailed denial from which reliable information could be deduced.

ENTERTAINMENTS

One complete turn to the right, taking a back balance from one foot to the other—away from the shoulders from side to side as you turn.

Now repeat the above figure, 8 One Steps and 1 complete turn, finish facing each other and shout "ooh."

Now for the steps of the Chorus. Facing each other, commence on the Right Foot. 3 Running steps forward, on the 4th beat slip forward with bonded knees—shouting "Well," slightly lifting trousers while lady slightly lifts dress. Then 4 running steps back to places still facing each other.

Well! - Then 4 running steps back to places still facing each other.

Commence on Right Foot. Running towards partner link Right Arm, make a circle, and back to places.

Hopping on one foot then the other with the knees up, 4 Facing each other and 4 moving towards each other, finishing with the shout "ooh."

Now repeat the Verse, and Chorus as many times as desired.

INTELLIGENCE TEST YOUR CHARACTER

THE test that follows on this page is based on thousands of studies. There will be a temptation to over-rate yourself. Don't fall for it—be as honest and as objective as possible. Rate yourself as follows: Distinctly superior, 5 points; above average, 4 points; average, 3 points; below average, 2 points; poor, 1 point. The average is 45 points out of a possible 80. The best result in testing your character may be obtained by getting a friend to rate you.

INTELLECTUAL CHARACTER

- 1 Earnestness . . . Are you serious? Or inclined to be frivolous, trifling?
- 2 Open-mindedness . . . Receptive to others' ideas?
- 3 Accuracy . . . Are you careful of statements, or inclined to indefiniteness?
- 4 Initiative . . . Do you think for yourself? Or drift along with others?
- 5 Rational . . . Are you judicious, or prejudiced?
- 6 Alert . . . Are you hard-working? Just average? Lazy?

WORKING CHARACTER

- 1 Purposeful . . . Can you avoid being led by likes and dislikes?
- 2 Teachable . . . Amenable to teaching? Or are you stubborn?
- 3 Attentive . . . Or do you find attention wandering?
- 4 Ambitious . . . Are you trying to improve? Or are you satisfied with yourself?
- 5 Punctual . . . Do you get there on time, or always a bit late?
- 6 Thorough . . . Verify your conclusions, or jump at them?
- 7 Thrifty . . . Careful with money? Miserly? Wasteful?
- 8 Artistic . . . Are you neat in work? Or slovenly?
- 9 Adaptable . . . Do you fit into surroundings easily? Or slowly?
- 10 Leadership . . . Do you follow a cause you consider worthy?

KNEES UP MOTHER BROWN The New Hongkong Dance Craze

"KNEES UP MOTHER BROWN" is Hongkong's latest party dance craze.

It was introduced to the Colony on Saturday night by Sandra and Fredric Hartnell, the star turn entertainers at the Grill Room of the Hongkong Hotel, and became an instantaneous success.

About a hundred couples essayed the dance after it had been demonstrated by the Hartnells, and voted it a worthy successor to "Lambeth Walk" and "Boompas a Daisy."

"Knees up: Mother Brown" was introduced in London as recently as December 12 and is now sweeping England.

The routine was devised by Adele England, principal of the Loarno School of Dancing in London, who is responsible for several other successes of a like nature.

It is the fifth novelty dance to be introduced by C. L. Heimann, who was responsible for "Lambeth Walk," "The Chestnut Tree" (so popular with His Majesty the King), "The Park Parade" and war-time's "The Handsome Territorial."

"Knees Up Mother Brown" is a worthy successor. Its simplicity assures its success.

For anyone can dance it. The first eight steps are a stiff-legged "cane-walk" (You'll recall from the movie that the stiff-legged "cane-walk" was the first jazz number invented by Irene and Vernon Castle). In "Knees Up Mother Brown" the arms are also used. The cane walk is followed by a complete turn to the right, away from the shoulders from side to side as you turn. Then the cane-walk again, finishing with another complete turn and a shout "ooh."

Then comes the Chorus. Facing each other, gentlemen commence on right foot.

Ladies on left foot, and take three running steps forward. On the fourth beat the couple slip forward with bonded knees—shouting "Well." The gentleman slightly lifts his trousers and the lady slightly lifts her dress. Then four running steps backwards.

A hop on the right foot (these instructions are for gentlemen—ladies, of course, use opposite feet) twice, at the same time extending right hand slightly lowered towards partner, palm upwards, keeping in time with each Hop. (Some of the people at the Gripas used the Hitler salute!) Repeat on the Left Foot and Left Hand. Again on the Right and again on the Left. This is followed by a run towards partner, linking of right arms in circle (this is similar to Lambeth Walk) and then back to places. The final movement is to hop first on one foot and then on the other with the knees up, four steps facing each other and four steps moving towards each other.

The Verse and Chorus can be repeated as often as desired. It is a Novel dance that is bound to click at all Hongkong clubs and dance halls.

PICTURE ARTICLE

TOKYO, Mar. 14 (Herald)—"No question can arise regarding the title to Spratley Islands, which the Japanese Government on March 20 of last year declared incorporated into Japanese territory and placed under the administration of the Government-General of Formosa," the Navy Office spokesman said.

ABOVE—Announcement of Annexation published in the "Telegraph" last week.

ANNEXATION BY JAPAN

FOUR MAJOR POWERS—Britain, France, Holland and the United States—are opposed to Japan's annexation of the Spratley Islands (also known as Storm Island).

Spratley is the main island in an archipelago, and has an area of only 120 acres.

Its importance is due solely to its strategic position, for it lies 410 miles from French Indo-China and some 500 miles from British North Borneo.

Japan claims that the reefs forming the Spratley group have long been known as ownerless and that since 1917 Japanese nationals had undertaken the economic development of the archipelago.

In 1843 Captain Spratley of the British whaler "Cyrus" sighted the island and plotted its position on the chart, but it was not until 1930 that it was annexed by any country.

In that year a landing party from the French minesweeper "Mallouche" was put ashore, the tricolour was hoisted, and the commander formally took possession of the island in the name of France.

Embroidery—A Fashionable Trimming

HAND-WORKED embroidery is one of the smartest trimmings which you can choose just now. If you have a flair for this kind of hand-work then you can achieve smartness at little cost, but even if you cannot do the work yourself it is still possible to buy pieces of applique work which can be arranged attractively upon your dress and sewn in place.

Much of the embroidery is worked in simple stitches, however because the idea is to create a piece of work which glows with colour and sparkles with silver or gold or "diamonds"—the stitches themselves being of secondary importance.

So if you are doing this work yourself, use plenty of gold or silver thread and lots of coloured beads, sparkling stones, and sequins.

Reason for a Plastron

If you have a plain dark dress and want your trimmings to be interchangeable, then it would be a good plan to make a plastron front to tie at the back of the neck and also at the waist. It might be made of a short length of lace, embroidered with coloured stones, or in the case of a patterned lace the design might be picked out in sequins or diamante stones.

The plain round neck of a dress is just the right background for embroidery which takes the shape of a collar with a bib-like front. First of all, the outline of the "collar" should be tacked on the dress, and then the design filled in with metal thread, silk, and sparkling stones.

Here, again, if you prefer, the collar, or "bib," can be embroidered separately, put on over the dress, and fastened at the back of the neck.

Silver Epaulettes

Long-skirted dinner dresses, as well as some of the smartest short,

Attention For Kerchiefs

Handkerchiefs used by persons with colds should have special attention. Soak them first in salt water for half an hour to loosen the mucus. Rinse thoroughly, then wash in hot sudsy water. Boil in soapy water for at least 10 minutes and rinse until the water is clear. Blue in cool water and dry in sunshine. Persons having colds should wash their hands thoroughly and often to prevent spread of colds.

full-skirted afternoon, are sometimes trimmed, very charmingly, with gold or silver "epaulettes." Fine gold braid may be used for them instead of metal thread, so that the embroidery is close and smartly stiff and heavy. Matching metal fringe may be added around the edges.

Dresses of the house-coat type made of fine black, dark green, or purple woollen material look lovely trimmed solely by two rather large breast-pockets encrusted by gilt or silver braid mixed with sparkling sequins or stones.

Sequins-trimmed evening sweaters are still very smart, but some of the latest for evening or afternoon wear are being embroidered in a deep "collar" effect around the neck and shoulders in simple designs carried out in metal thread, diamante, and coloured stones as well as sequins.

Yvonne

This redingote is in deep moss green heavy silk. The dress is of light moss and white and black silk with shirring at the neckline. Note the pockets on the coat.

There's nothing like white—chisp, starchily white—for giving a lift to tired clothes. And if you can't invest in an all-new trimmings. Choose materials that will wash, because the white must be white every time you wear it.

Suggestions here—a frilly petticoat, a blouse, waistbands and a lace yoke—would look fine on any black or dark blue dress.

1 This blouse would look grand under a plain dark suit. It is made of coarse white Irish lace, and tailored. It has a small turn-down collar, long, close sleeves, and the yoke is threaded with velvet ribbon.

3 Any of your good, dark though rather tired-looking gloves can be given new life this way. Sew a strip of bold lace up the wrist.

4 This linen petticoat to swing beneath your skirt will give a lot of lift to a tired frock. Flared from the flat hip yoke, the hem is trimmed with crocheted lace and embroidery.

5 Any frock you're bored with could do with this. Cut out the neck to a low square and tuck into it this gilet of fine embroidered lawn. There are wristbands to match.

6 Another dark frock could be made into a pinafore to wear over the organdie blouse. The shoulders are puffed, the long neck line trimmed with an embroidered band.

Pawns of The Political Game

YESTERDAY'S report that a three-Power agreement between Germany, Italy and Russia is imminent provides a big temptation for jesting comment, and is certain to revive the jokes about Russia becoming the immutable enemy of the Comintern, which were prevalent when the Soviet and Nazi Germany effected their rapprochement. At the same time it is foolish to overlook the serious aspect of a three-Power political pact as envisaged in the news despatches. Its effectuation would entail a considerable loss of "face" by the two anti-Comintern States, hitherto sworn enemies of the Soviet and all things which the Russian system represents, but more important would be the political changes it would bring about in southeastern Europe and the Near East. The Balkans, already harassed by the close proximity of Greater Germany and Russia, would find it difficult to resist a tri-Power diplomatic "Blitzkrieg" even though the Allies were to make counter guarantees of equal dimension.

It is quite obvious that the proposed rapprochement is not based on any single purpose. All three countries would enter the pact with individual ulterior motives; Germany to gain economic control of the Balkans; Italy to have two strong supporters for her "natural aspirations" in Northeast Africa and the Suez, and Russia for the protection of her illegal conquests in Poland and Finland. This factor of individual and separate aims is the weak point of any political pact between Germany, Russia and Italy. The partners become independent instead of interdependent, a position which may well bring about a quicker disruption of the partnership than any militaristic or economic action by the Allied Powers or the threatened Balkan States.

Hitler's assertion that he does not want the European conflict to be spread to the Balkans and the Near East may be a true reflection of his feelings, but the accompanying theory that a three-Power agreement would guarantee peace in those areas is hard to swallow. The more obvious effect would be to force the Allies into extending the war, if only to prevent Germany from acquiring so easily the economic war weapons which she so badly needs.

It is realisation of this possible turn to events which is probably influencing Hitler to seek Italy's positive aid in the war against the democracies. To bring about his economic conquest of the Balkans Hitler must have the political support of Italy and Russia; to guarantee that conquest against Allied interference he needs the armed support of at least Italy, and, if he can get it, of Russia. Thus, once again, the little Balkan States become pawns in the political game of the great nations.

BEYOND THE MAGINOT LINE

IN groups of two, each strictly separated by about 200 yards—the men who occupy the most forward of our positions beyond the Maginot Line, climbed a hill to their lonely outposts in the wood above. Beyond that are the Germans. They move in such small groups because, as the blackboard on the road told them, the climb is all the way under observation from the enemy; and sometimes he lashes off with his machine-guns.

I climbed up to the wood and to its hidden outposts to-day—the first of all the war correspondents out here to be allowed to pay a visit to our men who are in constant contact with the enemy.

THE real "front" lies some miles beyond our reserve line; and to reach it you must drive along exposed roads, and through deep forests where snow still lies on the ground.

You drive through several villages where human beings no longer live, and come finally to the blackboard on the road.

Beyond this point no vehicle may travel, no man may walk with more than one companion at his side; and no man may venture unless he has a tin hat perched uncomfortably on his head.

Plum trees line the road that leads up to the wood on the hill's summit; and fields from which last year's harvest was never fully gathered, roll across a wide valley bordered by woods into whose depths enemy night patrols occasionally penetrate.

Beyond the valley and on the summit of its enclosing ridge the German machine gunners lie waiting for parties sufficiently large to make it worth their while to fire.

When you are through the wire beyond the wood, you are but a few yards from positions from which our men watch, and sometimes check with their machine-guns, the daily movements of the enemy.

FROM these positions you can sweep the whole range of hills opposite through powerful glasses and bring it within a comparatively few yards of your eyes.

Below is a deserted red-roofed village, where pigs, abandoned by their former owners in the hour of evacuation, roam at will and flourish until such times as either a British or a German patrol ventures into the deserted streets and captures one for fresh meat.

FARTHER down the valley lies another empty village. Reports have long said that the Germans kept a permanent observation post there; but one regiment, when it was on duty in the outposts, had an idea that the reports were not quite true. To satisfy themselves, they sent out a daylight patrol, found that the Germans had gone, and rang the church bells just to tell the enemy where they were!

During the day the Germans make themselves scarce. Only a few were visible this morning; and when they had gone into the woods on their side of No Man's Land the country was immobile for some hours.

Only the occasional rattle of machine-guns on our flanks and the almost perpetual dull thud of artillery fire made it clear that the world is populated by more than the quiet men in our outposts and the huge black birds that fly ceaselessly across the cold, disputed land.

SOME of those quiet men live in "The Ritz." It has sandbag walls; but it has a door, chintz curtains, a stove that everybody wishes would not sometimes take it into its head to smoke, two armchairs and a double bed to-day. Two men wheeled it up in an ornate old tyreless perambulator that they had "scrounged" from somewhere. Bread, margarine in huge yellow tins, raspberry jam, cheese, tea, and water for making it. That was this evening's meal.

MEN OF THE Q-SHIPS

Luring Submarines to Destruction

The opening of another ruthless German submarine campaign recalls some of the most magnificent feats of the Great War—those of the Q-ships. The ship's activities ceased in 1919, but the deeds of their crews have lived on to record annals of courage and self-sacrifice that cannot be surpassed.

These ships went to sea with the deliberate intention of luring submarines to attack them, and Lieutenant-Commander E. Keeble Chatterton has told how the officers and men serving in them—they consisted of armoured collars, tramps, liners, cross-Channel packets, &c.—were drawn from every category of the sea—the Royal Navy, Royal Naval Reserve, Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve, and Royal Fleet Reserve.

In his words, "They came from battleships and little ships, from fishing vessels, sailing craft, yachts, barracks, offices, and cab ranks. Hardly a day passed when there were not volunteers for what could be nothing but weeks of boredom suddenly enlivened by the fiercest excitement, ending probably in death. For their captains the responsibilities were enormous. First-class seamanship, exceptional coolness, immense patience, considerable imagination and quite unusual initiative were demanded."

The ships were of all types, and they were fitted out with guns and depth charges which were cleverly concealed behind dummy deck-houses, boats, &c.

The Panic Party

The crews would entice the enemy to close quarters by making a show of abandoning ship. No effort was spared to give the operations of the "panic party" every semblance of reality, for the success of the ruse and the lives of the ship and her crew depended on the submarine commander being taken in by the apparent haste of the men to pull away—by such studied details of a bird in its cage, the cook straight from his galley, the unknown skipper, and a miscellany of uniforms. Often the ruse was completely successful and many submarines were sunk, although the Q-ships did not emerge from the campaign without suffering heavy losses.

Everything had to be rehearsed to the minutest detail, so that the suspicions of the submarine commander would not be aroused. If this did happen the submarine would dive and come up again unawares during the night and sink its opponent. The members of the panic party were all drilled into exactly what answers to give if the submarine commander asked questions, so that details were pat about the destination of the ship, cargo, and so on.

If the submarine did dive and hope to come up later the men on the Q-ship effected the most incredible changes during the time that elapsed. Funnels were repainted and the marks of another shipping company were put on, even the hull was sometimes gone over, a mast would be taken down, false deck-houses and other deck features were likewise altered.

The guns were very cleverly hidden on the decks. In some cases they were disguised by a dummy boat that had been sawn in half and could be removed instantly. In others a gun was concealed by what appeared to be a life-belt locker. Sometimes tarpaulin screens concealed them, and these dropped at a touch.

At the critical moment for action the signalman would drop the Red Ensign and run up the White Ensign, so informing the enemy of the real status of the ship. Almost always the engagement was short and sharp—the submarine was holed at a vital point and sank or the Q-ship went to her doom.

Scores of stories could be told of the gallant fights put up and the names of many of the Q-ships are immortal in the history of the British Navy. One of the earliest was her Prince Charles, and experience with her did much to influence the evolution of the Q-ship. She was a collier and came up against the submarine U-30. The commander of the U-30 began to shell and the collier's panic party tumbled into the boats. The U-boat closed in, when suddenly her crew were amazed to see men on the deck of the Prince Charles clearing tarpaulins. Shells pumped forth, and the submarine attempted to dive but was holed too badly. With a plunge she went to the bottom.

Another was the Hellgoland, a sailing vessel of about 310 tons, which made things hot for the U-boats, and time and again she escaped only miraculously. Then

Other men—the machine-gunners—live in their scientifically-sited posts; but these are not so comfortable as "The Ritz." You cannot sit upright in these sandbagged log cabins; you have to lie down all the time on the warm straw that covers the hard earth below.

All these, as it were, inverted dugouts lie close to the firing positions. Most of the firing positions and observation posts are tiny sandbagged fortresses, so placed that they enjoy the maximum security and combine it with the maximum effectiveness whenever it is necessary for the men inside to use their Bren and other quick-firing weapons.

Powerful telescopes help the sentries in these posts to pass long hours of duty without great strain on their eyes.

ALL the men I found up there this morning are well and cheerful. And, like all their comrades elsewhere, are more concerned with their coming leave than with the enemy they face. When their turn comes some may go with a ribbon on their chests, for in the valley below them all the decorations of this war have so far been won, for those valleys and all land around the outposts are the battlefields of this strange conflict.

Not that they underrate the enemy's skill. They do not. They will tell you that he has been trained to the last hair; and that what he does not know about patrol work is not worth knowing. But that is about all they do say of him.

BY the time these words got to London those men will have been relieved; and will have picked their way across the trip wires and all the empty tins that they have laid around them; and will have marched back to rest. When they come out of the line they will have learned the first three lessons of modern warfare: patience, patience, and then more patience. still.

There was the Glen, which encountered a submarine and began her play-acting as a terrorised coaster, and the panic party got ready to lower the boat. The enemy drew within 200 yards, and seeing the "alarm" came nearer still, to within about 50 yards.

Then the Glen opened fire, and shell after shell crashed into the submarine's hull. In fact she was killed and by diving sealed her own doom. Shortly afterwards another submarine appeared and attempted to fight the Glen, but gave up the task towards dusk, finding the Q-boat crew too tough.

A Hot Combat

The first prize brought in during the war was the German schooner Elise, appropriately renamed the Prize, and she became a Q-boat. She worked the U-boat No. 33 after an epic fight. Trivial Skipper Frewer and six men abandoned the old "coaster" with every evidence of panic, and the submarine commander, thought he had an easy prey. He fired shells at her and missed, but the men in the U-boat saw the submarine within 70 yards, and her commander lost all suspicion.

It was the critical moment. The order flashed: "Down screens! Up White Ensign! Open fire!" The Prize fired on, although the submarine answered to the last, and went down burning fiercely. Yet the amazing thing was the survivors on board managed to quell the fire and to regain the surface, and under Lieutenant Ziegler she reached port, a marvellous performance.

One of the finest feats of all was that of the Lowestoft fishing smack, Telesia. She was trawling 35 miles south of that port, and had guns on board. It was about noon when the submarine appeared, and to the skipper's amazement it fired a torpedo, costing hundreds of pounds, at its tiny opponent. The Telesia let fire straight away—there was nothing else to do. Fortunately the missile missed the smack's bows by about four feet, and then the enemy dived.

Half an hour later the enemy reappeared and hoped to finish off the job—and fired another torpedo. This missed and the Telesia answered back full of spirit. She got in two perfect shots and holed the submarine. The U-boat thought it wiser to dive and make off, for a third shot would have been fatal. So rapidly did she dive that her propeller showed. This gallant smack had the honour of appearing in the Naval Review during King George V's Silver Jubilee. C. Leslie Johnson.

UPROAR IN DIET

When Minister Refuses To Answer Questions

Tokyo, Mar. 19. The Asama Maru incident had a stormy sequel in the Diet today when Mr. Ichiro Kiyose, Jiyokoku Doshikai, charged the Foreign Minister, Mr. Arita, with a breach of faith in failing to give a clear-cut answer to his repeated interpellations on Anglo-Japanese negotiations.

Mr. Kiyose took exception to the Foreign Minister's explanations regarding the negotiations for the settlement of the Asama Maru case. His queries, being ignored by the Minister at a recent meeting of the House of Representatives, Mr. Kiyose addressed an open letter to the Minister which again was disregarded.

Taking up the issue again at the general meeting of the House of Representatives this afternoon, Mr. Kiyose dwelt upon the diplomatic negotiations between Japan and Britain. He pointed out that the instructions by the Ministries of Communications and Railway to prevent belligerent nationals embodied in armed forces or suspected of being embodied in armed forces from using Japanese ships including the Japanese ferry-boat tended to offend Article 28 of the Navy Warfare Regulations. He further alleged that if the instructions had been issued in return for the return of German nationals and as political bargaining, it would form a very serious issue. He also suggested whether Britain really expected regrets for the incident.

Mr. Arita, again refused to answer when members of minority groups including the Jiyokoku Doshikai, the Social Mass Party and the First Lobby rose in a body and loudly demanded immediate replies.

Recess Declared

The Speaker Mr. Koyama, declared it was entirely up to the Government whether they would reply to queries on diplomatic notes. As the confusion continued unabated, the speaker declared a recess.

The House met again at 5 p.m. when Mr. Sakichi Hattori, Minsai, advised the Government to reply to the query by Mr. Kiyose, despite precedents, in view of the consequence of the issue at stake.

Mr. Arita then took the rostrum and declared that the Government was adhering to the declared policy of avoiding involvement in the European war and concentrating on the disposal of the China Affair. The Asama Maru case had also been dealt with in the light of the same policy.

The British side on January 27 expressed regret for the incident and subsequently returned nine of the 21 Germans removed from the Asama Maru.

On Japan's part, the Government had undertaken not to give passage to nationals of belligerents who were embodied in armed forces or suspected of being embodied in armed forces aboard Japanese ships. "To put it in a nutshell, Japan has endeavored to settle the incident from an independent standpoint," Mr. Arita said.—Domei.

Scuffle On Floor

The United Press version of the incident says a near riot occurred following the Foreign Minister's refusal to answer when Mr. Kiyose, charged Mr. Arita with incompetence and subterfuge in handling the Asama Maru case.

Members of the Social Mass, Jiyokoku and Doshikai Parties rushed towards the rostrum and shook their fists at Mr. Arita, pounded desks, stamped on the floor and shouted: "You fool! Coward! Are you the Foreign Minister of Japan or Great Britain?"

The speaker ordered the guards to eject the members, who were ejected and a scuffle with them. The speaker then declared the recess and ordered the House to be cleared.

It was the most disorderly session in recent years.

Mr. Kiyose's interpellation was that Britain refused to give passage to nationals of belligerents who were embodied in armed forces or suspected of being embodied in armed forces aboard Japanese ships. He pointed out that the instructions by the Ministries of Communications and Railway to prevent belligerent nationals embodied in armed forces or suspected of being embodied in armed forces from using Japanese ships including the Japanese ferry-boat tended to offend Article 28 of the Navy Warfare Regulations. He further alleged that if the instructions had been issued in return for the return of German nationals and as political bargaining, it would form a very serious issue. He also suggested whether Britain really expected regrets for the incident.

When the speaker pointed out to Mr. Arita that he was not obliged to answer the question, Rightist members shouted: "Answer! Answer!" and Mr. Oda (Social Mass Party) rushed to the speaker's side and demanded a reply. When the guards tried to eject Mr. Oda members of his party rallied to prevent it and Minsai to members rallied to protect the speaker. A general free-for-all then ensued.

PREMIER DEFENDS HIS POLICY

must be decided upon with the most expert advice we can command.

"In the meantime the best way to ensure victory is to preserve unshaken our determination and unity. We have our kinsmen and fellow subjects in the British Empire. We have loyal and trusted friends across the Channel with their magnificent army and unlimited patriotism.

"Best of all, we have the consciousness that what we are fighting for is what every right-minded citizen in the world desires on which to base the establishment of a durable and moral peace such as that of which President Roosevelt spoke," concluded Mr. Chamberlain amid loud cheers.

Mr. Attlee Cautious

The Rt. Hon. Mr. C. R. Attlee said that Finland's magnificent fight against aggression was in the same cause as that for which Britain was fighting.

The duty of assisting Finland, he said, was not laid only upon Britain but upon all members of the League. In this case Norway and Sweden, he said, had not powerful armaments.

He did not like to hear harsh judgment made against people who after all were pretty close to the front line.

The amount of aid Britain could send was conditioned by the extent to which they could act in concert with Sweden and Norway.

Any infringement of their rights was quite unthinkable, he continued. The Opposition, added Mr. Attlee, were not in a position to say that the British Government could have sent more help with safety, but he would like to be certain that what had been sent was sent in time and without unnecessary delay.

He hoped that the example of this country in helping with the reconstruction of Finland would be followed by others.

Mr. Attlee then asked if Britain was doing all that could be done in the diplomatic, military and economic field.

Must Learn The Lesson

He agreed with Mr. Chamberlain that the lesson they must learn from Finland was that if they wanted to defeat aggression they must stand together.

He trusted that they would be prepared to resist any attack which Hitler might make upon them.

He, however, declared that the policy of sitting quiet would be suicidal and that the initiative must not be left to Hitler.

They must use their material and human resources in the best possible way, he added.

Too Much Unemployed

On the subject of coal he said that too many miners were unemployed for war time. The transport system was wasteful and they should make better use of railroad, canal and sea transport. He was of the opinion that a great deal more direction was wanted there.

They wanted greater utilisation of their man-power and Mr. Attlee reminded the House that there were still 1,400,000 unemployed in Britain.

Sir Archibald Sinclair agreed with Mr. Chamberlain in assailing the proper perspective to the recent engagement at Senpa Flow.

The course of this war had been so unexpected and so quiet, he said, that if a gun went off anywhere the people seemed to assume tremendous things.

They were at war with an immensely powerful and efficient enemy.

The question at issue was whether Europe would rattle back into barbarism and gangster governments or whether they could recreate their civilisation based on freedom, justice and the rule of the law.

The freedom and independence of Poland, Finland, the Baltic and Scandinavian countries depended on the victory of the Allies in this war against Germany, he added.

Sir Archibald then said that they needed to exert themselves to gain this victory.

They must seize the initiative and hold it.

Lapsed, Unwieldy Cabinet

Parliament should consider whether they wanted more efficient National and Imperial Instruments of war direction than they possessed.

"It does not look as though the present War Cabinet, lapsed and unwieldy with the present means of domination and inter-Allied consultation, is capable of promoting a vigorous and decisive initiative either in the economic, diplomatic or military field," he said.

"It seems to me that we ought to discuss them in a private session. It is too late to save Poland or Finland, and we should thrash these things out before our cause suffers another damaging setback."

Bellah's Questions

Mr. Leslie Hore-Bellah, the former War Minister, asked whether in their strategy, diplomacy and their total efforts they were doing everything to achieve their aims.

War began with two swift strokes. Poland was annihilated and Germany was swept from the seas.

Since then Germany had been inactive on land and the Allies had applied a blockade. It was the sole offensive weapon they had employed.

As long as Russia was engaged in active operations in Finland, the date at which Germany could obtain material advantages of her partnership—particularly oil—was being postponed.

It was in the interests of the Allies to maintain the resistance of Finland. It must be assumed from the decision of the Supreme War Council that the sending of a force was precluded and desirable.

From that moment, the action of the Allies should have been clear-cut and decisive. Hesitation might be permissible in the formulation of policy, but surely not in its execution.

Allies Lose Initiative

Events had shown that it was indeed unfortunate that the Allies had allowed their intended initiative to be wrested from them. It was known to everybody that the need for men was urgent.

It was only three weeks after the decision was taken by the Supreme War Council and when the Finnish Government were already actually in touch with Moscow that they were informed that the despatch of men as well as materials was contingent on a further appeal being made by them.

Mr. Hore-Bellah referred to the fact that the Norwegian Foreign Minister had stated that a request was made to them to allow troops through only when the Soviet-Finnish talks were already under way.

Could Have Broken Onslaught "There was a uniformity of opinion that powerful onslaughts from the air could have broken the Russian onslaught."

None of the objections raised to the despatch of troops could have prevented the sending of squadrons of the R.A.F.

"Would it not have been worth one month's output from our factories to save the situation?"

The Allies did not fail in their policy, which was deliberate and well-conceived, nor in their preparations for giving effect to that policy. But if they failed, it was because they were not determined enough and not quick enough in executing their own decisions.

Britain and France hesitated. The enemy acted, Finland was lost.

Total War Demands Total Means Continuing his address, Mr. Hore-Bellah said that to-day, the effects in Europe were everywhere apparent. There were moves towards new alignments.

"The war might be static but Hitler and his emissaries were busy. Mr. Hore-Bellah asked whether they could not counteract the accelerating tendency of neutrals to compound with Germany."

Total war must be won by total means.

He pointed out that the Nazi-Soviet pact had recalled the sympathies of Italy and Japan with Germany and it was evident now that Germany set great store by the rehabilitation of her friendships.

It would indeed be unfortunate developments if those ideologies were to come together again against the democracies.

The empires of Britain and France were the strongest critics in the world. If they were to carry the cause to victory, they must not only be strong. They must use their strength.

Not A True Picture

Mr. Chamberlain, replying in the debate after announcing the attack on Hornum, referred to the fear expressed by the Opposition Labourite, Mr. Hugh Dalton, that the morale of the country was not being sufficiently sustained by the Government.

The Prime Minister said: "It does not conduce to winning the war to suggest that this country is being outwitted at every turn by our opponents and that our measures to carry the war to a successful conclusion are open to criticism on the ground that there are leaks through which there are supplies into Germany."

That is not a true picture," Mr. Dalton had failed to understand the scale on which we are working and the small proportion to the whole of those leaks. One could not expect to establish a perfect blockade.

Mr. Chamberlain emphasised the difficulty of conducting a blockade and said that Mr. Dalton gave them to understand that no neutral rights should stand if, by violating them, we could damage the enemy.

Forfeited Right Of Appeal

Mr. Chamberlain emphasised that we were trying to keep within the rules of international law and said that as far as Germany was concerned she had absolutely forfeited any right of appeal to international law.

"I am a violation of that law we might embark upon in order to injure her. But there were very few cases in which the matter was as simple as that."

When it came to infringing the rights of neutrals in our endeavour to engage the enemy at closer quarters, we must have some regard for those international laws to which we had appealed so often ourselves.

Referring to the allegation of Mr. Dalton that Norway had tolerated the violation of her neutrality by German warships, Mr. Chamberlain said the British Navy and Air Force had kept a constant and continuous watch on Norwegian waters to see if German warships were violating them.

And had we been able to establish a single case of that kind, we would not have hesitated ourselves to enter those territorial waters and attack such ship. (Cheers.)

Poovich And Pervoso

Dealing with criticisms regarding the Finnish war, Mr. Chamberlain described Sir Archibald Sinclair's speech as peevish and perverse.

He pointed out that the question of sending volunteers never could have played a major part in any assistance which could have been given.

We were told that trained troops were wanted. Volunteers never could have made a serious difference in the campaign if they stood alone. We did not know that the situation was deteriorating up to a short time before the final collapse. We were told that the spirit of the army was completely unbroken and they were confident of being able to hold the Mannerheim Line.

It was only really a few days before the final collapse that we were convinced that there might be some reconstruction in the Government at Easter, states Reuter's Lobby Correspondent.

EDEN MAY BECOME MINISTER FOR AIR

The three main reasons advanced by the prophets for his reconstructions are:—

(1) The War Cabinet is too large.

(2) The personnel needs overhauling.

(3) There is a general lack of drive in the Government's war policy.

Thus to-day's big speech by the Prime Minister in the House of Commons was awaited with special interest as likely to show the temper of the House towards the Government in particular and the direction of the war in general.

Little Criticism The chief Opposition speeches which followed the Prime Minister's speech showed an understanding of the Government difficulties and even Mr. Hore-Bellah's close adherents would be unlikely to deny that his speech stirred no dissident chord in any other quarters.

Indeed he was heard in almost total silence until the point at which he said that Czechoslovakia's cause was a righteous one—whereupon the loud ironical cries of "You were in the Government" were heard from the Opposition.

Changes in the personnel which Mr. Chamberlain might have in mind for the Easter recess—and well-informed quarters continue to discount any such intention—they will not be a result of to-day's debate.

Made Out Good Case The first impression gained from the reception of the Prime Minister's speech is that the House feel that he made a good case in regard to Finland and that if there is to be any further discussion of the war capacity of the Government it must await another secret sitting.

One of the outstanding features of the comments heard is that there is a universal regard for Finland and an understanding of the difficulties of the northern countries.

informed that the situation was considered serious.

Referred To Chiefs Of Staff Mr. Chamberlain said that every request the Finns made to us was referred to the Chiefs of Staff to know whether they considered it was justified in the circumstances in which we found ourselves. If we had considered solely those things which were naturally properly in the minds of the Chiefs of Staff, we should have sent very much less than we did.

The Cabinet took the responsibility and risks in sending equipment and material which we thought might help the Finns to hold out.

With the verities that the Government had been too late, Mr. Chamberlain stressed the enormous preparations required for such an expedition, and said that the troops had to be specially selected and equipped to work in deep snow. Equipment had to be procured from another country, and transport had to be made ready.

It was not easy to pick up a number of ships at a moment's notice and make them ready for such an expedition. Nevertheless it was done.

Everything was arranged according to a definite timetable.

Why Expedition Did Not Sail The reason for the Finns' hesitation to make an appeal for assistance was not because the expedition was too small or too late. It was neither hesitation nor unbelief. The only reason the expedition never sailed was because when the time came, the Finns could not make an appeal because Sweden and Norway flatly refused to allow troops to pass through their countries.

Replying to the criticism that Britain might have sent planes, the Prime Minister said that when the Finns requested large quantities of bombers, these could only have been taken from the home defence or the B.E.F. Nevertheless we sympathetically considered the appeal but bombers could not operate without preparation for a ground staff, reserve ammunition and means of repair.

They must be able to operate continuously from Finland. We were ready to supply the crews and a number of bombing planes if the appeal was made, but by that time we knew that negotiations were going on. We were not sure that fighting would continue and could not contemplate sending large numbers of planes to ourselves. If after all we found that they failed to send the Finns and we could not get them back again.

Even so, in response to an appeal from the Finnish Minister at the last moment, we did send what bombers we could.

Did All We Could "Subject to the responsibility of winning the war against our own enemy, we did all we could in the time (Cheers)."

On the question of production, Mr. Chamberlain said that he was convinced that during the next fortnight the House would be able to see an appreciable increase in production of goods. Although differences were expressed this afternoon, these were on the surface of an underlying unity of the parties.

Mr. Chamberlain said that he accepted and subscribed to the words of President Roosevelt the other day regarding what a peace should be.

He concluded: "While we had not embarked on a war, I did not enter the struggle. I shall be just as determined and just as persistent in achieving the purpose we have in mind as I was in trying to keep the peace before the war started." (Cheers.)

NANKING REGIME

Tokyo Will Negotiate Treaty With Wang

Tokyo, Mar. 19. The new Japanese envoy to the Wang Ching-wel regime, General Nobuyuki Abe, former Premier, has been invested with full powers to adjust and regulate the new relations on the basis agreed last December between Wang Ching-wel and the Japanese authorities in China, and to negotiate the treaty governing those relations after the inauguration of the new Central China Government, according to Japanese reports.

The treaty, consisting of brief but explicit stipulations providing for the clarification of the joint responsibility and of the mission imposed upon Japan, Manchukuo and China for the attainment of the aims outlined in the famous Kono statement of December 22, 1938, will be the highest principle in Sino-Japanese relations.

Upon signature, the treaty will be made public by Japan and China in the form of a joint simultaneous announcement, whereupon Japan and the new Central Government of China will enter into new relationship and the mission of the special envoy will end.

The envoy will be accompanied to China by a large suite, including representatives of the War Office, the Navy Ministry and Foreign Office and a section of staff members on the China Affairs Board, a Central organ vested with broad powers to deal with all affairs relating to China, particularly in the field of economy.—Reuter.

Peace Offensive Ridiculed ROME, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—The idea of a peace offensive by Signor Mussolini has been scouted by Signor Gayda.

Writing in the "Giornale d'Italia," Gayda says it is grotesque for the democracies to insist on fixing on 11 Duce the permanent task of being an intermediary.

"It is unthinkable," he says, "that 11 Duce should visit the capital in Europe in a peace movement for which no Government is yet asking."

Did Not See Mussolini ROME, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—Mr. Sumner Welles did not see Signor Mussolini to-day.

However he lunched with Count Ciano at the Rome Golf Club. The two statesmen remained in conversation for a couple of hours after lunch.

The American Ambassador was present at the luncheon.

Mr. Sumner Welles is leaving for Genoa this evening and will embark on the Conte di Savoia to-morrow.

Confers With Colleagues ROME, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—During his stay, Mr. Sumner Welles conferred with Mr. F. P. Hibbard, First Secretary of the United States Legation at Bucharest, whom he had specially summoned from the Rumanian capital.

The late Mr. Li took a great interest in public affairs, having only last week been re-elected a member of the Committee of the Kowloon Residents' Association, with which he had been connected for a number of years. He was also, at the time of his death, Chairman of the Hong Kong Auxiliary of the Chinese Mission for Lepers, which was founded by his brother, Mr. Yinson Lee.

The body has been removed to Brown Jones Funeral Parlour at 45 Morrison Hill Road, and the funeral arrangements will be announced to-morrow.

In lieu of flowers, friends are requested to send donations in memory of the late Mr. Li Chor-chi to the Chungshan Refugees Fund, c/o S. C. M. Post.

FOOD PROBLEM WITH GASTRITIS For years, doctors wanted to find a food that would not irritate the inflamed stomach walls of patients suffering from gastritis and that at the same time would rebuild the patient's strength. In severe cases of gastritis solid foods are out of the question, even liquid foods are often vomited. Yet the patient needs quick new strength to rebuild his exhausted body. In Horlicks, doctors and nurses have found an ideal food.

Where other foods are rejected, Horlicks is retained by the patient. And almost at once strength starts to come back, with the result that convalescence is shortened too. Get Horlicks to-day from your store. It is delicious to taste.

A.A. Lopes Wins Senior Championship At Country Club

(By "Birdie")

THE RAINS CAME—and let us thank whom we must for the brief but fairly solid showers that fell on golf courses during the past week. The fairways were quite unrecognisable in the fresh green colour they had put on. The Country Club course at Sheungshui lost its resilience and its parched appearance, and for the first time in many moons the sand greens played as though of turf.

The great match of the week-end past was the final of the Country Club Championship, in which A. A. Lopes beat E. Sadick 3 and 1, over 36 holes.

Lopes finished the first 18 holes one up, and at one stage in the second 18 Sadick had drawn level, but Lopes gradually forged ahead again, and ultimately became dormie two. He won the 35th and the match, 3 and 1.

BODY weight seems to be causing as much concern among men as among women in beauty parlour. I don't propose to take sides, and no doubt by this time people have formed opinions of their own. As I gather, there seems to be three schools of thought. (a) Mr. Davidson, who in quoting The Science of Golf by P. Fowler, M.B., appears to be of the opinion that a golf shot is body from alpha to omega; (b) "The Rough" acknowledges that body weight to a certain extent is essential, but that foremost is the work done by the wrists, and (c) Mr. Scott Harston and Mr. R. Hancock who take up cudgels on behalf of cricketers, and who are of the opinion that body work counts for nothing in making a cricket drive—that it is all a matter of rhythm and timing.

I should like to add my little bit which is again different from any of the foregoing in that, though like "The Rough" I agree that wrist-work and body-work are an essential combination for a golf shot, I would place the body as being the more contributory to force, and, therefore, of primary importance. Unfortunately, in golf, there are two kinds of shots.

A. A. LOPES, the new Champion of the Country Club, Sheungshui, he beat E. Sadick 3 and 1 in the final last Sunday.

and finally the wrists snap the club head into position at the moment of impact. Now what should be considered at the moment of impact is the momentum of the club head and the inertia of the ball. If the one force were equal to the other, the natural reaction would be for the club head to bounce back, but the force of the club-head (I don't know what it is expressed in foot-pounds or foot-pounds) is its speed multiplied by the weight. And that is something very much greater than the inertia of the ball.

Let us suppose that the speed of the club-head were 100 miles per hour. I don't know whether that is so or not, but it must be something around that figure. Then for the wrists alone to create that speed, they would indeed have to be tremendously strong—but the work of the wrists is not so great. The body and arms bring the club-head down with the greater part of that speed, and all that the wrists do is impart the extra few miles per hour.

QUARTER-FINAL BADMINTON

Macao Interport Soccer Team

Scottish Eleven Chosen For International Cup

MACAO, March 18. With the coincidence of both the hockey and football Interport fixtures which are being staged in Hongkong on the coming Sunday, sport circles in Macao are very enthusiastic and the feeling runs high that the Macao teams stand a fair chance of giving a good account of themselves.

In the soccer match, Macao is being represented by a fine crew of local First Division players of whom a brief individual pen sketch follows.

Santos is very sure in his position at goal, and in recent trials has shown up as dependable in dangerous moments.

Colloca, captain, has played in both previous Interports. He is so adaptable as an all-round player that he has been appointed to take charge of the defence instead of occupying his usual centre-forward or half-back positions.

Chiu Fan-hon as left back played for Canton Police prior to the Japanese occupation. He is very steady and will work like a Trojan. He clears beautifully.

Lou Han-san, ex South China player, holds the important pivot position as Macao's centre-half. At all times a fine, clean player.

Magalhães is Macao's experienced and reliable right-half. Although heavy, he makes up by his quality of feeding the immediate forwards and marking his opponents.

Lau Hing-chol, a fast left half, combines well with the full-backs.

Rego is tricky and has fine speed in the flank position of outside-right. Joantho is a hard-working inside right and can be relied upon to combine with Macao's right winger.

Carvalho as centre forward is the most agile player. He possesses exhaustless energy and shoots accurately. Last year's goal for Macao.

Lau Chung-ran is a footballer who, having played for South China, is prominent on the forward-line and needs little introduction. Always dependable. He is to play inside-left for Macao.

SCOTLAND XI

In the final of the International Charity Cup competition at Sookun-oo on Easter Monday, Scotland will be represented by Duncan, Bone and Blackburn; Birrell, Williamson and Clarke; Munro, Pryde, Coull, Ferrier

Eardley And Eardley Have Easy Match In Mixed Doubles

SEVERAL PLAYERS entered the semi-finals of the Colony Badminton Championships as a result of matches played last night at both Taikoo and King's College. H. Eardley and Miss D. Eardley, former Shanghai mixed doubles champions, beat D. Kwok and Mrs. P. Wilson 15-12, 15-0 to enter the mixed doubles semi-final; M. A. Silva and M. A. Oliveira beat A. L. Fisher and P. Wynter-Blythe 15-11, 15-9 to enter the semi-finals of the men's doubles, and N. L. Smith accounted for K. L. Lui 15-0, 15-11 and entered the semi-finals of the Junior Singles championship.

The only other game was at King's College, where C. Au and P. H. Wong beat R. Marques and I. F. Consalves 15-7, 15-2 in a first round match of the doubles.

The best game of all was the doubles game, Silva and Oliveira v. Fisher and Wynter-Blythe, at Taikoo. The winners, who are Recreio's strongest pair in the tournament, formed a brilliant combination. Silva was particularly fine at the net, and his cleverly concealed drop shots gained many points. Oliveira was an accurate and energetic partner.

Wynter-Blythe was the better of the two losers, and was most adept at returning hard smashes from any angle. Fisher, on the other hand, was rather weak with his back-hand, and dropped several points with feeble returns.

The scores were never steady, and were in continual fluctuation. At the critical moments, however, the Recreio pair became the steeper and were thus able to clinch the games.

EASIER GAMES

IN NONE of the other games could the winners be said to have been extended. The mixed doubles combination of H. and Miss Eardley showed a noticeable slackening in the first set when leading 11-3, and as a consequence their opponents crept up to 12 before the game ended. There was never any doubt in the second game.

C. Au and Patrick H. Wong, the Chinese Y.M.C.A. pair, also had a comparatively easy match against Marques and Consalves. At no time were they extended.

In the junior match, N. L. Smith, favourite for the title, was far superior with his all-round form. Lui, his opponent, was almost run off his feet, and his short returns were disastrous for himself.

Open Doubles Match On Friday

The remaining first round match in the Colony Open Badminton doubles championship, K. L. Yung and H. F. Chew v. H. M. Lau and S. C. Hung, will be played off at King's College on Friday, March 22, at 8 p.m. and Tait. Reserves—Parnaby, Dignan, Gordon and Fraser.

LA SALLE COLLEGE ATHLETIC MEETING

Several Seconds Clipped Of 800-Metre Records

SEVERAL SECONDS were taken off the Senior and Junior 800-metre records of La Salle College at their annual sports meeting which concluded yesterday on the College grounds. L. Silva was timed at 2 mins. 17 secs. for the Senior event, which time is four seconds better than the previous record set up by A. Ulrich in 1937, while B. Alonco clocked 2 mins. 27.5 secs. for the Junior event, bettering L. Xavier's 1938 record by no less than 10 seconds.

In the Individual Championships, L. Xavier won the Senior Cup, while A. Azevedo annexed the Junior Cup, presented by Ricci Hall. The Midgits Individual Championship was shared by L. Azevedo and E. Silva with 13 points.

At the conclusion of the Meet, Mr. L. G. Morgan, of the Education Department, distributed the prizes, at the same time congratulating the boys on their fine show under such improvised conditions.

NAZIS PLAN 'SILENT TERROR' RAIDS

Spies' Rockets Guide Pilots in Test Glides Over Holland

By RALPH IZZARD, Daily Mail Correspondent AMSTERDAM.

GERMANY is planning silent "terror by night" gliding raids on Britain, it is believed here, following arrests in connection with the coloured rocket signals seen at night from many points in Holland.

Nazi bomber pilots, one of the arrested men told the police, have been practising gliding flights over Holland nightly in preparation for these raids.

The rockets—and search-lights of tremendous power, according to one source—have been used to guide the pilots.

They have found that after cutting out their engines at 30,000ft. over Germany they can then glide right across Holland and out over the North Sea.

These sound detectors here are detected, and no early warning could be sent through to Britain.

These tactics were used by General Franco in the Spanish Civil War. Activity of the rocket signalers has greatly increased in the past few days owing to the better weather conditions, and the police, the Secret Service, and military authorities are co-operating in a nation-wide hunt.

From Eight Villages

Signals were again seen last night at many points over Brabant and near Tilburg. A.R.P. wardens have seen searchlight signals coming from eight separate villages.

For any such proposed raids on Britain the signalers would have to be stationed near the coast. So far they have been seen mostly in Central Holland.

The signals are believed to have been used not only as direction in diversions but as a guide to weather conditions over the North Sea, the Channel, and Britain.

Lost in Forest, Lived Two Months

Daily Express Correspondent

ST. JOHNS (Newfoundland).

AFTER living for two months on such food as they could find or trap, three Canadian airmen, forced down in wild Labrador, abandoned hope of being found. In their tent they wrote notes to their families, and then waited for death.

Their bodies, their pathetic last notes, were found yesterday by an operator of the Hopedale Marconi Station, only forty miles from the camp, who was on a hunting trip.

First things he found in the tent were a small box and an envelope across which was scrawled "To the finder."

Inside was a wad of notes—180 Canadian dollars (£30)—and a letter which said:

"This 180 dollars belongs to you. Go at once and report to the Government that plane C.F.B.N.D., lost en route to North-West River on September 14, rests safely on the edge of a large lake two miles north-west of here.

Germany's latest "ersatz" product is not coffee. It is a purely chemical production. And it contains artificial caffeine!

Supplies of the new "coffee" have already been issued to the forces. The public will have to suffer it next month.

SIAMESE TWINS HAVE A BABY

THEY took twenty-six German midges off a ship in the Atlantic, the other day, and the French cruiser brought them to France, the oldest bag of war prisoners so far.

Not knowing quite how to handle the party—who had, by the way, been appearing in a sideshow at the New York World's Fair—the French authorities decided to send home the married midges.

And when they came to sort them out they found no fewer than sixteen of the little folk were married.

This is not so surprising as you might think, because circus freaks and sideshow wonders marry and have children in a remarkably high proportion.

The other day, when the showmen of Britain had their annual now-wow in London, they were telling stories of the marriages and romances of sideshow freaks. Here are some—

Twins—Circus Sensation!

Did you know that a pair of Siamese twins had a baby?

Rosa and Josephine Blizsek were joined-together-twins, in Prague, thirty years ago. They appeared in a sideshow, but never attracted much attention.

Then romance came along and one day the Siamese twins were rushed off to a hospital, where the one named Josephine gave birth to a boy.

The father was a carpenter. After this astonishing event, of course, the twins, their baby and the father, presented as a combined attraction, became the circus sensation of Europe.

Crowds flocked to see the exhibition, and speculate on the private life of this amazing family.

Finally, the proud father became a bit too proud, and hogged the applause so much that he had to be removed from the show, leaving the twins and "their" baby to enjoy all the limelight.

THERE is never a shortage of marriage partners for circus freaks, and the human oddities do not, by any means, always marry people of their own kind.

There was a woman in Ringling's Circus who was billed as the Ugliest Woman in the World.

It was a true billing by all accounts. But this lady married a normal man and had three children.

Ringling's also had a sideshow star called The Living Skeleton. His real name was Peter Robinson, and his weight was three stone six pounds.

The Skeleton made a typical circus marriage, his bride being Helen, The Fat Lady.

She weighed ten times as much as her husband, and tipped the beam at just over thirty stone.

The Ringling outfit married these two off in tremendous style at Madison Square Garden, New York. It was a heaven-sent publicity stunt, of course, but the marriage was a genuine love romance, and the oddly assorted couple have lived happily together for fifteen years.

One of the most astounding circus freaks was the four-legged, two-bodied woman. Her name was Myrtle Corbin, and she came from Texas.

Myrtle was a sensational hit in the circus sideshows for years. Then she married and had five children.

This presented rather a difficult legal problem, and Myrtle's family was described as "five heirs of her bodies." There were two from one and three from the other.

SHOWMEN and circus bosses have used the wedding of their human

Convoy System Beats The Nazi U-Boats

OUT of 10,782 British, Allied and neutral vessels convoyed in the first six months of war, only 25 ships have been lost.

Among the 1,075 neutral ships which have been convoyed, only two have been lost.

So the current rate is 430 to 1 against a British ship in convoy being sunk and 537 1/2 to 1 against a neutral ship suffering.

Giving these figures, the Admiralty commented: "There is little wonder that neutral shipping shows an increasing desire to join the British convoys."

It was also disclosed that only one of the six Nazi ships which made a dash from Vigo, Northern Spain, a fortnight ago, to try to reach home with precious cargoes, managed to get there.

Three were captured, one scuttled herself and two were wrecked at the northern end of the Norwegian territorial corridor.

Four German ships had scuttled themselves to avoid capture—Wolfsburg, 6,201 tons; Heidelberg, 6,630 tons; Troja, 2,390 tons; and Arucas, 3,369 tons.

The Arucas, which carried a valuable cargo of mercury, was the last of the six German ships to leave Vigo.

In addition to two British ships lost by enemy action during the week ended Sunday midnight, one Allied ship of 5,301 tons was sunk and five neutral ships, representing 13,984 tons.

Many New Ships

Total losses during the week were eight British, Allied and neutral vessels of 21,231 tons—less than half the average tonnage lost each week since the outbreak of war.

The two British ships lost were Albano (1,178 tons) and Cato (710 tons), making the British losses the exceptionally low figure of 1,888 tons. The Allied ship was the P.L.M. 23.

WIFE AND MAN GIVE LIVES FOR BOY

IN trying to rescue a boy who fell into a reservoir at Fagley Woods, Bradford, Mrs. Gath, thirty-two of Norbury-road, Bradford, and Mr. Bewell, of Ranelagh-avenue, Bradford, lost their lives.

The boy, Leslie Harvey, of Hutton-terrace, Ecclehill, was also drowned.

A thirteen-year-old girl, Joan Cartwright, of Hall-road, Bradford, went to his rescue.

Then Mr. Bewell and Mrs. Gath tried to save the boy and girl. They, too, fell into thirty feet of water.

Edward McLoughlin, aged fifteen, and Thomas Ward, both of Ranelagh-avenue, tried to assist.

Ward tied a rope to a pole and pushed it along to Mrs. Gath. She failed to hold it.

McLoughlin succeeded in rescuing Joan Cartwright.

Fell In

Maureen Gath, nine-year-old daughter of the dead woman, said: "I was playing with ten other children when Leslie Harvey fell in."

Joan Cartwright went to Leslie's aid and cries of the children attracted Mr. Bewell, who ran to the side and dived in. As he approached Leslie he went under.

"Then I saw mother come rushing towards the dam, and although she is a non-swimmer, she went in and tried to reach Leslie. Mr. Bewell had then disappeared."

Mrs. Gath's husband is believed to be on active service in the Army.

Harvey's father stood on the bank of the reservoir assisting in the rescue operations, while Mrs. Bewell watched for a time from her garden near by.

2000 Scientists Can Find No Work in War

MOSQUITO EXPERT DUSTS BOOKS

MORE than 2000 British scientists, whose skill and knowledge could be of great use in the country's war effort, are unemployed, it is revealed by the secretary of the Association of Scientific Workers.

Many scientists whose research laboratories were closed down at the beginning of the war have been absorbed into various Government departments, but in a number of cases have been given purely administrative positions, in which their specialised experience is not needed.

The secretary of the association said: "Our chief criticism is that many of the laboratories which have been closed down were concentrating on improving nutritive values of foodstuffs, which is even more valuable in war-time than in peace."

Outstanding Authority

"There would have been far less difficulty regarding food rationing and agricultural planning if the scientific viewpoint had been considered more."

As I turned to leave the Bedford-row headquarters of the association I saw a man dusting copies of scientific publications.

"Although in his early thirties, he is one of the outstanding authorities on combating the spread of the mosquito pest. He had been unemployed since war began."

COULD "GINGER" UP WAR

DISCUSSING the possibility of the appointment of a British Minister of Defence, with unified control of the Services, the Springfield Republican writes:

"Such an arrangement would be more compact and probably more efficient than keeping the Navy, Army, and Air Force separate, with a fourth Minister for their co-ordination."

"If a post of this kind is to be created, Mr. Churchill is the obvious choice, whatever may be said about his principles. His appointment as General-Director of operations by sea, by land, and by air would unquestionably ginger up the war."

ANOTHER SAMPLE OF RED WRATH

Direct hit scored on an apartment house in Helsingfors ripped the structure from top to bottom. The hit was by a bomb dropped from a Russian plane, during one of many air attacks. Volunteers search for victims.

BERLIN ADMITS 32 U-BOATS HAVE BEEN DESTROYED

By DAVID WOODWARD
 News Chronicle Special Correspondent

AMSTERDAM.

GERMAN Admiralty officials have recently admitted that 32 U-boats are now so long overdue that they must be considered as lost.

As some of the boats are out up to eight weeks before being officially counted as overdue, it is clear that this total does not represent anything like the full extent of German submarine losses.

What it does represent, however, is approximately three-quarters of the total number of boats with which Germany started the war, for according to the semi-official Prussian book "Taschenbuch—Der Kriegsflootten" the Reich on September 1 had 43 submarines.

Since then about 50 of the German submarines building when the war began have been completed, while the last eight laid down under the 1939 programme are expected to be ready during February or March.

99 Building
 Two boats understood to bear the Nos. U 100 and U 101, laid down for the Yugo-Slav Navy before the outbreak of hostilities, are also expected to be finished soon.

By the end of February all 99 of the German submarines known to have been building when the war broke out should be at sea. Estimating losses since the German figure of 32 missing boats was compiled, it would seem most unlikely that the Germans would have more than 60 boats then available.

As a submarine spends only about one-third of her time on war stations, owing to the need to return home for fuel and repairs, this leaves only 20 boats available for warfare against British and neutral shipping, a total which has been admitted by the Germans to be quite inadequate.

Nazis Act While Dictators Talk

LONDON, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—While Mussolini and Hitler were talking together at Brenner Pass Nazi war was busy sinking another neutral ship.

She was an Italian collier, the Tina Primo of 5,000 tons. The ship was broken in two by an explosion off the coast of England. One of her crew died and several others are in hospital.

Harpist To Give Recital In Colony

The public will have the opportunity of hearing two artists new to Hongkong at the Regent Room of the Peninsula Hotel at 7.15 p.m. on Thursday, March 28. They are Solange Renie (Mde. J. Siguer), harpist, and Angelika Meesler-Steinshneider, mezzo-soprano. Mr. J. R. M. Smith is prevented by illness from conducting the string orchestra, which will now be under the direction of Professor N. A. Tonoff.

Solange Renie is the niece and pupil of the famous French harpist, Henriette Renie, one movement of whose harp concertos she will play with the orchestra. She will also play with the orchestra Debussy's Auxiliary, Gloucester Building, First Dance Sacre and Dance Profane and in addition two groups of harp solos.

Solange Renie studied at the Conservatoire de Paris, and was one of the members of the Renie Septette where she took the place of Grand-jany on his departure for America. Since coming to the Far East (where her husband is in the French Consular Service) she has given many successful concerts in Shanghai, Singapore, Tientsin and Japan, and recently was invited by Mde. M. Quizon, wife of the President of the Philippines, to give private concerts for her. Solange Renie will also give a short radio broadcast on March 21.

In addition, Angelika Meesler-Steinshneider, mezzo-soprano, from the Vienna Opera, will contribute two groups of songs.

The concert is being arranged by the Foreign Auxiliary to the National Red Cross Society of China and the proceeds will be used for the Kwai-yang Orthopaedic Hospital for wounded and disabled soldiers and civilians.

R.A.F. Rain Bombs On Sylt In Dramatic All-Night Vengeance Attack AMMUNITION DUMP AT HORNUM BLOWN UP: RECKLESS PILOTS

By REUEL S. MOORE
UNITED PRESS STAFF CORRESPONDENT

LONDON, MAR. 20 (UP).—BRITAIN TOOK SWIFT VENGEANCE LAST NIGHT FOR THE NAZI RAID ON THE ORKNEY ISLANDS.

IN THE GREATEST AIR RAID OF THE WAR, PROBABLY ONE OF THE MOST SUSTAINED THE WORLD HAS EVER KNOWN, R.A.F. BOMBERS RAINED A NIGHT-LONG STREAM OF BOMBS ON GERMANY'S ISLAND FORTRESS OF SYLT.

WAVE AFTER WAVE OF BRITISH PLANES RELENTLESSLY ROARED OVER THE GERMAN BASE IN ATTACKS WHICH, COMMENCING SHORTLY AFTER DUSK, WERE MAINTAINED ALMOST UNTIL DAWN.

Salvo after salvo of giant 1,000lb. bombs were released as the squadrons of Wellington and Wellesley bombers power-dived from the night sky to within a thousand feet of their objectives, their pilots showing a reckless disregard for the intense anti-aircraft fire to which they were subjected.

HOLLAND HEARS 82 EXPLOSIONS

The attack was easily the longest any belligerent has launched in wartime, and it was not until the early hours of the morning that the last British machine returned to its base "somewhere in England."

At least 82 explosions were audible in Holland.

One bomb is believed to have exploded a huge munitions dump, for reports from observers in neutral territory tell of a terrific explosion followed by a huge fire, the flames and smoke of which reached high into the sky.

MUNITION DUMP BLOWN UP

The brunt of the attack was borne by the Nazi air base at Hornum. It is from here that the Germans launched their attack on the Orkneys, and from which they launched their attack on British and neutral shipping.

It is almost certain that Hornum has sustained heavy damage. The munition dump was apparently exploded by one of the first ten bombs dropped in a midnight raid.

The explosion of the bombs was followed by a terrific blast which was audible in Holland 38 miles away.

First indication that a heavy British raid was in progress was conveyed to an electrified House of Commons shortly after 9 p.m., when Sir Kingsley Wood, the Minister for Air, reported the receipt of radio messages from the leader of one of the British squadrons, reporting that he was about to attack.

CONTINUES ATTACKS ALL NIGHT

Thereafter, the British planes flew over in a continuous stream of squadrons at between half-hour and fifty minute intervals.

The last raid was completed shortly before 3 a.m.

The Air Ministry was in constant radio communication with the British squadrons. Messages were flashed in code to the Air Ministry and were instantly rushed to the Premier, Mr. Chamberlain, who permitted them to be broadcast to the public while the raid was continuing.

This running commentary on an air raid is unprecedented in the history of warfare.

FAST ACTION BY R.A.F. PILOTS

Meanwhile, from Roemoe and other nearby Dutch cities, news correspondents were flashing half-hourly reports of further British attacks.

The "Exchange Telegraph's" Correspondent at Roemoe said that the raids commenced at 8.15 p.m., when two R.A.F. machines, flying at a low altitude, crossed the Sylt and dropped eight bombs on the northern point of the island. The British machines had disappeared before the Germans could even bring their Air Raid sirens into action.

VIOLENT EXPLOSIONS HEARD

The Germans were prepared for the next R.A.F. squadron, which ran into a barrage of searchlights and A.A. shrapnel. This squadron came over at 8.20 p.m., dropping its bombs on the northern point of the island.

Simultaneously, heavy firing was heard from the direction of Heligoland Bight, and many bombs were seen exploding on Hornum, at the southern point of the island, and on the Hindenburg Dam, which connects Sylt with the mainland.

The detonation of a single bomb was heard at 8.40 p.m., and a few minutes later there was a violent explosion followed by a brilliant flash which lit up the whole island.

WALL OF FIRE ACROSS ISLAND

The terrific explosion, which broke windows 38 miles away, was followed by a

DUPONT HEIRESS INJURED

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Mar. 19 (UP).—Mrs. Ethel Dupont Roosevelt, co-heiress to the Dupont munitions millions and wife of President Roosevelt's third son, Franklin Delano Jr., suffered a pelvic fracture to-day when she fell from her horse.

She was unconscious when she was picked up.

Mrs. Roosevelt was immediately rushed to hospital where her condition to-night was reported as not being serious.

She is the daughter of Mr. Eugene du Pont. She was married in 1937 and has one son, Franklin D. Roosevelt III.

Big Tests By U.S. Navy

Lessons Of Current War
To Be Learned

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

ABOARD U.S.S. PENNSYLVANIA AT SEA, Mar. 19 (UP).

Twenty-one, giant American warships are expected to converge on the Hawaiian Islands during the current manoeuvres.

Many will voyage further west towards Guam.

It is reliably stated that the manoeuvres are to test developments in naval warfare as affected by the present European War.

Five Important Tests

The Grand Fleet drama off Montevideo, which upset many pre-war notions held, apparently, by all Admiralties except the British, will be one of the fundamental developments which will be the subject of test in the current manoeuvres. Other subjects will include:

1.—Vulnerability of land-locked naval bases to undersea craft, a question that has been changed by the ease with which a Nazi U-boat entered Scapa Flow and British submarines entered the Sylt area.

2.—Effectiveness of mines and torpedoes on anchored warships.

3.—Effectiveness of A.A. defence aboard warships.

4.—Value of the convoy system against air raids.

Yangtze Reopening: New Promise

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

NANKING, Mar. 20 (Donel).—An assurance that the Yangtze River would be re-opened to third-power shipping as soon as possible was given last night by General Nishio, Supreme Commander of the Japanese Forces in China, in an interview with Mr. H. H. Thomas, British Consul at Shanghai, and Mr. E. F. Stanton, U. S. Consul at Nanking.

Various hazards still existed along the river, however, he claimed.

Calm Day On The Western Front

PARIS, Mar. 19 (Reuters).—Today's communiqué says that there was a calm day on the whole front.

West of the Saar, a German reconnaissance party took one of our ambulances and suffered fairly serious losses.

French Shock Troops Go Into Action On Western Front

FIGHTING BREAKS OUT ACROSS THE RHINE

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

BERLIN, Mar. 19 (UP).—FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE THE OUTBREAK OF WAR, FIGHTING OCCURRED ACROSS THE RHINE RIVER TO-DAY, WHEN FRENCH TROOPS OPENED MACHINE GUN ATTACKS ON THE GERMANS ENTRENCHED ON THE EASTERN BANK.

This admission was made in the D.N.B. official report of today's activity.

French shock troops were also observed on reconnaissance in considerable force.

The Nazi report adds that weak French artillery fire occurred at the usual points in front of the Siegfried Line the first time the Nazis have mentioned their "West Wall" as being the object of French artillery fire.

No Man's Land Scouting

"At some points the enemy artillery fire was answered," the communiqué adds.

"Mutual scouting activity developed in No Man's Land, and enemy patrols were forced to return without completing their task."

"The weather permitted very little aerial activity."

NOW YOU KNOW

French "shock-troops" were observed in No Man's Land yesterday. What are shock troops?

The War Office does not recognise the existence of shock troops as such; technically speaking, there is no such thing.

But, especially as far as the German Army is concerned, shock troops are taken to mean specially picked troops of excellent physique—good tough soldiers. They do not man the front line, but are kept in positions a little to the rear until they are needed for a vigorous attack. When they have done their job of work they are withdrawn behind the lines again.

Nazism Like A Ghastly Disease

Outspoken Speech By Mr. Paul McNutt

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

NEW YORK, Mar. 19 (UP).—National Socialism, as it exists to-day in Germany, is a ghastly disease like typhoid.

"The germ, like the Germans, are always with us. But we Americans can protect ourselves if we know how to keep our resistance high."

America's Danger

This was part of a speech at the Women's Jewish Congress in New York to-day, by Mr. P. V. McNutt, former Governor General of the Philippines, currently Federal Security Administrator, and contender for Presidential honours at the forthcoming elections.

Mr. McNutt added that America was not greatly menaced by the danger of an invasion by the legions of Stalin or Hitler.

"Our danger lies in continuing along the road permitting the centralization of control of business and finance until we are driven by poverty and despair to accept a dictator of our own," he said.

PARIS, Mar. 20 (UP).—A new reciprocal trade agreement has been concluded between Spain and Japan. It provides for the exchange of goods to the value of eight million Yen.

CONVOY SYSTEM BEATS U-BOATS

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

LONDON, Mar. 19 (UP).—The convoy system has broken the back of Germany's U-Boat warfare, as it did in the last war.

The Admiralty announced to-day that the entire Allied and neutral merchant shipping losses as a result of submarine and mine action last week totalled only 23,992 tons. Almost all this tonnage was sunk by magnetic mines.

The ships comprised three British, two French and four neutral vessels.

Submarine Campaign Fails

Only four ships have been sunk by U-Boats since February 24. This is a clear indication that the Nazi submarine warfare has failed.

The opinion is now expressed in London that U-Boat losses have been so heavy that Germany has recalled all submarines, since there has been no attacks on shipping for some days now.

Despite the advantage enjoyed by Germany as a result of illegal methods of warfare such as mines and a "sink on sight" policy, and also by the fact that most of her shipping has been swept from the seas, Germany's losses last week exceeded those of Britain and France combined and were only 7,000 tons less than the combined losses of Allies and neutrals.

Germany's Losses

Among the German shipping casualties for the same week in which 23,992 tons of Allied and neutral ships were sunk, were the Hannover (5,537 tons), captured and taken to Kingston, Jamaica on March 13; the La Coruna (7,414 tons) scuttled by her own crew, and the Escherich (3,305 tons) scuttled off the coast of Jutland on March 13.

Pope's Opinion

Mr. Welles is believed to have expressed the opinion that the conflict can be limited to its present bounds.

The Pope is believed to have informed Mr. Welles, on the basis of diplomatic information reaching the Holy See, that Rumania appears at present to be heading towards a secure neutrality; that Yugo-Slavia is also secure and that Germany is showing great interest in persuading Soviet Russia to maintain peace in the Balkans.

NAZIS CAN'T FOOL DUTCH

Reject Explanation Of Sea Warfare

AMSTERDAM, Mar. 19 (Reuters).—Nazi attempts to justify the German methods of sea warfare have been rejected by the Netherlands liberal newspaper "Nieuwe Rotterdamse Courant."

The paper declares that on a number of points the neutrals have formed their own opinion, an opinion which differs considerably from the German standpoint.

It is not only according to British reports that Dutch crews have been shot at and Dutch ships sunk, says the paper.

Nearly the whole of the German procedure against the Dutch ships has aroused indignation in Holland.

LONDON, Mar. 20 (UP).—The President of the Supreme Soviet has ratified the Russo-Finnish Peace Treaty.

LATEST Eyewitness Account Of Raids

"I saw one R.A.F. bomber, apparently crippled, flying low, out to sea, but it was not pursued."

"At 8.45 p.m. another attack was launched on Hornum and I heard the detonation of ten bombs."

"Following several other distinct attacks, another wave of British machines came from the north and dropped bombs on List and on Hornum."

"The planes continued over the island and dropped two bombs on Vantum. Then one of the machines flew back to List and dropped another bomb. It was greeted with an amazing barrage of anti-aircraft fire, but was not hit."

"The next attack was launched at 11 p.m. We heard the roar of the British machines as they flew to their destination and then the third of their bombs."

"All along the mainland people stood and watched the explosions, the brilliant fires and the pyrotechnic display furnished by bombs, anti-aircraft shrapnel, star shells and searchlights."

Around The Courses

(I wonder if this is a bit of Einstein's theory of relativity: It is all relative.)

Included in these complicated movements is the transference of weight from one foot to the other. There is the advice to hit against a braced left leg. What do these things imply? The first is the bringing of the body into the shot and the second is the checking of that force so as not to take one completely off one's feet.

Mind you, the wrists must have that certain strength in order to hold the club firm at the speed with which it is hitting the ball, but they have no great rebound to counteract the momentum of the club-head does the very greater proportion of the work in sending that ball on its journey—the wrists are to it that the club-head is travelling along the right path.

In the iron shots, I grant, that the wrists do have a greater burden to carry. The arc of swing is not so full, and a greater "punch" has to be put into the shot with the arms and wrists. This is because the club is shorter and the swing is shorter. The speed of the club-head has to be generated over a much shorter distance. But the body work is still there—the transference of weight is still the same—and I wonder if it could ever be computed in terms of energy how much work is done by the arms (especially the forearm).

Ernest Jones in his book "Swinging Into Golf" points out that he can sit on a chair and hit a ball some 200 yards down the fairway. Jimmy Thomson, one of the longest hitters in golf to-day, almost pivots himself off his feet and his wrists don't do that while Alex Morrison has shown in a diagram that the muscles which do the greatest work in a golf shot are those of the back and thighs.

So it seems that elsewhere, too, there are different means of attaining the same end with a golf ball so why bother for much about how you get there as long as do?

THE annual golf match between Kowloon and Happy Valley will be played at Kowloon on Friday, and I notice that the first game of the singles is between the redoubtable golfers from the Royal Naval Dockyard—A. E. Davies (Kowloon) and J. T. Smith (Happy Valley).

Smith is the Colony champion who has done such great things at the Royal Hongkong G.C., Fanling, while Davies is his counterpart who has cornered the market of trophies at Kowloon during the past year. The odds are a Smith winning this match, but it would be worth following.

Nazis Ate While Dictators Talk

LONDON, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—While Mussolini and Hitler were talking together at Brenner Pass Nazi sea warfare was busy sinking another neutral ship.

She was an Italian collier, the Tina Primo of 5,000 tons. The ship was broken in two by an explosion off the coast of England. One of her crew died and several others are in hospital.

A Look Through The "Telegraph"

50 YEARS AGO

March 20, 1890.
It appears, says an American paper, that there are only about one hundred native born Americans left in the United States Navy. All the rest are Chinese, negroes, Portuguese, Greeks, Cannucks, Greeks, Malays, and Fijians. The one hundred are now lonely and are about to petition the Secretary of the Navy to give them an occasional week ashore so that they shall not forget how to speak the English language.

The popular belief in the sanitary effect of red underwear in a clinging superstitious, nothing more. Red was in ancient times considered a potent charm against the evil eye. At one time in the 16th century when the evil eye was deemed to be especially rampant in England, there was a boom in red tape which it has never since experienced. Many people to this day believe that a red string worn about the neck is a sure preventive of asthma, measles and mumps. The relics of this faith are to be seen in the preservation of the great confidence which obtains in the medical virtues of red flannel, and a not so widespread belief that the milky road is better than any other way. As to red flannel, it has the single merit over other colours that the dyeing material used, destroyed at vesting of animal life in the wool, and that red flannel does not shrink as white flannel does.

A new use has been found for the carrier pigeon in Russia—carrying negatives taken in a balloon to the photographers. The "Novoe Vremya" gives an account of some experiments to this effect recently made, in which the Czar's winter palace was photographed in the air, the plates being sealed in paper bags impervious to light, tied to a pigeon's foot, and sent to the developer.

The use of compressed air as a motive power for tramways in France is extending. The system adopted in that country since 1879. The inventor, asserts that the system is far more economical than horse traction—the cost of coal per day of a machine equal to that of a horse power being only one-fifth as much. The machinery is simple and does not require a skilled mechanic to control it.

25 YEARS AGO

March 25, 1915.

A Zeppelin has dropped bombs on Calais, killing seven station employees.

The destruction of German power in influence in the Far East now having been accomplished, says the "London and China Express," the future of the Pacific—a problem that long filled the minds of the Chancellors of the world having interests in those waters—should be of early solution. The ex-German Colonies, of course, shall remain under the German flag, and in all probability shall be administered by Australia, save, perhaps, New Guinea, every inch of which must eventually come under the British flag by treaty or cession. Never again can Great Britain afford to take the risks that she has taken in the past 20 years by opposing a strong Power to challenge her supremacy at almost every point on the five continents.

10 YEARS AGO

March 20, 1930.
Hopes for the establishment of an air mail service between Hongkong and London, via Singapore and India, in the not too distant future, are encouraged by a statement in the House of Commons, yesterday, when Mr. F. Montagu introduced the Air Estimates.

5 YEARS AGO

March 20, 1935.
Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, the Prime Minister, to-day told the House of Commons that Great Britain had already taken steps to defend herself against possible air raids in the future. The estimates provide for a programme envisaging an increase of the fighting machines of the R.A.F. to a total of 1,400 by 1938.

Declaring that the British Air Defence programme was entirely inadequate, Mr. Winston Churchill to-day caused a sensation in the House of Commons when he warned that the British Air Force had been allowed to stand inferior in strength to that of Germany. The country was faced with something very like the possibility of a resumption of the War which ended in 1918, he challenged.

Speaking for the Government, Sir Philip Sassoon, Under-Secretary for Air, admitted that the political situation was most anxious, but asserted that the Government was determined to see that a no-sides was left unturned for the adequate defence of the country and the Empire.

The feature of the debate on the Air Estimates was Mr. Winston Churchill's address. He bluntly asserted that, last November, Great Britain and Germany were virtually of equal air strength, but insisted that since then the British position had materially worsened relatively.

"We have entered into a period of greatest peril and are faced with something very like the possibility of a resumption of the war which ended in 1918," Mr. Churchill cried.

However, he still hoped and believed that the danger of armed conflict in Europe might be averted.

Replying for the Government, Sir Philip Sassoon, said that according to the Government's latest information he had every reason to think that Great Britain was still stronger than Germany in the air.

COULD "GINGER" UP WAR

DISCUSSING the possibility of the appointment of a British Minister of Defence, with unified control of the Services, the Springfield Republican writes: "Such an arrangement would be more efficient than keeping the Navy, Army, and Air Force separate, with a fourth Minister for their co-ordination. 'If a part of this kind is to be created,' Mr. Churchill is the obvious choice, whatever may be said about his principles. His appointment as General-Director of operations by sea, by land, and by air would unquestionably ginger up the war."

NANKING REGIME

Tokyo Will Negotiate Treaty With Wang

Tokyo, Mar. 19.
The new Japanese envoy to the Wang Ching-wei regime, General Kobayashi Abe, former Premier, has been invested with full powers to adjust and regulate the new relations on the basis agreed last December between Wang Ching-wei and the Japanese authorities in China, and to negotiate the treaty governing those relations after the inauguration of the new Central China Government, according to Japanese reports.

The treaty, consisting of brief but explicit stipulations providing for the clarification of the joint responsibility and of the mission imposed upon Japan, Manchukuo and China for the attainment of the aims outlined in the famed Konyo statement of December 22, 1939, will be the highest principle in Sino-Japanese relations.

Upon signature, the treaty will be made public by Japan and China in the form of a joint simultaneous announcement, whereupon Japan and the new Central Government of China will enter into new relationship and the mission of the special envoy will end.

The envoy will be accompanied to China by a large suite, including representatives of the War Office, the Navy Ministry and Foreign Office and a section of staff members on the China Affairs Board, a Central organ vested with broad powers to deal with all affairs relating to China, particularly in the field of economy.—Reuter.

Gandhi Criticised

Ramgarh, Mar. 19.
Subhas Chandra Bose, President of the All India "Anti-Compromise" Congress, in his presidential address, denounced Gandhi and the present right wing Congress high command, charging the high command with sidetracking the issue by the demand for a fake constituent assembly.

The speaker added that in the event of a compromise with Imperialism being the effect of such efforts, the left wing would have to fight not only Imperialism but its new fangled Indian allies as well. This must necessarily mean that the struggle against Imperialism would be converted into a civil war between the Indians themselves.

The right wing to frame her own constitution without outside interference was demanded by Maulana Abdululalam Azad.

The Maulana said that the foundation of India's problem was whether she wanted to determine her own fate. The whole question of Indian nationalism was based thereon. The British Government did not accept the position that India had a right to self-determination and he urged that India go forward on the path of non-co-operation. He added that an inquiry should be addressed to the world regarding whether there was a better solution to the problem than the one proposed by Congress.

"Our success depends upon three factors—unity, discipline and full confidence in Gandhi's leadership," he said.—Reuter.

British Boycott Plan

Ramgarh, Mar. 19.
Pundit K. Santanam suggested a boycott of British goods and other measures of non-co-operation instead of civil disobedience throughout the country. A programme of non-co-operation which need not land anybody in gaol would be an effective protest against the British Government, he said.—United Press.

ENTERTAINMENTS

Partners commence in the ordinary dancing position for the verse and facing each other for the chorus. Steps described are gentlemen's, lady commences on the opposite foot.

Commencing on the Left Foot. The One Step. 8 Walking steps forward, moving the left arm backwards and forwards as you walk.

One complete turn to the right, taking a beat balance from one foot to the other—swaying the shoulders from side to side as you turn.

Now repeat the above figure, 8 One Steps and 1 complete turn, finish facing each other and shout "ooh."

Now for the steps of the Chorus. Facing each other, commence on the Right Foot. 3 Running steps forward, on the 4th beat slip forward with bended knees—shouting "Well," slightly lifting trousers while lady slightly lifts dress. Then 4 running steps back to places still facing each other.

Well!

Commence on Right Foot. Running towards partner link Right Arm, make a circle, and back to places.

Hopping on one foot, then the other with the knees up, 4 Facing each other and 4 moving towards each other, finishing with the shout "ooh."

Now repeat the Verse, and Chorus as many times as desired.

KNEES UP MOTHER BROWN

The New Hongkong Dance Craze

"KNEES UP MOTHER BROWN" is Hongkong's latest party

dance craze. It was introduced to the Colony on Saturday night by Sandra and Fredric Hartnell, the star turn entertainers at the Grill Room of the Hongkong Hotel, and became an instantaneous success.

About a hundred couples essayed the dance after it had been demonstrated by the Hartnells, and voted it a worthy successor to "Lambeth Walk" and "Boomp a Daisy."

"Knees up Mother Brown" was introduced in London as recently as December 12 and is now sweeping England.

The routine was devised by Adele England, principal of the Locarno School of Dancing in London, who is responsible for several other successes of a like nature.

"Tree" (so popular with His Majesty the King). "The Park Parade" and war-time's "The Handsome Territorial." "Knees Up Mother Brown" is a worthy successor. Its simplicity assures its success, for anyone can dance it.

THE first eight steps are a simple "cake-walk" (you'll recall from the movie that the stiff-legged "cake-walk" was the first jazz number invented by Irene and Vernon Castle). In "Knees Up Mother Brown" the arms are also used. The cake walk is followed by a complete turn to the right, swaying the shoulders from side to side as you turn. Then the cake walk again, finishing with another complete turn and a shouted "ooh!"

Then comes the Chorus. Facing each other, gentlemen commence on right foot, ladies on left foot, and take three running steps forward. On the fourth beat the couple slip forward with bended knees—shouting "Well." The gentleman slightly lifts his trousers and the lady slightly lifts her dress. Then four running steps backwards.

It is the fifth novelty dance to be introduced by C. L. Hermann, who was responsible for "Lambeth Walk," "The Chestnut

ANNEXATION BY JAPAN

FOUR MAJOR POWERS—Britain, France, Holland and the United States—are opposed to Japan's annexation of the Spratly Islands (also known as Storm Island).

Spratly is the main island in an archipelago, and has an area of only 120 acres.

Its importance is due solely to its strategic position, for it lies 410 miles from French Indo-China and some 600 miles from British North Borneo.

Japan claims that the reefs forming the Spratly group have long been known as ownerless and that since 1917 Japanese nationals had undertaken the economic development of the archipelago.

In 1933 Captain Spratly of the British whaler "Cyrus" sighted the island and plotted its position on the chart, but it was not until 1939 that it was annexed by any country.

In that year a landing party from the French minesweeper "Malicieuse" was put ashore, the tricolour was hoisted, and the commander formally took possession of the island in the name of France.

JAPANESE AGREE TO WITHDRAW TROOPS

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

NANKING, Mar. 19 (UP).—The Propaganda Minister, Lin Pai-sheng, on behalf of Wang Ching-wei, said to-day that it was agreed to return to China the military control the Japanese forces exercise in the occupied areas. Wang Ching-wei declares that this will assure an army establishment of the new Chinese Government.

The Central Political Conference opens on Wednesday, the meeting lasting three or four days, for the purpose of preparing for the "return of the National Government to Nanking" which will be possibly proclaimed next week, although the date is not fixed. Twenty-two out of 30 delegates are former officials of the National Government which evacuated to Nanking in 1937.

Busy Conference

The conference will pass a resolution empowering Wang Ching-wei to determine a policy for readjustment of Sino-Japanese relations, draw up an outline for establishment of the new Government, and also decide the date of establishment and structure as well as abolition of the Peiping and Nanking regimes, determine the political programme of the new regime, establish a policy vis-a-vis Chungking and the question of its liquidation, and also decide the convocation of the National Assembly and the question of enforcing a constitutional government.

FINNISH CABINET TO RESIGN

Moscow Pressure To Be Ignored

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

HELSINGFORS, March 19 (UP).—Premier Ryt's Cabinet will resign to-morrow as a matter of form after the peace ratifications have been exchanged with Russia.

The measure is being openly discussed in the press and it is expected that the new Cabinet will eliminate the policies followed by M. Tanner as Foreign Minister, and that pressure from Moscow will be ignored.

Delegation in Moscow

MOSCOW, March 19 (UP).—The Finnish delegation headed by M. Paasikivi arrived here at 5.12 p.m. to-day.

OBITUARY

DEATH OF MR. LI CHOR CHI

His many friends in the Colony will be shocked to learn of the passing of Mr. Li Chor-chi, Accountant of the Overseas Chinese Banking Corporation and Secretary of the Ho Hong Co., Ltd.

Mr. Li passed away at 7.15 this morning at the Queen Mary Hospital, where he had been confined since last Friday, suffering from acute gastric trouble.

Born in Sydney 52 years ago, Mr. Li came to Hongkong when still a young man. He spent several years in Saigon where he studied singing and languages. A tenor of no mean ability he could sing in Italian, Spanish and French, and was a fluent French scholar. He used to broadcast over ZBW and had organised many concerts on behalf of various charities.

The late Mr. Li came from a well-known family. He is survived by two brothers and two sisters—Mr. William Yinson Lee, manager of the Chinese Branch of the Sun Life Assurance Co., and well-known charitable worker, Mr. James Zee-min Lee, who recently paid a visit to Hongkong from Hollywood, where he had appeared in a number of films. Mrs. Rose Chow, vice-President of the Chinese Women's Club and daughter-in-law of the Hon. Sir Shou-son Chow, and Mrs. Alice Chow, wife of Mr. C. L. Chow, B.A., F.C.I., T.D. (Birmingham).

There's nothing like white—chisp, starch white—for giving a lift to tired clothes. And if you can't invest in an all-new trimmings. Choose materials that will wash, because the white must be white every time you wear it.

Suggestions here—a frilly petticoat, a blouse, waistbands and a lace yoke—would look fine on any black or dark blue dress.

1 This blouse would look grand under a plain dark suit. It is made of coarse white Irish lace, and tailored. It has a small turn-down collar, long, close sleeves, and the yoke is threaded with velvet ribbon.

3 Any of your good, dark though rather tired-looking gloves can give new life this way. Sew a strip of bold lace up the wrist.

4 This linen petticoat to swing beneath your skirt will give a lot of lift to a tired frock. Flared from the flat hip yoke, the hem is trimmed with crocheted lace and embroidery.

5 Any frock you're bored with could do with this. Cut out the neck to a low square and tuck into it this gilet of fine embroidered lawn. There are wristbands to match.

6 Another dark frock could be made into a pinafore to wear over the organdie blouse. The shoulders are puffed, the long neck line trimmed with an embroidered band.

LAY DYING AMID HER BIRDS WOMAN CUT OFF FROM WORLD FOR 10 YEARS

A WOMAN of ample means, who had cut herself off from the world for ten years, died from exposure to cold because she had no heating in her nine-roomed villa.

This was the story told at the Watford inquest, on Miss Margaret Elizabeth Carter, of Bushey Grove-road, Bushey, Hertfordshire. She was 77.

"I never knew her go outside her house. No tradesmen or postmen ever called," said the man who did odd jobs for her.

Just Said "John"

He was her former milkman, Edward John Narroay, of Queen's-road, Watford. On December 31, when he called, he saw she was in a state of collapse.

He sent for a doctor. She opened her eyes, said "John," then sank back in his arms and died.

It was stated that Miss Carter was wearing a brown skirt and six woollen cardigans pinned with about 50 safety pins. Her hair was covered with brown paper tied up with string.

Kitchen and scullery were full of old newspapers, magazines, books and unopened parcels. She had apparently lived and slept in a recess made in the papers in which it was impossible to lie down.

Bird-Lover

There had been no fire in any of the rooms for a long time. In several rooms downstairs there were pigeons and other birds.

They were all well cared for and there was food in the house, but no heating of any kind.

Miss Cicely Carter, of Kings-road, Richmond, a niece, said her aunt had been a recluse since 1930. She had plenty of clothing and ample means.

The last time she saw her aunt was in 1930. Her father had tried to persuade her to go into a home.

Miss Carter had written to her niece: "I have been having a very bad time as the conditions through which I have lived after my dear dog passed on seemed to have broken me beyond recovery."

THE Registrar at Leicester Bankruptcy Court (Mr. C. Squire) said recently that he could not understand the attitude of a man who, without making any inquiries, gave his wife £1,800 when she asked for it.

Arthur Marston, of Hinckley Road, Leicester, an A.R.P. driver, was being further examined about his affairs. A letter from Marston stated:

"I have learned that my wife has money tucked away somewhere. Where, I don't know. Can you find out? I would like to know where £1,800 has gone in such a short time and no business people paid?"

The hearing was adjourned pending a private examination of Mrs. Marston, which is to be held shortly.

GAULEITER FOR WALES!

AN American woman journalist in London tells a story of a dinner party she attended in Berlin just before the outbreak of war.

She remarked to her neighbour that she was leaving shortly for England.

"Don't do that," he advised her. "You speak German admirably. You also know England and its customs."

"I can find you a good job. For I am to be Gauleiter for Wales. I am busy learning Welsh now."

STOLEN FROM THE SOUTH SEAS MAIDEN

The secret of her strange enchantment! TATTOO for lips instead of pearly coating!

The glamorous little South Seas enchantress doesn't coat her lips with pearly colour that has no allure. Indeed not! Instead, she tattoos them with an alluring transparent red. She knows too, there's no romance in lips that are rough and wrinkled. Hers are soft and smooth. Her secret of fascinating lips can just as easily be yours. Transparencies soften lips and that becomes an almost irresistible part of the lips as they smile. Such is the marvellous new TATTOO Lipstick. See the exciting shades at your favourite store. The Law Courts had also planned a move. But one eminent judge put his foot down on that.

He said: "If British soldiers can face the enemy for a few shillings a day, and our merchant seamen risk their lives in all weathers, the King's judges, who get thousands of pounds a year, need not bolt from their posts because of a bomb attack."

"I shall sit in my court till the bombs start falling. Then, if it proves impossible to bring principals or witnesses here I'll reconsider the matter."

So the courts have stayed in London.

The barristers stayed there too, what was left of them. But that's not much.

The four Inns of Court are looking very empty these days. Here and there you stumble on groups of workmen reconditioning the chambers to make flats and offices out of them.

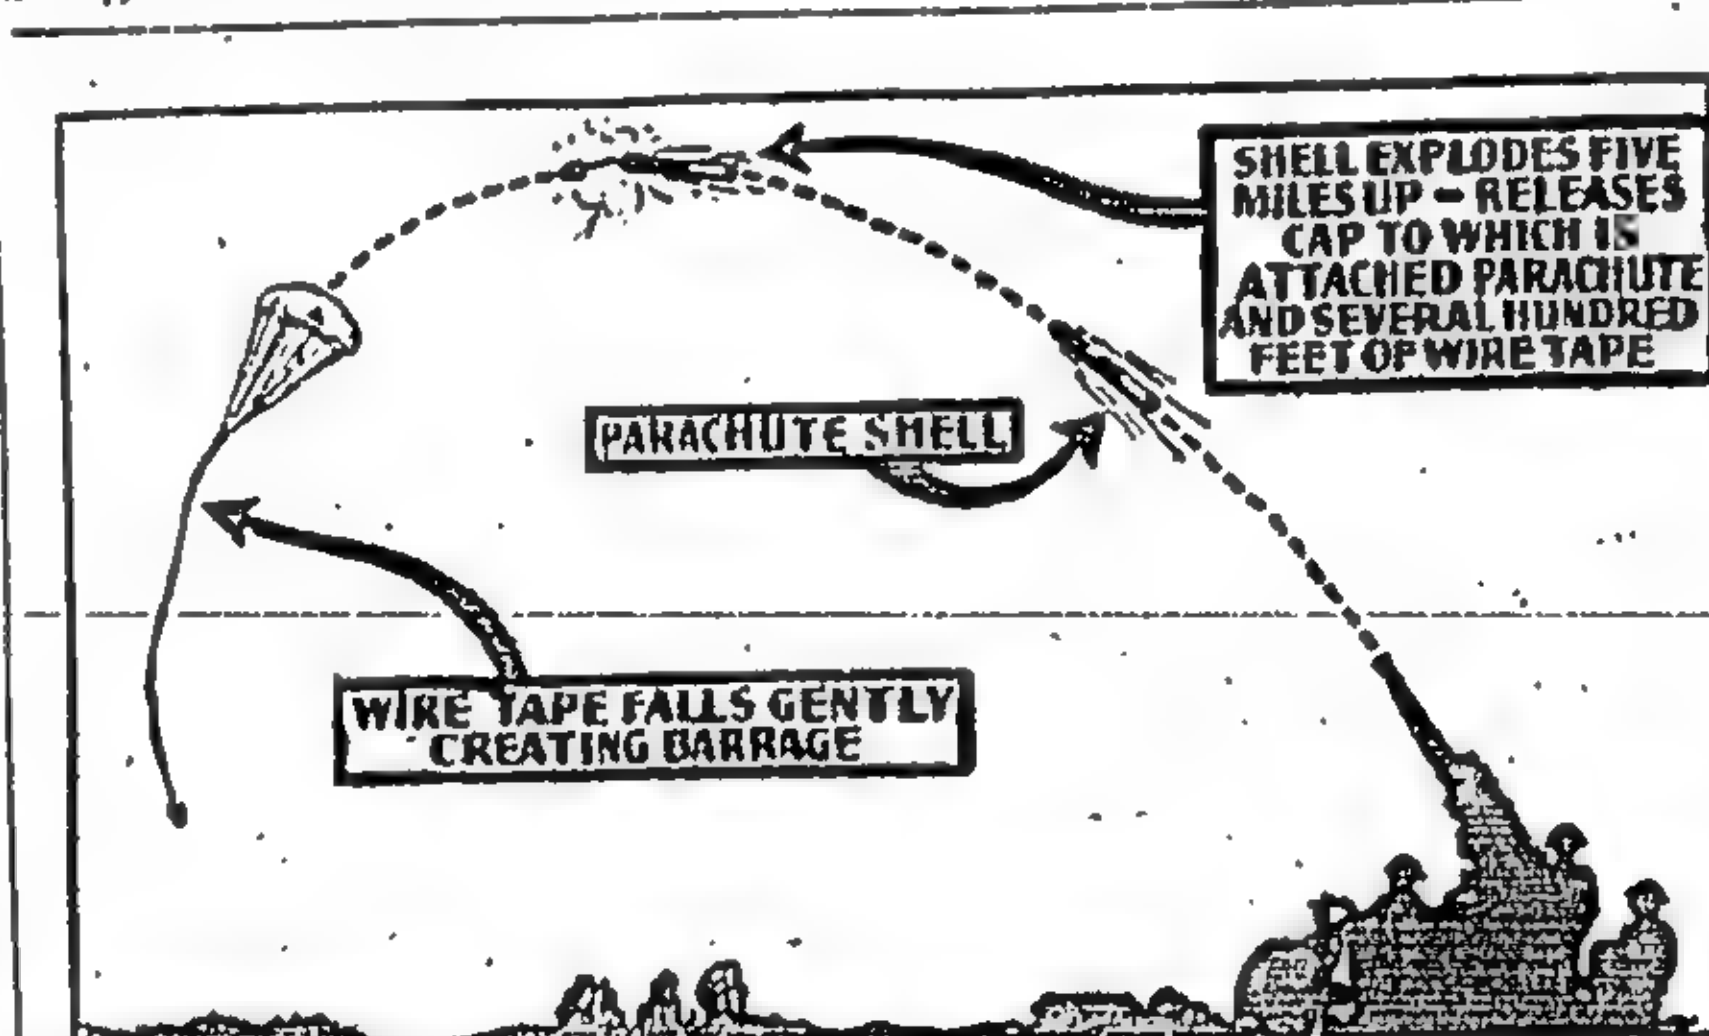

Closed Down

Fifty sets of chambers have closed down in the Temple, and for each set shut down you must reckon on at least three or four. Even the chambers that still carry on have got only two-thirds of their normal tenants left.

All the younger men have joined the forces, many of the older ones are in various Ministries.

There are more barristers in proportion than any other callings in the war-time Civil Service.

BRITAIN has declared war on careless talking. Here are two of the latest "shush-shush" posters now being exhibited at Home.

Parachute Shells To Trap German Planes In Steel Cables

NEW YORK.

INVENTION of a "parachute-shell," a new anti-aircraft weapon, is revealed in Washington.

This shell, which has an effective range of 25,000ft., releases hundreds of feet of steel tape attached to a parachute at a predetermined altitude.

Military officials say that a barrage of these parachute-shells would create a "net" which aeroplanes could not pass.

For Use In France

The new weapon was invented by an American six months ago and has been thoroughly tested.

It is understood that it will shortly be produced in France, and is expected to be used if large-scale raids are made by the Germans.

The shell is fired in the ordinary way, and its nose falls from the case, pulling out the steel tape and the parachute. The purpose of the tape is to foul propellers of opposing planes.

It is declared that the new shell makes the balloon barrage out of date.

Nazi Guns Countered

PARIS.

UNUSUALLY elaborate preparation by the German artillery, which may be a rehearsal for attacks on a larger scale, accompanied a series of raids on French outposts on the Rhine-Meuse front.

Two posts West of the Saar River, about a mile and a half apart, were attacked. For half an hour before-hand the German artillery tried to cut the French wire, and shelled French machine-gun posts in the front line.

In spite of all devices the French counter-battery fire was effective, and the German raiding parties were forced to retire by the French guns and machine-guns, leaving a number of dead between the lines.

Pawns of The Political Game

YESTERDAY'S report that a three-Power agreement between Germany, Italy and Russia is imminent provides a big temptation for jesting comment, and is certain to revive the jokes about Russia becoming the immutable enemy of the Comintern, which were prevalent when the Soviet and Nazi Germany effected their rapprochement. At the same time it is foolish to overlook the serious aspect of a three-Power political pact envisaged in the news despatches. Its effectuation would entail a considerable loss of "face" by the two anti-Comintern States, hitherto sworn enemies of the Soviet and all things which the Russian system represents, but more important would be the political changes it would bring about in southeastern Europe and the Near East. The Balkans, already harassed by the close proximity of Greater Germany and Russia, would find it difficult to resist a tri-Power diplomatic "Biltzkeig" even though the Allies were to make counter guarantees of equal dimension.

It is quite obvious that the proposed rapprochement is not based on any single purpose. All three countries would enter the pact with individual ulterior motives; Germany to gain economic control of the Balkans; Italy to have two strong supporters for her "natural aspirations" in Northeast Africa and the Suez, and Russia for the protection of her illegal conquests in Poland and Finland. This factor of individual and separate aims is the weak point of any political pact between Germany, Russia and Italy. The partners become independent instead of interdependent, a position which may well bring about a quicker disruption of the partnership than any militaristic or economic action by the Allied Powers or the threatened Balkan States.

Hitler's assertion that he does not want the European conflict to be spread to the Balkans and the Near East may be a true reflection of his feelings, but the accompanying theory that a three-Power agreement would guarantee peace in those areas is hard to swallow. The more obvious effect would be to force the Allies into extending the war, if only to prevent Germany from acquiring so easily the economic and weapons which she so badly needs.

It is realization of this possible turn to events which is probably influencing Hitler to seek Italy's positive aid in the war against the democracies. To bring about his economic conquest of the Balkan States, Italy must have the political support of Italy and Russia; to guarantee that conquest against Allied interference he needs the armed support of at least Italy, and, if he can get it, of Russia. Thus, once again, the Balkan States become pawns in the political game of the great nations.

BEYOND THE MAGINOT LINE

IN groups of two, each strictly separated by about 200 yards—the men who occupy the most forward of our positions beyond the Maginot Line, climbed a hill to their lonely outposts in the wood above. Beyond that are the Germans. They move in such small groups because, as the blackboard on the road told them, the climb is all the way under observation from the enemy; and sometimes he lashes off with his machine-guns.

I climbed up to the wood and to its hidden outposts to-day—the first of all the war correspondents out here to be allowed to pay a visit to our men who are in constant contact with the enemy.

THE real "front" lies some miles beyond our reserve line; and to reach it you must drive along exposed roads, and through deep forests where snow still lies on the ground.

You drive through several villages where human beings no longer live, and come finally to the blackboard on the road.

Beyond this point no vehicle may travel, no man may walk with more than one companion at his side; and no man may venture unless he has a tin hat perched uncomfortably on his head.

Plum trees line the road that leads up to the wood on the hill's summit; and fields from which last year's harvest was never fully gathered, roll across a wide valley bordered by woods into whose depths enemy night patrols occasionally penetrate.

Beyond the valley and on the summit of its enclosing ridge the German machine gunners lie waiting for parties sufficiently large to make it worth their while to fire.

When you are through the wire beyond the wood, you are but a few yards from positions from which our men watch, and sometimes check with their machine-guns, the daily movements of the enemy.

FROM these positions you can sweep the whole range of hills opposite through powerful glasses and bring it within a comparatively few yards of your eyes.

Below is a deserted red-roofed village, where pigs, abandoned by their former owners in the hour of evacuation, roam at will and flourish until such times as either a British or a German patrol ventures into the deserted streets and captures one for fresh meat.

FARTHER down the valley, lies another empty village. Reports have long said that the Germans kept a permanent observation post there; but one regiment, when it was on duty in the outposts, had an idea that the reports were not quite true. To satisfy themselves, they sent out a daylight patrol, found that the Germans had gone, and rang the church bells just to tell the enemy where they were!

During the day the Germans make themselves scarce. Only a few were visible this morning; and when they had gone into the woods on their side of No Man's Land the country was immobile for some hours.

Only the occasional rattle of machine-guns on our flanks and the almost perpetual dull thud of artillery fire made it clear that the world is populated by armchairs and a double bed! more than the quiet men in our outposts and the huge black birds that fly ceaselessly across the cold, disputed land.

By PHILIP JORDAN

News Chronicle

Correspondent with the B.E.F.

SOME of those quiet men live in "The Ritz." It has sandbag walls; but it has a door, chintz curtains, a stove that everybody wishes would not sometimes take it into its head to smoke, two

Other men—the machine-gunnars—live in their scientifically-sited posts; but these are not so comfortable as "The Ritz." You cannot sit upright in these sandbagged log cabins: you have to lie down all the time on the warm straw that covers the hard earth below.

All these, as it were, inverted dugouts lie close to the firing positions. Most of the firing positions and observation posts are tiny sandbagged fortresses, so placed that they enjoy the maximum security and combine it with the maximum effectiveness whenever it is necessary for the men inside to use their Bren and other quick-firing weapons.

Powerful telescopes help the sentries in these posts to pass long hours of duty without great strain on their eyes.

ALL the men I found up there this morning are well and cheerful. And, like all their comrades elsewhere, are more concerned with their coming leave than with the enemy they face. When their turn comes some may go with a ribbon on their chests, for in the valley below them all the decorations of this war have so far been won, for those valleys and all land around the outposts are the battlefields of this strange conflict.

Not that they underrate the enemy's skill. They do not. They will tell you that he has been trained to the last hair; and that what he does not know about patrol work is not worth knowing. But that is about all they do say of him.

BY the time these words get to London those men will have been relieved; and will have picked their way across the trip wires and all the empty tins that they have laid around them; and will have marched back to rest. When they come out of the line they will have learned the first three lessons of modern warfare: patience, patience, and then more patience. still.

MEN OF THE Q-SHIPS

The opening of another ruthless German submarine campaign recalls some of the most magnificent feats of the Great War—those of the Q-ships. The ships' activities ceased in 1918, but the deeds of their crews have lived on to record annals of courage and self-sacrifice that cannot be surpassed.

These ships went to sea with the deliberate intention of luring submarines to attack them, and Lieutenant-Commander E. Kettle Chatterton has told how the officers and men serving in them—they consisted of armoured colliers, tramps, liners, cross-Channel packets, &c.—were drawn from every category of the sea—the Royal Navy, Royal Naval Reserve, Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve, and Royal Fleet Reserve.

In his words, "They came from battleships and little ships, from fishing vessels, sailing craft, yachts, barracks, offices, and cab ranks. Hand-picked, disciplined, they were every one volunteers for what could be nothing but weeks of boredom suddenly enlivened by the fiercest excitement, ending probably in death. For their captains the responsibilities were enormous. First-class seaman-ship, exceptional coolness, immense patience, considerable imagination and quite unusual initiative were demanded."

The ships were of all types, and they were fitted out with guns and depth charges, which were cleverly concealed behind dummy deck-houses, boats, &c.

The Panic Party

The crews would entice the enemy to close quarters by making a show of abandoning ship. No effort was spared to give the operations of the "panic party" every semblance of reality, for the success of the ruse and the lives of the ship and her crew depended on the submarine commander being taken in by the apparent haste of the men to pull away—by such studied details of a bird in its cage, the cook straight from his galley, the unkempt skipper, and a miscellany of uniforms. Often the ruse was completely successful and many submarines were sunk, although the Q-ships did not emerge from the campaign without suffering heavy losses.

Everything had to be rehearsed to the minutest detail, so that the suspicions of the submarine commander would not be aroused. If this did happen the submarine would dive and come up again unawares during the night and sink its opponent. The members of the panic party were all drilled into exactly what answers to give if the submarine commander asked questions, so that details were pat about the destination of the ship, cargo, and so on.

If the submarine did dive and hope to come up later the men on the Q-ship effected the most incredible changes during the time that elapsed. Funnels were repainted and the marks of another shipping company were put on, even the hull was sometimes gone over, a mast would be taken down, false deck-houses and other deck features were likewise altered.

Concealed Guns

The guns were very cleverly hidden on the decks. In some cases they were disguised by a dummy boat that had been sawn in halves and could be removed instantly. In others a gun was concealed by what appeared to be a life-belt locker. Sometimes tarpaulin screens concealed them, and these dropped at a touch.

At the critical moment for action the signalman would drop the Red Ensign and run up the White Ensign, so informing the enemy of the real status of the ship. Almost always the engagement was short and sharp—the submarine was holed at a vital point and sank or the Q-ship went to her doom.

Scores of stories could be told of the gallant fights put up and the names of many of the Q-ships are immortal in the history of the British Navy. One of the earliest was the Prince Charles, and experience with her did much to influence the evolution of the Q-ship. She was a collier and came up against the submarine U-36. The commander of the U-36 began to shell and the collier's panic party tumbled into the boats. The U-boat closed in, when suddenly her crew were amazed to see men on the deck of the Prince Charles cleaning tarpaulins. Shells pumped forth, and the submarine attempted to dive but was holed too badly. With a plunge she went to the bottom. Another was the Hellenic, a sailing vessel of about 310 tons, which made things hot for the U-boats, and time and again she escaped only miraculously. Then there was the Glen, which encountered a submarine and began her play-acting as a terrified coaster, and the panic party got ready to lower the boat. The enemy drew within 200 yards, and seeing the "alarm" came nearer still, to within about 80 yards.

Then the Glen opened fire, and shell after shell crashed into the submarine's hull. In fact she was riddled and by diving sealed her own doom. Shortly afterwards another submarine appeared and attempted to fight the Glen, but gave up the task towards dusk, finding the Q-boat crew too tough.

A Hot Combat

The first prize brought in during the war was the German schooner Else, appropriately renamed the Fritz, and she became a Q-boat. She worked the U-boat No. 93 after an epic fight. Trawler Skipper Frewer and six men abandoned the old "coaster" with every evidence of panic, and the submarine commander thought he had an easy prey. He fired shells at her and caused casualties, but the U-boat lay low. The submarine came within 70 yards, and her commander lost all suspicion.

It was the critical moment. The order flashed: "Down screens! Up White Ensign! Open fire!" The Fritz fired on, although the submarine answered to the last, and went down burning fiercely. Yet the amazing thing was the survivors on board managed to quell the fire and to regain the surface, and under Lieutenant Ziegler she reached port, a marvellous performance.

One of the finest feats of all was that of the Lowestoft fishing smack, Telesia. She was trawling 35 miles south of that port, and had guns on board. It was about noon when the submarine appeared, and to the skipper's amazement it fired a torpedo, causing hundreds of pounds of it to strike the Telesia. The Telesia let fire straight away—there was nothing else to do. Fortunately the missile missed the smack's bows by about four feet, and then the enemy dived.

Half an hour later the enemy reappeared and hoped to finish off the job—and fired another torpedo. This missed and the Telesia answered back full of spirit. She got in two perfect shots and holed the submarine. The U-boat thought it wiser to dive. And for a third shot would have been fatal. So rapidly did she dive that her propeller showed. This gallant smack had the honour of appearing in the Naval Review during King George V's Silver Jubilee. C. Leslie Johnson.

House Of Commons Debates The War PREMIER DEFENDS HIS POLICY

LONDON, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—Continuing his speech in the House of Commons Mr. Chamberlain next referred to President Roosevelt's definition of moral peace.

"It is to obtain such a peace that we have taken up arms," added Mr. Chamberlain.

"We intend to fight until it has been secured."

The Prime Minister then dealt with the Scapa Flow raid which he described as "an important affair."

Raid A Failure
"It indeed it was a raid upon the fleet in Scapa Flow," he continued, "it must be classed as a failure. Not more than 20 bombs were dropped."

"But perhaps undue attention has been given to what happened because of what is described as 'an important affair'." (Laughter.)
"We remember their previous 'unimpeachable communications'. Only one warship was damaged and that damage was minor."

"We must always expect attacks on our fleet based on our navy and eastern shores but we are confident of our ability to meet them."

"This was the first attack made upon the land. 121 high explosive bombs and 500 incendiary bombs were dropped over an area of hundred square miles of mainland. There were several civilian casualties including one dead."

"The excuse given by the German High Command is that they were bombing military objectives but whatever their intention may have been the House will note the facts and know that the responsibility for the consequences must rest upon the authors." (Cheers.)

"In this struggle minor incidents of this kind are of little importance."

Answers Criticism
"There are some who would want a more vigorous policy, who say that by some unexplained imaginative stroke of daring we ought to wrest to ourselves the initiative."

"With the responsibility which rests upon the shoulders of the Government we cannot be hustled into adventures which appear to us to present little chance of success and much chance of danger and perhaps disaster."

"The time and place for us to strike must be decided upon with the most expert advice we can command."

"In the meantime the best way to ensure victory is to preserve unshaken our determination and unity."

"We have redoubtable allies. We have our kinsmen and fellow subjects in the British Empire. We have loyal and trusted friends across the Channel with their magnificent army and unlimited patriotism."

"Best of all, we have the consciousness that what we are fighting for is what every right-minded citizen in the world desires on which to base the establishment of a durable and moral peace such as that of which President Roosevelt spoke," concluded Mr. Chamberlain amid loud cheers.

Mr. Attlee Cautious
The Rt. Hon. Mr. C. R. Attlee said that Finland's magnificent fight against aggression was in the same cause as that for which Britain was fighting.

The duty of assisting Finland, he said, was not laid only upon the State's League, in this case Norway and Sweden, he said, had not powerful armaments.

He did not like to hear harsh judgment made against people who are all were pretty close to the front line.

The amount of aid Britain could send was conditioned by the extent to which they could act in concert with Sweden and Norway.

Any infringement of their rights was quite unthinkable, Mr. Attlee, was not in a position to say that the British Government could have sent more help with safety, but he would like to be certain that what had been sent was sent in time and without unnecessary delay.

He hoped that the example of this country in helping with the reconstruction of Finland would be followed by others.

Mr. Attlee then asked if Britain was doing all that could be done in the diplomatic, military and economic field.

Must Learn The Lesson
He agreed with Mr. Chamberlain that the lesson they must learn from the fact that if they wanted to defeat aggression they must stand together.

He trusted that they would be prepared to resist any attack which Hitler might make upon them.

He, however, declared that the policy of sitting quiet would be suicidal and that the initiative must not be left with Hitler.

They must use their material and human resources in the best possible way, he added.

Too Much Unemployed
On the subject of coal he said that too many miners were unemployed for war time. The transport system was working and they should make better use of railroad, canal and sea transport. He was of the opinion that a great deal more direction was wanted there.

They wanted greater utilization of their man-power and Mr. Attlee reminded the House that there were still 1,400,000 unemployed in Britain.

Mr. Archibald Sinclair agreed with Mr. Chamberlain in assigning the proper perspective to the recent engagement at Scapa Flow.

The course of this war had been so unexpected and so quiet, he said, that if a gun went off anywhere the people seemed to assume tremendous things.

They were at war with an immensely powerful and efficient enemy.

The question at issue was whether Europe would slide back into barbarism and gangster government or whether they could recreate their civilization based on freedom, justice and the rule of the law.

The freedom and independence of Poland, Finland, the Baltic and Scandinavian countries depended on the victory of the Allies in this war against Germany, he added.

Sir Archibald then said that they needed to exert themselves to gain this victory.

They must seize the initiative and hold it.

Lopsided, Unwieldy Cabinet
Parliament should consider whether they wanted more efficient National and Imperial Instruments of war direction than they possessed.

"It does not look as though the present War Cabinet, lopsided and unwieldy with the present means of Dominion and inter-Allied consultation, is capable of promoting a vigorous and decisive initiative either in the economic, diplomatic or military field," he said.

"It seems to me that we ought to discuss them in a private session. It is too late to save Poland or Finland and we should thrash these things out before our cause suffers another damaging setback."

Belisha's Questions
Mr. Leslie Hore-Belisha, the former War Minister, asked whether in their strategy, diplomacy and their total efforts they were doing everything to achieve their aims.

Poland was annihilated and German commerce was swept from the seas. Since then Germany had been active on land and the Allies had applied a blockade. It was the sole offensive weapon they had employed.

As long as Russia was engaged in active operations in Finland, the date at which Germany could obtain material advantages of her partnership—particularly oil—was being postponed.

It was in the interests of the Allies to maintain the resistance of Finland. It must be assumed from the decision of the Supreme War Council that the sending of a force was practicable and desirable.

Hitler May Tell Of Brenner Parleys

AMSTERDAM, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—Hitler may summon the Reichstag in the next few days to hear the result of the Brenner meeting, it is learned from a Berlin source.

The decision probably depends on the final message from Rome after Signor Mussolini's farewell talk with Mr. Sumner Welles.

not conduct to winning the war to suggest that this country is behind outwitted at every turn by our opponents and that our measures to carry the war to the successful conclusion that there are leaks through which there are supplies into Germany. That is not a true picture."

Mr. Dalton had failed to understand the scale on which we are working and the small proportion to the whole of those who are not expected to establish a perfect blockade.

Mr. Chamberlain emphasised the difficulty of conducting the blockade and said that Mr. Dalton gave them to understand that no neutral rights should stand in the way of what we could do.

Forfeited Right Of Appeal
Mr. Chamberlain emphasised that we were trying to keep within the rules of international law and said that as far as Germany was concerned she had absolutely forfeited any right of appeal to international law against any violation of that law we might embark upon in order to injure her. But there were very few cases in which the matter was as simple as that.

When it came to infringing the rights of neutrals in our endeavour to engage the enemy at closer quarters, we must have some regard for those international laws to which we had appealed so often ourselves.

Referring to the allegation of Mr. Dalton that Norway had tolerated the violation of her neutrality by German warships, Mr. Chamberlain said the British Navy and Air Force had kept a constant and continuous watch on Norwegian waters to see if German warships were violating them. And had we been able to establish a single case of that kind, we would not have hesitated ourselves to enter those territorial waters and attack such ship. (Cheers.)

Peevish And Perverse
Dealing with criticisms regarding the Finnish war, Mr. Chamberlain described Sir Archibald Sinclair's speech as peevish and perverse. He pointed out that the question of sending volunteers never could have played a major part in any assistance which could have been given.

We were told that trained troops were what Marshal Mannerheim wanted. Volunteers never could have made a serious difference in the campaign if it stood alone. We did not know that the situation was deteriorating up to a short time before the final collapse. We were told that the spirit of the army was completely unbroken and they were confident of being able to hold the Mannerheim Line.

It was only a few days before the final collapse that we were informed that the situation was considered serious.

Referred To Chiefs Of Staff
Mr. Chamberlain said that every request the Finns made to us was referred to the Chiefs of Staff to know whether we considered it was justified in the circumstances in which we found ourselves. If we had considered solely those things which were naturally properly in the minds of the Chiefs of Staff, we should have sent very much less than we did.

The Cabinet took responsibility and material which we thought might help the Finns to hold out.

Dealing with the criticism that the Government had been too late, Mr. Chamberlain stressed the enormous preparations required for such an expedition and said that the troops had to be specially selected and equipped to work in deep snow. Equipment had to be procured from another country, and transport had to be made ready.

It was not easy to pick up a number of ships at a moment's notice and make them ready for an expedition. Nevertheless it was done.

Everything was arranged according to a definite timetable.

Why Expedition Did Not Sail
The reason for the Finns' hesitation to make an appeal for assistance was not because the expedition was too small or too late. It was neither hesitation nor vacillation. The only reason the expedition never sailed was because when the time came the Finns could not make an appeal because Sweden and Norway flatly refused to allow troops to pass through their countries.

Replying to the criticism that Britain might have sent planes, the Prime Minister said that the Finns requested large quantities of bombers, these could only have been taken from the home defence or the B.E.F. Nevertheless we sympathetically considered the appeal but bombers could not operate without preparation for a ground state of repair.

They must be able to operate continuously from Finland. We were ready to supply the crews and the number of bombing planes if the appeal was made, but by that time we knew that negotiations were going on. We were not sure that the fighting would continue and could not contemplate sending large numbers of precious to ourselves. If after all we found that they failed to save the Finns and we could not get them

RIOTS IN LAHORE

25 Killed And 39 Injured

LAHORE, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—It is officially announced that the police had to fire after being attacked by a band of men from the North-Western Frontier who were trying to hold a procession in military formation in defiance of the Government ban.

Two police officers and 23 of the demonstrators were killed and 39 injured persons are now in hospital.

The District Magistrate was among the injured.

Soldiers Take Over
Military reinforcements have arrived and are patrolling the city.

The men are members of the Muslim movement. They wear uniforms, carry spears and conduct military drills. They have encouraged rival movements among the Hindus.

The aggravation of feeling led the Government to ban all processions of such societies.

Fear Riots At Easter
Strict Precautions By
Eire Government

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH".
DUBLIN, Mar. 19 (UP).—Fears of Easter Week disorders are believed to be responsible for the widespread military activity which has been so noticeable in Eire to-day.

The Governments of Eire and Northern Ireland have both prohibited Easter Week commemorations this year, for the first time in Ireland since 1922.

Republican organisations have completed arrangements for demonstrations, particularly in the Dublin area. The Government has ordered newspapers not to mention these demonstrations, either in the news or advertising columns.

No Deliberate Attack
Lord Halifax On The Scapa Flow Raid

LONDON, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—Reference was made to the Scapa Flow raid to-day by Lord Halifax in the House of Lords.

He said that from information at his disposal he was of the opinion that there had been no deliberate attack on civilians as such.

"I do not disagree with the suggestion that has been made as to the very legitimate consequences that may be drawn from that attack by the way of action which our own Air Force may take at an appropriate time," he said.

Pointed Observation
Speaking of the Russo-Finnish war, Lord Halifax said, "Your Lordships can rest well assured that we should not be deflected from our main objective, which is the defeat of Germany, by the fear of any particular action on our part at any time might damage our relations with the Soviet Union."

He did not think I can define British policy more concisely at this stage."

Tripled Aircraft Production

WASHINGTON, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—America's production of aeroplane parts and engines has tripled during the past year, President Roosevelt told a Press conference during a discussion of the controversy over the custody of planes of recent design to foreign powers.

President Roosevelt said that there was no question of giving away military secrets as the designs of the planes were not secret, but "only devices on them."

back again. Even so, in response to an appeal from the Finnish Minister at the moment, we did send what bombers we could.

Did All We Could
Subject to the responsibility of winning the war against our own enemy, we did all we could in the time (Cheers.)

On the question of production, Mr. Chamberlain said that he was convinced that during the next fortnight the House would be able to process an appreciable increase in production of goods. Although differences were expressed this afternoon, these were expressed in the surface of an underlying unity of the parties. (Cheers.)

Mr. Chamberlain said that he accepted and subscribed to the words of President Roosevelt the other day regarding what a peace should be. He concluded: "While we had not entered on war, I did my best to avert war. Now that I have entered the struggle, I shall be just as determined and just as persistent in achieving the purpose we have in mind as I was in trying to keep the peace before the war started." (Cheers.)

FOOD PROBLEM WITH GASTRITIS

For years, doctors wanted to find a food that would not irritate the inflamed stomach walls of patients suffering from gastritis and that at the same time would rebuild the patient's strength. In severe cases of gastritis solid foods are out of the question, even liquid foods are often vomited. Yet the patient needs quick new strength to rebuild his exhausted body. In Horlicks, doctors and nurses have found an ideal food.

Where other foods are rejected, Horlicks is retained by the patient. And almost at once strength starts to come back, with the result that convalescence is shortened too! Get Horlicks today from your store. It is delicious to taste.

CONCEPTIONS OF BODY WEIGHT

A.A. Lopes Wins Senior Championship At Country Club

(By "Birdie")

THE RAINS CAME—and let us thank whom we must for the brief but fairly solid showers that fell on golf courses during the past week. The fairways were quite unrecognisable in the fresh green colour they had put on. The Country Club course at Sheungshui lost its resilience and its parched appearance, and for the first time in many moons the sand greens played as though of turf.

The great match of the week-end past was the final of the Country Club Championship, in which A. A. Lopes beat E. Sadick 3 and 1, over 36 holes.

Lopes finished the first 18 holes one up, and at one stage in the second 18 Sadick had drawn level, but Lopes gradually forged ahead again, and ultimately became dormie two. He won the 35th and the match, 3 and 1.

BODY weight seems to be causing as much concern among men as among women in beauty parlour. I don't propose to take sides, and no doubt by this time people have formed opinions of their own. As I gather, there seems to be three schools of thought. (a) Mr. Davidson, who in quoting The Science of Golf by P. Fowle, M.B., appears to be of the opinion that a golf shot is body from alpha to omega; (b) "The Rough" acknowledges that body weight to a certain extent is essential, but that foremost is the work done by the wrists, and (c) Mr. Scott Harston and Mr. R. Hancock who take up cudgels on behalf of cricketers, and who are of the opinion that body work counts for nothing in making a cricket drive—that it is all a matter of rhythm and timing.

I should like to add my little bit which is again different from any of the foregoing in that, though like "The Rough" I agree that wrist-work and body-work are an essential combination for a golf shot, I would place the body as being the more contributory to force, and, therefore, of primary importance. Unfortunately, in golf, there are two kinds of shots.

LET us take the drive (or the shot with wooden clubs) first. The wrists are the last members of one's body that come into operation—that is, the club is brought down first by the body pivot, then by the arms.

Macao Interport Soccer Team

Scottish Eleven Chosen For International Cup

MACAO, March 18. With the coincidence of both the hockey and football Interport fixtures which are being staged in Hongkong on the coming Sunday, sport circles in Macao are very enthusiastic and the feeling runs high that the Macao teams stand a fair chance of giving a good account of themselves.

In the soccer match, Macao is being represented by a fine crew of local First Division players of whom a brief individual pen sketch follows.

Santos is very sure in his position at goal, and in recent trials has shown up as dependable in dangerous moments. Collette captain, has played in both previous Interports. He is so adaptable as an all-round player that he has been appointed to take charge of the defence instead of occupying his usual centre-forward or half-back positions.

Chin Fu-hon as left back played for Canton Police prior to the Japanese occupation. He is very ready and will work like a Trojan. He clears beautifully.

Lou Hon-san, ex South China player, holds the important pivot position as Macao's centre-half. At all times a fine, clean player. Magalhães is Macao's experienced and reliable right-half. Although heavy, he makes up by his quality of feeding the immediate forwards and marking his opponents.

Lou Hing-chol, a fast left half, combines well with the full-backs. Rego is tricky and has fine speed in the flank position of outside-right. Youanille is a hard-working inside right and can be relied upon to combine with Macao's right winger.

Carvalho as centre forward is the most agile player. He possesses exhaustless energy and shoots accurately. Last year's goalie for Macao.

Lau Chung-san is a footballer who having played for South China, is prominent on the forward-line and needs little introduction. Always dependable. He is to play inside-left for Macao.

Ip Pong-tou, fast outside-left, is very tricky and has perfect understanding with his inside-left colleague. Centres beautifully.

Reserves.—Boyes, Cordova, Lau Chung-kuan and Leong Sul-va.

SCOTLAND XI

In the final of the International Charity Cup competition at Sookun-poo on Easter Monday, Scotland will be represented by Duncan, Bone and Blackburn; Birrell, Williamson and Clarke; Munro, Fryde, Coull, Ferrier

Eardley And Eardley Have Easy Match In Mixed Doubles

SEVERAL PLAYERS entered the semi-finals of the Colony Badminton Championships as a result of matches played last night at both Taikoo and King's College. H. Eardley and Miss D. Eardley, former Shanghai mixed doubles champions, beat D. Kwok and Mrs. P. Wilson 15-12, 15-0 to enter the mixed doubles semi-final; M. A. Silva and M. A. Oliveira beat A. L. Fisher and P. Wynter-Blythe 15-11, 15-9 to enter the semi-finals of the men's doubles, and N. L. Smith accounted for K. L. Lui 15-0, 15-11 and entered the semi-finals of the Junior Singles championship.

The only other game was at King's College, where C. Au and P. H. Wong beat R. Marques and H. F. Gonsalves 15-7, 15-2 in a first round match of the doubles.

The best game of all was the doubles game, Silva and Oliveira v. Fisher and Wynter-Blythe, at Taikoo. The winners, who are Recreolo's strongest pair in the tournament, formed a brilliant combination. Silva was particularly fine at the net, and his cleverly concealed drop shots gained many points. Oliveira was an accurate and energetic partner.

Wynter-Blythe was the better of the two losers, and was most adept at returning hard smashes from any angle. Fisher, on the other hand, was rather weak with his back-hand, and dropped several points with feeble returns.

The scores were never steady, and were in continual fluctuation. At the critical moments, however, the Recreolo pair became the steadier and were thus able to clinch the games.

EASIER GAMES

IN NONE of the other games could the winners be said to have been extended. The mixed doubles combination of H. and Miss Eardley showed a noticeable slackening in the first set when leading 11-3, and as a consequence their opponents crept up to 12 before the game ended. There was never any doubt in the second game.

C. Au and Patrick H. Wong, the Chinese Y.M.C.A. pair, also had a comparatively easy match against Marques and Gonsalves. At no time were they extended.

Open Doubles Match On Friday

The remaining first round match in the Colony Open Badminton doubles championship, K. L. Yong and H. F. Chew v. H. M. Lau and S. C. Chung, will be played off at King's College on Friday, March 22, at 2 p.m. and Tail. Reserves.—Parnaby, Dignan, Gordon and Fraser.

Several Seconds Clipped Of 800-Metre Records

SEVERAL SECONDS were taken off the Senior and Junior 800-metre records of La Salle College at their annual sports meeting which concluded yesterday on the College grounds. L. Silva was timed at 2 mins. 17 secs. for the Senior event, which time is four seconds better than the previous record set up by A. Ulrich in 1937, while B. Alonco clocked 2 mins. 27.5 secs. for the Junior event, bettering L. Xavier's 1938 record by no less than 10 seconds.

In the Individual Championships, L. Xavier won the Senior Cup, while A. Azevedo annexed the Junior Cup, presented by Ricci Hall. The Midgets Individual Championship was shared by L. Azevedo and E. Silva with 18 points.

At the conclusion of the Meet, Mr. L. G. Morgan, of the Education Department, distributed the prizes, at the same time congratulating the boys on their fine show under such improved conditions.

THE RESULTS

The results were: Senior Race (11th Townsley Troop)—1. N. Ng and Hong Lau-chui; 2. Kim Kung-chiu and Shui Kong-hoi; 3. Potato Race (Midget and Sub-midget)—1. B. Souza; 2. H. Malby.

AMMUNITION DUMP BLOWN UP AT HORNUM

series of smaller explosions, the R.A.F. bomb obviously having hit the Nazi munitions depot.

The gigantic explosion was followed by a perfect frenzy of anti-aircraft fire, tracer projectiles of all colours lighting up the sky.

"It was as if a wall of fire had broken out right across the island," said the Correspondent.

DRAMATIC BROADCAST FROM PARTICIPANTS

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

AS THIS EDITION OF THE "TELEGRAPH" WENT TO PRESS AN UNSPECIFIED NUMBER OF R.A.F. BOMBERS WERE ENGAGED ON A BOMBING RAID ON NAZI AIR BASES ON THIS ISLAND OF SYLT.

THE RAID, IN WHICH AN UNSPECIFIED NUMBER OF PLANES ARE TAKING PART, IS STILL IN PROGRESS.

The only details received by the Air Ministry in London are conveyed in brief radio messages from the planes engaged in the raid, says "United Press."

The R.A.F. attack started while the House of Commons was in session last night.

Members were electrified when the Air Minister, Sir Kingsley Wood, rose to make an announcement.

SEVERELY DAMAGED

As the British machines finished their story to London, bombs were dropping on Hornum, the Nazi air base on the Island of Sylt.

One message relayed the information that the Nazi base had been severely damaged.

Full details of the raid are still awaited from the British machines.

This is the first time in the history of aerial warfare that the story of a battle has been released for publication while the battle has been in progress.

Only the science of modern radio communication has made it possible.

LONDON, Mar. 20 (Reuter).

The Air Ministry made the following announcement early this morning:

"The Air Force attacked and severely damaged the German air base of Hornum on the island of Sylt last night.

"This is one of the shore bases from which enemy aircraft operate against British naval forces and merchant shipping.

"This action follows the attack upon our own shore bases in the Orkneys."

The attack on Hornum was quickly announced in the House of Commons by the Air Minister, Sir Kingsley Wood.

The Minister said the report was based on a wireless message received from one of the leading machines.

He understood that the attack was still continuing.

Claim: Raider Downed

LONDON, Mar. 20 (Reuter).—The terms claim that one British bomber was brought down in the Sylt raid, an official Nazi news agency says.

A house was set on fire, otherwise no damage was done, the agency adds.

The bombers flew over in three waves, the first at 7.57 p.m., the second at 8.58 p.m. and the third at 1.10 p.m.

2000 Scientists Can Find No Work in War

MOSQUITO EXPERT DUSTS BOOKS

MORE than 2000 British scientists, whose skill and knowledge could be of great use in the country's war effort, are unemployed, it is revealed by the secretary of the Association of Scientific Workers.

Many scientists whose research laboratories were closed down at the beginning of the war have been absorbed into various Government departments, but in a number of cases have been given purely administrative positions, in which their specialised experience is not needed.

The secretary of the association said: "Our chief criticism is that many of the laboratories which have been closed down were concentrating on improving nutritive values of foodstuffs, which is even more valuable in war-time than in peace."

Outstanding Authority

"There would have been far less difficulty regarding food rationing

WIFE AND MAN GIVE LIVES FOR BOY

IN trying to rescue a boy who fell into a reservoir at Fagley Woods, Bradford, Mrs. Gath, thirty-two of Norbury-road, Bradford, and Mr. Bevell, of Ransleigh-avenue, Bradford, lost their lives.

The boy, Leslie Harvey, of Hatton-terrace, Eccleshill, was also drowned.

A thirteen-year-old girl, Joan Cartwright, of Hall-road, Bradford, went to his rescue.

Then Mr. Bevell and Mrs. Gath tried to save the boy and girl. They too, fell into thirty feet of water.

Edward McLoughlin, aged fifteen, and Thomas Ward, both of Ransleigh-avenue, tried to assist.

Ward tied a rope to a pole and pushed it along to Mrs. Gath. She failed to hold it.

McLoughlin succeeded in rescuing Joan Cartwright.

Fell In

Maureen Gath, nine-year-old daughter of the dead woman, said: "I was playing with ten other children when Leslie Harvey fell in."

"Joan Cartwright went to Leslie's aid and cries of the children attracted Mr. Bevell, who ran to the side and dived in. As he approached Leslie he went under."

"Then I saw mother come rushing towards the dam, and, although she is a non-swimmer, she went in and tried to reach Leslie. Mr. Bevell had then disappeared."

Mrs. Gath's husband is believed to be on active service in the Army.

Harvey's father stood on the bank of the reservoir assisting in the rescue operations, while Mrs. Bevell watched for a time from her garden near by.

and agricultural planning if the scientific viewpoint had been considered more."

As I turned to leave the Bedford-row headquarters of the association I saw a man dusting copies of scientific publications.

Although in his early thirties, he is one of the outstanding authorities on combating the spread of the mosquito pest. He had been unemployed since war began.

LATE NEWS

ALL-NIGHT RAIDS

Terrific Onslaught On Sylt

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"
TOENDER, DENMARK, MAR. 20. (UP).—BRITISH PLANES HAVE ROARED OVER THE ISLAND OF SYLT CONTINUALLY SINCE 7.50 P.M.

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO ESTIMATE HOW MANY PLANES ARE PARTICIPATING IN THIS RAID, WHICH IS UNDOUBTEDLY THE MOST SEVERE LAUNCHED SINCE THE OUTBREAK OF WAR.

WAVE AFTER WAVE OF BRITISH BOMBERS ARE ARRIVING TO DROP THEIR BOMBS AND RETURN HOME AGAIN.

ONE R.A.F. MACHINE CRASHED IN FLAMES ON THE NORTH TIP OF THE ISLAND AT 11.45 P.M. AFTER DROPPING ITS BOMBS ON LIST. IT RAN INTO A BARRAGE OF GERMAN A.A. FIRE.

One wave of R.A.F. machines appeared from the south AT 12.45 A.M. AND BOMBED THE NAZI AIR BASE AT HORNUM.

Another wave attacked List at 1.15 a.m., appearing from the north, and dropped bombs on Rantum.

Fifty minutes later yet another wave of British planes appeared and bombed Rantum.

One of the bombs dropped by this squadron resulted in a big column of smoke and flames which reached high into the sky, indicating that the British units had scored a direct hit on a large Nazi munitions dump.

RAIDS GIVE BIG SCOUP FOR BBC

LONDON, Mar. 20 (UP).—The action of the Premier in permitting the release of radio messages from the attacking planes for a B.B.C. running commentary on the raids while they were in progress gave the B.B.C. the greatest radio scoop in history.

In the House of Commons, Mr. Chamberlain announced at 10.30 p.m., as he was winding up the debate that the raids were in retaliation for the Nazi attack on Scapa Flow.

"The attacks are still continuing," he announced dramatically amidst loud cheers.

An hour later, the Press Association issued a fresh report that another attack had been launched.

Bombs were dropping on Sylt as Lord Strabolgi, the Labour Peer, was declaring that the House of Lords and the British public looked to the Government for instant and successful reprisals for the raid on Scapa Flow.

Harpist To Give Recital In Colony

The public will have the opportunity of hearing two artists new to Hongkong at the Rose Room of the Peninsula Hotel at 9.15 p.m. on Thursday, March 28. They are Solange Renie (Mde. J. Sigurd), harpist, and Angelika Meesler-Steinachneider, mezzo-soprano from the Vienna Opera, will contribute two groups of songs.

The concert is being arranged by the Foreign Auxiliary to the National Red Cross Society of China and the proceeds will be used for the Kwai-ping Yang Orthopaedic Hospital for wounded and disabled soldiers and civilians whose harp concerts she will play with the orchestra. She will also play with the orchestra Debussy's "Auxiliary, Gloucester Building, First Dance Saloon and Dance Room 5, or the Anderson Music Company.

Solange Renie studied at the Conservatoire de Paris, and was one of the members of the Renie Septette where she took the place of Grand-jany on his departure for America. Since coming to the Far East (where her husband is in the French Consular Service) she has given many successful concerts in Shanghai, Singapore, Tientsin and Japan, and recently was invited by Mde. M. Quezon, wife of the President of the Philippines, to give private concerts for her. Solange Renie will also give a short radio broadcast on March 21.

In addition, Angelika Meesler-Steinachneider, mezzo-soprano from the Vienna Opera, will contribute two groups of songs.

TERRIFIC ONSLAUGHT

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"—TOEDER, DENMARK, MAR. 20. (UP)—BRITISH PLANES HAVE ROARED OVER THE ISLAND OF SYLT CONTINUALLY SINCE 7.50 P.M.

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO ESTIMATE HOW MANY PLANES ARE PARTICIPATING IN THIS RAID, WHICH IS UNDOUBTEDLY THE MOST SEVERE LAUNCHED SINCE THE OUTBREAK OF WAR.

WAVE AFTER WAVE OF BRITISH BOMBERS ARE ARRIVING TO DROP THEIR BOMBS AND RETURN HOME AGAIN.

ONE R.A.F. MACHINE CRASHED IN FLAMES ON THE NORTH TIP OF THE ISLAND AT 11.45 P.M. AFTER DROPPING ITS BOMBS ON LIST. IT RAN INTO A BARRAGE OF GERMAN A. F. FIRE.

One wave of R.A.F. machines appeared from the south at 12.45 A.M. AND BOMBED THE NAZI AIR BASE AT HORNUM.

Another wave attacked List at 1.15 a.m., appearing from the north, and dropped bombs on Rantum.

Fifty minutes later yet another wave of British planes appeared and bombed Rantum.

One of the bombs dropped by this squadron resulted in a big column of smoke and flames which reached high into the sky, indicating that the British units had scored a direct hit on a large Nazi munitions dump.

Calm Day On The Western Front

PARIS, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—Today's communique says that there was a calm day on the whole front.

West of the Saar, a German reconnaissance party fell into one of our ambushes and suffered fairly serious losses.

MINISTER OUTSPOKEN

Germany's Slaves

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"—TORONTO, Mar. 19 (UP).—Mr. James R. Cromwell, who was recently appointed U.S. Minister to Canada, made an outspoken criticism of American advocates of the isolation policy during a joint meeting of the Canadian and Empire Clubs.

His speech, which was remarkable for the outspokenness of an attack on Germany, has created a furore in American political circles.

Germany, said Mr. Cromwell, frankly and openly sought to destroy the institutions of social and economic order on which the U.S. Constitution was founded.

"People who have already been conquered by Germany are nothing but slaves."

Britain and France, on the other hand, continue the humanitarian rule on which they have built their Empires.

"I take issue with the opinions held by some of my very distinguished countrymen that a diplomat should confine his utterances to platitudinous pleasantries."

Short-Sighted Americans

"Certain short-sighted and cynical groups in the United States declare that there is little to choose between one belligerent and another. 'What sensible person can agree with this interpretation of the facts?'"

"I believe that a diplomat is like a country. He should warn his fellow-countrymen of what he sees."

"On this interpretation I am content to risk my official head."

Visited Hongkong

Mr. Cromwell is the husband of Doris Duke, sometimes called the world's richest girl. She is heiress to the famous Duke tobacco millions.

Cromwell is the organizer of the Young America movement and, although born in the lap of luxury, has decidedly Socialist views. He is a warm supporter of President Roosevelt's program.

Cromwell and his wife visited Hongkong in 1935 on their honeymoon.

Washington Uproar

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"—WASHINGTON, Mar. 20 (UP).—Mr. Cromwell's statement in Toronto that he regarded the isolationist movement in Washington.

Senator Clark demands his recall for his "outrageous and disgraceful breach of office."

"Those beautiful Canadian dinners have evidently gone to his head," Clark declared wrathfully.

Senator Claude Pepper: "Even a diplomat must know what everyone else knows."

Senator Gerald Nye: "He is only echoing what his Chief has repeatedly asserted."

Senator Warren Austin: "A hazardous thing to say."

Determined To Smash Allies

German Hopes Of Nazi Conquest

BERLIN, Mar. 20 (Reuter).—Nazi Germany is determined to achieve a smashing victory over the Allies in the near future, announced the Wilhelmstrasse yesterday as Hitler returned from the Brenner Pass.

"Victory" will take a diplomatic rather than a military form at first, the spokesman said.

German officials indicate that within the next few days, they expect to see Italy draw closer to the Soviet Union as an immediate step towards neutralising the Balkans and immobilising any Allied offensive against Germany in that area.

End War Victoriously

AMSTERDAM, Mar. 20 (Reuter).—All the German Press yesterday concentrated on the same theme, that Hitler's sole policy is to end the war victoriously "by all means and all weapons," says the "Lokalanzeiger."

Axis Strengthened?

LONDON, Mar. 20 (Reuter).—The Berlin wireless says that according to the diplomatic correspondent of the "Hamburger Fremdenblatt," the Brenner meeting has resulted in the strengthening of the Italo-German alliance.

Germany is more than ever ready for the forthcoming events in the west, for which the raid on Scapa Flow was a very promising overture.

"Ridiculous" Hopes

BERLIN, Mar. 20 (Reuter).—All Allied hopes for loosening German-Italian bonds are "ridiculous," says a semi-official spokesman, commenting on the Brenner Pass talks.

While details of the talks are still lacking, he said, it must be stressed that Italo-German co-operation remains unchanged.

Counterfeit Note Charges

Man And Woman Face Jury At Sessions

Arrested when the allegedly tried to pass another forged $5 banknote at the same shop in Graham Street, Cheung Cheuk, 30, married woman, was charged on two counts of uttering forged notes when she appeared at the Criminal Sessions before Mr. Justice R. E. Lindsell this morning.

Her husband, Chui Wal, 31, was also charged with possession of a forged $5 Central Bank of China note, and a forged $5 Hongkong and Shanghai Bank note.

Accused pleaded not guilty to the charges, and the case was heard before the following Jury: Messrs. M. A. Key (Foreman), A. C. Xavier, Kwan Mok-chung, S. M. Isack, J. G. Marshall, E. Manning and B. Naess.

Crown Allegations
Mr. J. P. Murphy, Assistant Crown Solicitor, said Cheung was charged with uttering the notes on January 31 and February 2. Second accused was charged with possession.

On the evening of January 31 a woman came to the Tung King Roast Meat Shop in Graham Street and bought 30 cents of sausages, and handed Chu Pak a $5 Hongkong and Shanghai Bank note, and received $4.70 change.

That note was subsequently found to be a forgery. Shortly after that a man came in and bought sausages, and also produced a $5 note in payment.

There is no suggestion that the man is second accused, but both notes were later found to be forgeries, said Mr. Murphy.

Nothing happened until February 2 when a woman came into the shop and was served by a food, Chu Hing, a $5 Hongkong and Shanghai Bank note was handed to Chu Pak, who noticed that it was similar to the other two, and immediately suspected it to be a forgery.

He also recognised the woman as the same person who had called on the previous occasion, and sent for the Police.

Picked Notes From Coffer
In consequence of what first accused told the Police, the Police went to the Chung Kwok Boarding House in Connaught Road Central to look for Chu Pak. As a result of information from second accused, the Sergeant went down to the street, and picked up two notes from the gutter. They were forged Central Bank of China and Hongkong Shanghai Bank notes.

In answer to the charges at the Police station, first accused made a complete denial to the first charge. She admitted going to the shop on February 2, but said she did not know the note was a forgery.

Second accused said the two notes were given to him by a friend in Macao.

the police. It will be decided after this report is received what action, if any, is necessary.

The incident has brought to light the amazing fact that Japanese soldiers apparently travel regularly by the O.S.K. ship, acting as "military guards."

It is stated that it was the military guards, and not the captain of the O.S.K. ship, who detained the constable, presumably to be taken back to Canton for discipline at the hands of the Japanese military authorities there.

The military guard are stated to have accused the constable of "rude behaviour."

The Captain was in total ignorance of the whole thing until the police arrived on the scene. Since then he (the Captain) had offered an explanation to the Commissioner of Police which had been accepted.

O.S.K. Statement
The Manager of the O.S.K. line in Hongkong told the "Telegraph" this afternoon: "The report is substantially correct."

"The man in question was a passenger aboard our ship from Canton to Hongkong."

"En route to Hongkong he found that his luggage was missing and commenced to search for it."

"He was asked to desist when he commenced rummaging amongst the luggage of other people."

"He said that he was a Hongkong Police officer and persisted in his search."

"He was asked to produce identification papers but failed to do so. A check-up of the ship's passenger lists revealed that he had registered himself as a citizen of Canton, and this immediately led to the suspicion that his claim was not bona fide."

"He was therefore detained by the ship's officers. Immediately the captain was notified that the man was a police officer, however, his release was effected."

NO PEACE BASIS

Despondency Follows Welles' Visit

WASHINGTON, March 19 (UP).—Mr. Stephen Early, Secretary to the White House, today said official advisers from Europe make the peace headlines seem empty.

"On the basis of all authoritative reports received and carefully read and analyzed by President Roosevelt, there seems no basis in fact for the reports published, neither do they give an authoritative basis for peace."

Welles' Work Finished
ROME, March 19 (UP).—Mr. Sumner Welles, following a luncheon with Count Ciano today, announced the official conclusion of his talks with European statesmen and readers.

He leaves Rome for Genoa at 11 o'clock to-night and will arrive at 6.30 a.m. to-morrow when he boards the Conte di Savoia which sails for New York at noon.

Meanwhile, Signor Virginio Gayda, writing in the Giornale d'Italia today says: "The Brenner Pass talks have two well

ENTERTAINMENTS

Partners commence in the ordinary dancing position for the verse and facing each other for the chorus. Steps described are gentlemen's, lady commences on the opposite foot.

Commencing on the Left Foot. The One Step. 3 Walking steps forward, moving the left arm backwards and forwards as you walk.

One complete turn to the right, taking 3 steps balancing from one foot to the other—swaying the shoulders from side to side as you turn.

Now repeat the above figure, 3 One steps and 1 complete turn, finish facing each other and shout "ooh."

Now for the steps of the Chorus. Facing each other, commence on the Right Foot. 3 Running steps forward, on the 4th beat slip forward with bended knees—shouting "Well," slightly lifting trousers while lady slightly lifts dress. Then 4 running steps back to places still facing each other.

Commence on Right Foot. Running towards partner link Right Arm, make a circle, and back to places.

Hopping on one foot, then the other with the knees up. 4 Facing each other and 4 moving towards each other, finishing with the shout "ooh."

Now repeat the Verse, and Chorus as many times as desired.

The New Hongkong Dance Craze

"KNEES UP MOTHER BROWN" is Hongkong's latest party dance craze.

It was introduced to the Colony on Saturday night by Sandra and Fredric Hartnell, the star turn entertainers at the Grill Room of the Hongkong Hotel, and became an instantaneous success.

About a hundred couples essayed the dance after it had been demonstrated by the Hartnells, and voted it a worthy successor to "Lambeth Walk" and "Boomp a Daisy."

"Knees up Mother Brown" was introduced in London as recently as December 12 and is now sweeping England.

The routine was devised by Adele England, principal of the Locarno School of Dancing in London, who is responsible for several other successes of a like nature. It is the fifth novelty dance to be introduced by C. L. Helmann, who was responsible for "Lambeth Walk," "The Chestnut Tree" (so popular with His Majesty the King), "The Park Parade" and war-time's "The Handsome Territorial."

"Knees Up Mother Brown" is a worthy successor. Its simplicity assures its success, for anyone can dance it.

The first eight steps are a stiff-legged "cack" walk. (You'll recall from the movie that the stiff-legged "cack" walk was the first jazz number invented by Irene and Vernon Castle). In "Knees Up Mother Brown" the arms are also used. The cack walk is followed by a complete turn to the right, swaying the shoulders from side to side as you turn. Then the cack walk again, finishing with another complete turn and a shouted "ooh."

Then comes the Chorus. Facing each other, gentlemen commence on right foot, ladies on left foot and take three running steps forward. On the fourth beat the couple slip forward with bended knees—shouting "Well." The gentleman slightly lifts his trousers and the lady slightly lifts her dress. Then four running steps backwards.

A hop on the right foot (these instructions are for gentlemen—ladies, of course, use opposite feet) twice, at the same time extending right hand slightly lowered towards partner, palm upwards, keeping in time with each Hop. (Some of the people at the Grapes used the Hitler salute!) Repeat on the Left Foot and Left Hand. Again on the Right and again on the Left. This is followed by a run towards partner, linking of right arms, a circle (this is similar to Lambeth Walk) and then back to places. The final movement is to hop first on one foot and then on the other with the knees up, four steps facing each other and four steps moving towards each other.

The Verse and Chorus can be repeated as often as desired. It is a Novelty Dance that is bound to elicit all Hongkong clubs and dance halls.

TOKYO, Mar. 14 (Herald).—No question can arise regarding the title to Spratly Islands, which the Japanese Government on March 29 of last year declared incorporated into Japanese territory and placed under the administration of the Government-General of Formosa, the Navy Office spokesman said.

ABOVE.—Announcement of Annexation published in the "Telegraph" last week.

ANNEXATION BY JAPAN

FOUR MAJOR POWERS—Britain, France, Holland and the United States—are opposed to Japan's annexation of the Spratly Islands (also known as Storm Islands).

Spratly is the main island in an archipelago, and has an area of only 120 acres. Its importance is due solely to its strategic position, for it lies 410 miles from French Indo-China and some 800 miles from British North Borneo.

Japan claims that the reefs forming the Spratly group have long been known as ownerless and that since 1917 Japanese nationals had undertaken the economic development of the archipelago. In 1943 Captain Spratly of the British whaler "Cyrus" sighted the island and plotted its position on the chart, but it was not until 1930 that it was annexed by any country. In that year a landing party from the French minesweeper "Malicieuse" was put ashore, the tricolour was hoisted, and the commander formally took possession of the island in the name of France. Above, TOP LEFT, shows the French taking possession of Spratly; seamen landing from the "Malicieuse" to hoist the tricolour in 1930. TOP RIGHT—General view of island, with palms sheltering a primitive encampment formed by fishermen. The island is rich in phosphate deposits. BELOW RIGHT—The admiral's flag, hoisted by the Commander of the "Malicieuse" stating that Spratly Island was occupied on April 13, 1930.

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

NANKING, Mar. 19 (UP).—The Propaganda Minister, Lin Pai-sheng, on behalf of Wang Ching-wei, said to-day that it was agreed to return to China the military control the Japanese forces exercise in the occupied areas. Wang Ching-wei declares that this will assure an army establishment of the new Chinese Government.

The Central Political Conference opens on Wednesday, the meeting lasting three or four days, for the purpose of preparing for the "return" of the National Government to Nanking, which will be possibly proclaimed next week, although the date is not fixed. Twenty-two out of 30 delegates are former officials of the National Government which evacuated to Nanking in 1937.

Busy Conference
The conference will pass a resolution empowering Wang Ching-wei to determine a policy for readjustment of Sino-Japanese relations, draw up an outline for establishment of the new Government, and also decide the date of establishment and structure as well as abolition of the Peiping and Nanking regimes, determine the political programme of the new regime, establish a policy vis-a-vis the liquidation, and also decide the convocation of the National Assembly and the question of enforcing a constitutional government.

Wang Loses Followers
CHUNGKING, Mar. 19 (Central).—Wang Ching-wei has lost another two followers, who have deserted his cause and are now on their way to Chungking.

They are Chow Yao-shan, former dean of the Kiang Hsia Middle School, and Tang Tseng-yang, former principal of the Ming Kwang Middle School.

Chow was slated by Wang Ching-wei to become Director of Education of the Nanking puppet government, while Tang was to have become Director of the Civil Department.

Chow and Tang sent a joint letter to Wang before their departure from Shanghai, condemning him for selling his country under the cloak of a "peace movement."

Tripled Aircraft Production

WASHINGTON, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—America's production of aeroplane parts and engines has tripled during the past year, President Roosevelt told a Press conference during a discussion on the controversy over the release of planes of recent design to foreign powers.

President Roosevelt said that there was no question of giving away military secrets as the designs of the planes were not secret, but "only devices on them."

DEATH OF MR. LI CHOR CHI

His many friends in the Colony will be shocked to learn of the passing of Mr. Li Chor-chi, Accountant of the Overseas Chinese Banking Corporation and Secretary of the Ho Hong Co., Ltd.

Mr. Li passed away at 7.15 this morning at the Queen Mary Hospital, where he had been confined since last Friday, suffering from acute gastric trouble.

Born in Sydney 52 years ago, Mr. Li came to Hongkong when still a young man. He spent several years in Saigon where he studied singing and languages. A tenor of no mean ability he could sing in Italian, Spanish and French, and was a fluent French scholar. He used to broadcast over ZBW and had organised many concerts on behalf of various charities.

The late Mr. Li came from a well-known family. He is survived by two brothers and two sisters—Mr. William Yinson Lee, Chinese manager of the Chinese Branch of the National Cash Register Co., and James Zee-charitable worker, Mr. James Zee-charitable worker, who recently paid a visit to Hongkong from Hollywood, where he had appeared in a number of films, Mrs. Rose Chow, vice-President of the Chinese Women's Club and daughter-in-law of the Hon. Sir Shou-son Chow, and Mrs. Alice Chow, wife of Mr. C. L. Chow, B.A., F.C.I., F.R.S. (Birmingham).

The late Mr. Li took a great interest in public affairs, having only last week been re-elected a member of the Committee of the Kowloon Residents' Association, with which he had been connected for a number of years. He was also, at the time of his death, Chairman of the Hongkong Auxiliary of the Chinese Mission for Lepers, which was founded by his brother, Mr. Yinson Lee.

The body has been removed to Brown Jones Funeral Parlour at 48 Morrison Hill Road, and the funeral arrangements will be announced tomorrow.

In lieu of flowers, friends are requested to send donations in memory of the late Mr. Li Chor-chi to the Chungshan Refugees Fund, c/o S. C. M. Post.

There's nothing like white—chips, starch, white—for giving a lift to tired clothes. And if you can't invest in an all-new trimmings. Choose materials that will wash, because the white must be white every time you wear it.

Suggestions here—a frilly petticoat, a blouse, waistbands and a lace yoke—would look fine on any black or dark blue dress.

1 This blouse would look grand under a plain dark suit. It is made of coarse white Irish lace, and tailored. It has a small turn-down collar, long, close sleeves, and the yoke is threaded with velvet ribbon.

2 This babyish bib is really a yoke for a dinner dress. It is made in broderie anglaise, with embroidered scalloped edges. Embroidered slots round the pie frill neck take a velvet ribbon to draw it close round the neck.

3 Any of your good, dark though rather tired-looking gloves can be given new life this way. Sew a strip of bold lace up the wrist.

4 This linen petticoat to swing beneath your skirt will give a lot of lift to a tired frock. Flared from the flat hip yoke, the hem is trimmed with crocheted lace and embroidery.

5 Any frock you're bored with could do with this. Cut out the neck to a low square and tuck into it this gilet of fine embroidered lawn. There are wristbands to match.

6 Another dark frock could be made into a pinafore to wear over the organdie blouse. The shoulders are padded, the long neck line trimmed with an embroidered band.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed Full of Vim and Vigor.

Your liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food does not digest. It just decays in the bowels, the bowels up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned. You feel sour, sick and the world looks puny. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes three times as long to make a bowel movement as it does to get the liver to pour out its bile. Little Liver Pills get the liver to making bile flow freely. Look for the name "Little Liver Pills" on the red package. It tells you everything else.

ALLEGED FORGED CINEMA TICKETS

Majestic Theatre Booking
Clerk On Trial

The discovery by Mr. C. Coldin, manager of the Majestic Theatre, of eight forged counterfoils among the tickets sold for the 7.20 p.m. performance on February 13 led to the appearance of Chui Sui-po, head Shroff and booking clerk of the theatre, before the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor, at the Criminal Sessions this morning on nine charges of uttering forged documents.

Mr. E. H. Williams, Crown Counsel, prosecuted, and Chui was defended by the Hon. Mr. Leo D'Almada, Jnr., instructed by Mr. D. McCullum. The following comprised the Jury: Messrs. L. B. Warren (Foreman), Wong Kwok-king, Wong Man-ki, B. Agaturoff, J. B. Tam, Wong Kim-wah and Fung Ping-tin.

Policeman's Discovery
 Mr. Williams said Chui had been in the employ of the Theatre for six years and at the time of his arrest was in charge of the 1st class booking office. It was also his duty to sell tickets for logs and dress circle seats and to look after the cash. On December 15, Mr. Williams continued, Sergeant N. B. Fraser, acting on instructions, went to the Theatre and booked two dress circle seats for the 7.20 performance. He was given two tickets by Chui, and Sgt. Fraser found that one of them was different from the other. Another extraordinary thing he discovered was that the numbers were not consecutive.

Nothing further happened until February 13 when, after the 7.20 performance had started, Mr. Coldin made a check of the counterfoils which were then in the hands of an usher. He found that eight of them were forgeries. As a result the Police were informed and Chui was arrested.

The cash book kept by Chui was examined and it was noticed that tickets bearing the same numbers as those on the forged ones had already been sold the previous day.

Wong Chi-wah, of the Albert Printing Press, said his company had been printing tickets for the Theatre for the past ten years. One of the differences in one of the forged tickets was that the character 'C' in the word 'Majestic' was without the bottom hook and resembled an R.

Cross-examined, witness agreed that the colour and texture of the genuine tickets were sometimes different, and that there was sufficient resemblance in the forged tickets to puzzle even him.

BLACK-OUT OFFENCES

Chinese Householders Given Stiff Fine

A sequel to the black-out test carried out on March 5 was the appearance before Mr. Sheldon at the Central Magistracy this morning of several Chinese, summoned for failing to screen the lights in their houses during the blackout.

Two of the defendants, Leung Siu-choi, of 44 Stanley Street, ground floor, and Ng Ki, of 38 Ice House Street, ground floor, were fined $100 each.

In the case of Leung, whose premises are the May Fay Tailor Co., Sub-Inspector Lam Yung-nan said he noticed a bright light showing after 8 p.m. and when he knocked at the door to tell the occupants to extinguish it, he received no answer.

Playing Mah-jong
 Police Reservist A. F. Delgado said many people were playing mah-jong in Ng's premises. He warned the occupants to extinguish the light, but they took no notice of him.

Ng pleaded his sister-in-law was expecting a child, and the light was kept on for that emergency. The lights were shaded with black cloth, however, he added.

Inspector A. W. Smith, prosecuting, said much publicity had been given to the black-out test and there was no reason why the public should be ignorant of the regulations. There were many people who took no notice of the regulations, and they made the task of the Police very difficult.

Mr. Sheldon agreed and said the offences were serious. He remarked that when certain individuals failed to comply with the regulations, the whole scheme would be a failure.

Warrants Issued
 Similar summonses against Chan Kam-chuen, of No. 1 Cochrane Street, ground floor, and Sun Yuk-hon, of No. 43A Wyndham Street, first floor, were adjourned. Defendants did not appear, and after notice of service had been taken, warrants for their arrest were issued. Bail of $160 was allowed.

Confidence Vote For Daladier

SPECIAL TO THE TELEGRAPH
 PARIS, Mar. 20 (UP).—The Chamber of Deputies, by a show of hands, unanimously passed a Vote of Confidence in M. Daladier, on the Order of the Day expressing homages to "France".

There were three booking offices in the theatre. One of them—the first class—was under the charge of Chui, who was also responsible for the sale of all three.

The entries in the cash book kept by Chui showed that for the performance in question, 93 full-price and our half-price tickets were sold, whereas the booking plan disclosed 2 and 3 respectively. Among the counterfoils were 26 complimentary ones as compared with 33 shown on the plan.

Questioned by Mr. D'Almada, Mr. Coldin agreed that occasionally one of the ushers sold the tickets. Frequently the booking office was opened in hour or so before the arrival of Chui and during that period tickets could be sold by the second shroff or one of the ushers who had authority to do so.

The eight forged tickets could have been sold on the day previous and by someone else, not necessarily Chui. It was quite possible to make an error in the marking of the booking plan.

Must Have Accomplice
 On February 13 the cash in hand corresponded with the stub, though the entries in the cash book differed from those on the booking plan.

 NEW YORK, Mar. 19 (UP).—National Socialism, as it exists to-day in Germany, is a ghastly disease like typhoid.

"The germs, like the Germans, are always with us. But we Americans can protect ourselves if we know how to keep our resistance high."

America's Danger

This was part of a speech at the Women's Jewish Congress in New York to-day, by Mr. P. V. McNutt, former Governor General of the Philippines, currently Federal Security Administrator, and contender for Presidential honours at the forthcoming elections.

Mr. McNutt added that America was not greatly menaced by the danger of an invasion by the legions of Stalin or Hitler.

"Our danger lies in continuing along the road permitting the centralization of control of business and finance until we are driven by poverty and despair to accept a dictator of our own," he said.

It was stated that Ho was seen by a revenue officer with the camera in his possession, and when questioned he said he was commissioned to buy the camera from Macao. Mr. Sheldon pointed out that all "photographic equipment, especially of enemy origin is prohibited from being brought into the Colony unless one can prove that it was brought in before September 3 of last. A fine of $20 was imposed and the camera confiscated.

Prospects For 1940 Considered Good

The annual meeting of the Hongkong Rope Manufacturing Company, Limited, was held at the registered offices of the Company, No. 10, Des Voeux Road Central, at 11.30 a.m. to-day, the Chairman, the Hon. Mr. A. L. Shiels, presiding.

Others present were: Sir Robert Ho Tung, Messrs. A. J. Braga, S. T. Williamson (Directors), Lau Siu-chuen, Kam Wah-kui, I. W. Shewan, J. Dick, H. Dreyer, C. W. L. Coe, A. A. Botelho and F. J. Tavares (Secretary).

Chairman's Speech

The Chairman said: The Net Profit for the year is $115,474.00 and this amount added to the balance of $54,315.70 brought forward from 1939, shows a total of $170,300.30 at credit of Profit and Loss Account available for appropriation, which your Directors recommended be dealt with as follows:—Pay a dividend of 50 cents per share, absorbing $100,000.00; pay a bonus to Staff and Workers $5,501.00; and to carry forward to the credit of next year's account $64,803.30.

Competition is still very keen, but I am pleased to be able to report that our sales of rope during the year under review exceeded those of the previous year. You will see in the Profit and Loss Account that the profit on working is $112,945.47. This compared with the figures for 1938 shows an increase of about 30 per cent.

With regard to our properties, there was a constant demand for Chinese flats during the past year and all the 112 flats of the 28 houses at Kennedy Town continue to be fully occupied.

The factory buildings at Ma-lau-ko are also in occupation. The Stocks and Stores have been valued, as usual, at cost or under, and depreciation on buildings, etc., has been calculated on the usual basis. Additional depreciation of

BERLIN, Mar. 19 (UP).—FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE THE OUTBREAK OF WAR, FIGHTING OCCURRED ACROSS THE RHINE RIVER TO-DAY, WHEN FRENCH TROOPS OPENED MACHINE GUN ATTACKS ON THE GERMANS ENTRENCHED ON THE EAST-ERN BANK.

This admission was made in the D.N.B. official report of to-day's activity.

French shock troops were also observed on reconnaissance in considerable force.

The Nazi report adds that weak French artillery fire occurred at the usual points in front of the Siegfried Line (the first time the Nazis have mentioned their "West Wall" as being the object of French artillery fire).

No Man's Land Scouting

"At some points the enemy artillery fire was answered," the communique adds.

"Mutual scouting activity developed in No Man's Land, and enemy patrols were forced to return without completing their task."

"The weather permitted very little aerial activity."

Strict Precautions By
Eire Government

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

DUBLIN, Mar. 19 (UP).—Fears of Easter Week disorders are believed to be responsible for the widespread military activity which has been so noticeable in Eire to-day.

The Governments of Eire and Northern Ireland have both prohibited Easter Week commemorations this year for the first time in Ireland since 1922.

Republican organisations have completed arrangements for demonstrations, particularly in the Dublin area. This Government has ordered newspapers not to mention these demonstrations, either in the news or advertising columns.

NOW YOU KNOW

French "shock troops" were observed in No Man's Land yesterday. What are shock troops? The War Office do not recognise the existence of shock troops as such, technically speaking, there is no such thing.

But, especially as far as the German Army is concerned, shock troops are taken to mean specially picked troops of excellent physique—good tough soldiers. They do not man the front line, but are kept in positions a little to the rear until they are needed for a vigorous attack. When they have done their job of work they are withdrawn behind the lines again.

It is reliably stated that the manoeuvres are to test developments in naval warfare as affected by the present European War.

Five Important Tests
 The Graf Spee drama off Montevideo, which upset many pre-war notions held, apparently, by all Admiralties except the British, will be one of the fundamental developments which will be the subject of test in the current manoeuvres. Other subjects will include:

1.—Vulnerability of land-locked naval bases to undersea craft, a question that has been changed by the entry of the Nazi U-boat submarines into the Baltic area;
 2.—Effectiveness of mines and torpedoes on armoured warships;
 3.—Effectiveness of A.A. defence aboard warships;
 4.—Value of the convoy system against air raids.

Sea Warfare

AMSTERDAM, Mar. 19 (Reuters).—Nazi attempts to justify the German methods of sea warfare have been rejected by the Netherlands liberal newspaper "Nieuwe Rotherdamsche Courant."

The paper declares that on a number of points the neutrals have formed their own opinion, an opinion which differs considerably from the German standpoint.

It is not only according to British reports that Dutch crews have been shot at and Dutch ships sunk, says the paper.

Nearly the whole of the German procedure against the Dutch ships has aroused indignation in Holland.

Pawns of The Political Game

YESTERDAY'S report that a three-Power agreement between Germany, Italy and Russia is imminent provides a big temptation for jesting comment, and is certain to revive the jokes about Russia becoming the immutable enemy of the Comintern, which were prevalent when the Soviet and Nazi Germany effected their rapprochement. At the same time it is foolish to overlook the serious aspect of a three-Power political pact as envisaged in the news despatches. Its effectuation would entail a considerable loss of "face" by the two anti-Comintern States, hitherto sworn enemies of the Soviet and all things which the Russian system represents, but more important would be the political changes it would bring about in southeastern Europe and the Near East. The Balkans, already harassed by the close proximity of Greater Germany and Russia, would find it difficult to resist a tri-Power diplomatic "Diktat" even though the Allies were to make counter guarantees of equal dimension.

It is quite obvious that the proposed rapprochement is not based on any single purpose. All three countries would enter the pact with individual ulterior motives; Germany to gain economic control of the Balkans; Italy to have two strong supporters for her "natural aspirations" in Northeast Africa and the Suez; and Russia for the protection of her illegal conquests in Poland and Finland. This factor of individual and separate aims is the weak point of any political pact between Germany, Russia and Italy. The partners become independent instead of interdependent, a position which may well bring about a quicker disruption of the partnership than any militaristic or economic action by the Allied Powers or the threatened Balkan States.

Hitler's assertion that he does not want the European conflict to be spread to the Balkans and the Near East may be a true reflection of his feelings, but the accompanying theory that a three-Power agreement would guarantee peace in those areas is hard to swallow. The more obvious effect would be to force the Allies into extending the war, if only to prevent Germany from acquiring so easily the economic war weapons which she so badly needs.

It is realisation of this possible turn to events which is probably influencing Hitler to seek Italy's positive aid in the war against the democracies. To bring about his economic conquest of the Balkans Hitler must have the political support of Italy and Russia; to guarantee that conquest against Allied interference he needs the armed support of at least Italy, and if he can get it, of Russia. Thus, once again, the little Balkan States become pawns in the political game of the great nations.

BEYOND THE MAGINOT LINE

IN groups of two, each strictly separated by about 200 yards—the men who occupy the most forward of our positions beyond the Maginot Line, climbed a hill to their lonely outposts in the wood above. Beyond that are the Germans. They move in such small groups because, as the blackboard on the road told them, the climb is all the way under observation from the enemy; and sometimes he lashes off with his machine-guns.

I climbed up to the wood and to its hidden outposts to-day—the first of all the war correspondents out here to be allowed to pay a visit to our men who are in constant contact with the enemy.

THE real "front" lies some miles beyond our reserve line; and to reach it you must drive along exposed roads, and through deep forests where snow still lies on the ground.

You drive through several villages where human beings no longer live, and come finally to the blackboard on the road.

Beyond this point no vehicle may travel, no man may walk with more than one companion at his side; and no man may venture unless he has a tin hat perched uncomfortably on his head.

Plum trees line the road that leads up to the wood on the hill's summit; and fields from which last year's harvest was never fully gathered, roll across a wide valley bordered by woods into whose depths enemy night patrols occasionally penetrate.

Beyond the valley and on the summit of its enclosing ridge the German machine gunners lie waiting for parties sufficiently large to make it worth their while to fire.

When you are through the wire beyond the wood, you are but a few yards from positions from which our men watch, and sometimes check with their machine-guns, the daily movements of the enemy.

FROM these positions you can sweep the whole range of hills opposite through powerful glasses and bring it within a comparatively few yards of your eyes.

Below is a deserted red-roofed village, where pigs, abandoned by their former owners in the hour of evacuation, roam at will and flourish until such times as either a British or a German patrol ventures into the deserted streets and captures one for fresh meat.

FARTHER down the valley lies another empty village. Reports have long said that the Germans kept a permanent observation post there; but one regiment, when it was on duty in the outposts, had an idea that the reports were not quite true. To satisfy themselves, they sent out a daylight patrol, found that the Germans had gone, and rang the church bells just to tell the enemy where they were!

During the day the Germans make themselves scarce. Only a few were visible this morning; and when they had gone into the woods on their side of No Man's Land the country was immobile for some hours.

Only the occasional rattle of machine-guns on our flanks and the almost perpetual dull thud of artillery fire made it clear that the world is populated by more than the quiet men in our outposts and the huge black birds that fly ceaselessly across the cold, disputed land.

By PHILIP JORDAN

News Chronicle

Correspondent with the B.E.F.

SOME of those quiet men live in "The Ritz." It has sandbag walls, but it has a door, chintz curtains, a stove that everybody wishes would not sometimes take it into its head to smoke, two armchairs and a double bed! The kitchen adjoins; and from here hot meals, carried up the hill in huge vacuum flask containers, are served out at the proper time.

Tea came up while I was there to-day. Two men wheeled it up in an ornate old tyreless perambulator that they had "scrounged" from somewhere. Bread, margarine in huge yellow tins, raspberry jam, cheese, tea, and water for making it. That was this evening's meal.

MEN OF THE Q-SHIPS

The opening of another ruthless German submarine campaign recalls some of the most magnificent feats of the Great War—those of the Q-ships. The ships' activities ceased in 1919, but the deeds of their crews have lived on to record annals of courage and self-sacrifice that cannot be surpassed.

These ships went to sea with the deliberate intention of luring submarines to attack them, and Lieutenant-Commander E. Koble Chatterton has told how the officers and men serving in them—they consisted of armoured colliers, trams, liners, cross-channel packets, &c.—were drawn from every category of the sea—the Royal Navy, Royal Naval Reserve, Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve, and Royal Fleet Reserve.

In his words, "They came from battleships and little ships, from fishing vessels, sailing craft, yachts, barracks, offices, and cab ranks. Hand-picked, disciplined, they were every one volunteers for what could be nothing but weeks of boredom suddenly enlivened by the fiercest excitement, ending probably in death. For their captains the responsibilities were enormous. First-class seaman-ship, exceptional coolness, immense patience, considerable imagination and quite unusual initiative were demanded."

The ships were of all types, and they were fitted out with guns and depth charges which were cleverly concealed behind dummy deck-houses, boats, &c.

The Panic Party

The crews would entice the enemy to close quarters by making a show of abandoning ship. No effort was spared to give the operations of the "panic party" every semblance of reality, for the success of the ruse and the lives of the ship and her crew depended on the submarine commander being taken in by the apparent haste of the men to pull away—by such studied details of a bird in its cage, the unkempt skipper, and a miscellany of uniforms. Often the ruse was completely successful and many submarines were sunk, although the Q-ships did not emerge from the campaign without suffering heavy losses.

Everything had to be rehearsed to the minutest detail, so that the suspicions of the submarine commander would not be aroused. If this did happen the submarine would dive and come up again unawares during the night and sink its opponent. The members of the panic party were all drilled into exactly what answers to give if the submarine commander asked questions, so that details were pat about the destination of the ship, cargo, and so on.

If the submarine did dive and hope to come up later the men on the Q-ship effected the most incredible changes during the time that elapsed. Funnels were repainted and the marks of another shipping company were put on, even the hull was sometimes gone over, a mast would be taken down, false deck-houses and other deck features were likewise altered.

Concealed Guns

The guns were very cleverly hidden on the decks. In some cases they were disguised by a dummy boat that had been sawn in halves and could be removed instantly. In others a gun was concealed by what appeared to be a life-belt locker. Sometimes tarpaulin screens concealed them, and these dropped at a touch.

At the critical moment for action the signalman would drop the Red Ensign and run up the White Ensign, so informing the enemy of the real status of the ship. Almost always the engagement was short and sharp—the submarine was holed at a vital point and sank or the Q-ship went to her doom.

Scores of stories could be told of the gallant fights put up and the names of many of the Q-ships are immortal in the history of the British Navy. One of the earliest was the Prince Charles, and experience with her did much to influence the evolution of the Q-ship. She was a collier and came up against the submarine U-36. The commander of the U-36 began to shell and the collier's panic party tumbled into the boats. The U-boat closed in, when suddenly her crew were amazed to see men on the deck of the Prince Charles clearing tarpaulins. Shells pumped forth, and the submarine attempted to dive but was holed too badly. With a plunge she went to the bottom.

Another was the Hellgoland, a sailing vessel of about 310 tons, which made things hot for the U-boats, and time and again she escaped only miraculously. Then

Other men—the machine-gunners—live in their scientifically-sited posts; but these are not so comfortable as "The Ritz." You cannot sit upright in these sandbagged log cabins; you have to lie down all the time on the warm straw that covers the hard earth below.

All these, as it were, inverted dugouts lie close to the firing positions. Most of the firing positions and observation posts are tiny sandbagged fortresses, so placed that they enjoy the maximum security and combine it with the maximum effectiveness whenever it is necessary for the men inside to use their Bren and other quick-firing weapons.

Powerful telescopes help the sentries in these posts to pass long hours of duty without great strain on their eyes.

ALL the men I found up there this morning are well and cheerful. And, like all their comrades elsewhere, are more concerned with their coming leave than with the enemy they face. When their turn comes some may go with a ribbon on their chests, for in the valley below them all the decorations of this war have so far been won, for those valleys and all land around the outposts are the battlefields of this strange conflict.

Not that they underrate the enemy's skill. They do not. They will tell you that he has been trained to the last hair and that what he does not know about patrol work is not worth knowing. But that is about all they do say of him.

BY the time these words get to London, those men will have been relieved; and will have picked their way across the trip wires and all the empty tins that they have laid around them; and will have marched back to rest. When they come out of the line they will have learned the first three lessons of modern warfare: patience, patience, and then more patience still.

there was the Glen, which encountered a submarine and began her play-acting as a terrified coaster, and the panic party got ready to lower the boat. The enemy dived within 200 yards, and, seeing the "alarm" came nearer still, to within about 80 yards.

Then the Glen opened fire, and shell after shell crashed into the submarine's hull. In fact she was riddled and by diving sealed her own doom. Shortly afterwards another submarine appeared and attempted to fight the Glen, but gave up the task towards dusk, finding the Q-boat crew too tough.

A Hot Combat

The first prize brought in during the war was the German schooner Else, appropriately renamed the Prize, and she became a Q-boat. She worked the U-boat No. 93 after an epic fight. Traveller Skipper Prever and six men abandoned the ship, and with every evidence of the old "coaster" the submarine commander thought he had an easy prey. He fired shells at her and caused casualties, but the men lay low. The submarine came within 70 yards, and her commander lost all suspicion.

That was the critical moment. The order flashed: "Down screens! Up White Ensign! Open fire!" The Prize fired on, although the submarine answered to the last, and marine answered to the last, and the amazing thing was the survivors on board managed to quell the fire and to regain the surface, and under Lieutenant Ziegler she reached port, a marvellous performance.

One of the finest feats of all was that of the Lowestoft fishing smack, Telesia. She was travelling 35 miles south of that port, and had guns on board. It was about noon when the submarine appeared, and to the skipper's amazement it fired a torpedo, costing hundreds of pounds, at its tiny opponent. The Telesia let straight away—there was nothing else to do. Fortunately the missile missed the smack's bows by about four feet, and then the enemy dived.

Half an hour later the enemy reappeared and hoped to finish off the job—and fired another torpedo. This missed and the Telesia answered back full of spite. She got in two perfect shots and holed the submarine. The U-boat thought it wiser to dive and make off, for a third shot would have been fatal. So rapidly did she dive that her propeller showed. This gallant smack had the honour of appearing in the Naval Review during King George V's Silver Jubilee.

House Of Commons Debates The War PREMIER DEFENDS HIS POLICY

LONDON, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—Continuing his speech in the House of Commons Mr. Chamberlain next referred to President Roosevelt's definition of moral peace.

"It is to obtain such a peace that we have taken up arms," added Mr. Chamberlain.

"We intend to fight until it has been secured."

The Prime Minister then dealt with the Scapa Flow raid which he described as "an unimportant affair."

Raid A Failure
"It indeed it was a raid upon the fleet in Scapa Flow," he continued, "it must be classed as a failure. Not more than 20 bombs were dropped."

"But perhaps undue attention has been given to what happened because of what is described as 'an unimpeachable communiqué' from the German High Command," (Laughter).

"We remember their previous 'unimpeachable communiqués'. Only one warship was damaged and that damage was minor."

"We must always expect attacks on our fleet bases on our northern and eastern shores but we are confident of our ability to meet them."

"This was the first attack made upon the land. 121 high explosive bombs and 500 incendiary bombs were dropped over an area of a hundred square miles of mainland. There were several civilian casualties including one dead."

"The excuse given by the German High Command is that they were bombing military objectives but whatever their intention may have been the House will note the facts and know that the responsibility for the consequences must rest upon the authors." (Cheers).

"In this grim struggle minor incidents of this kind are of little importance."

Answers Criticism
"There are some who would want a more vigorous policy, who say that by some unexplained imaginative stroke of daring we ought to wrest to ourselves the initiative."

"With the responsibility which rests upon the shoulders of Government we cannot be hurried to adventures which appear to us to present little chance of success and much chance of danger and perhaps disaster."

"The time and place for us to strike must be decided upon with the most expert advice we can command."

"In the meantime the best way to ensure victory is to preserve unshaken our determination and unity."

"We have redoubtable allies. We have our kinsmen and fellow subjects in the British Empire. We have loyal and trusted friends across the Channel with their magnificent army and unflinching spirit."

"Best of all, we have the consciousness that what we are fighting for is what every right-minded citizen in the world desires on which to base the establishment of a durable and moral peace."

"Of which President Roosevelt spoke," concluded Mr. Chamberlain amid loud cheers.

Mr. Attlee Cautious
The Rt. Hon. Mr. C. R. Attlee said that Finland's magnificent fight against aggression was in the same cause as that for which Britain was fighting.

"The duty of assisting Finland," he said, "was not laid only upon Britain but upon all members of the State's League. In this case Norway and Sweden, he said, had not powerful armaments."

"He did not like to hear harsh judgment made against people who after all were pretty close to the front line."

"The amount of aid Britain could send was conditioned by the extent to which they could act in concert with Sweden and Norway."

"Any infringement of their rights was quite unthinkable," he continued.

"The Opposition asked Mr. Attlee were not in a position to say that the British Government could have sent more help with safety, but he would like to be certain that what had been sent was sent in time and without unnecessary delay."

"He hoped that the example of this country in helping with the reconstruction of Finland would be followed by others."

"Mr. Attlee then asked if Britain was doing all that could be done in the diplomatic, military and economic field."

Must Learn The Lesson
He agreed with Mr. Chamberlain that the lesson they must learn from Finland was that if they wanted to defeat aggression they must stand together."

"He trusted that they would be prepared to resist any attack which Hitler might make upon them."

"He, however, declared that the policy of sitting quiet would be suicidal and that the initiative must not be left with Hitler."

"They must use their material and human resources in the best possible way, he added."

Too Much Unemployed
On the subject of coal he said that too many miners were unemployed for war time. The transport system was wasteful and they should make better use of railroad, canal and sea transport. He was of the opinion that a great deal more direction was wanted there."

"They wanted greater utilization of their man-power and Mr. Attlee reminded the House that there were still 1,400,000 unemployed in Britain."

"Sir Archibald Sinclair agreed with Mr. Chamberlain in assigning the proper perspective to the recent engagement at Scapa Flow."

"The course of this war had been so unexpected and so quiet, he said, that if a gun went off anywhere the people seemed to assume tremendous things."

"They were at war with an im-

Hitler May Tell Of Brenner Parleys

AMSTERDAM, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—Hitler may summon the Reichstag in the next few days to hear the result of the Brenner meeting. It is learned from a Berlin source.

The decision probably depends on the final message from Rome after Signor Mussolini's farewell talk with Mr. Sumner Welles.

not conduct to winning the war to suggest that this country is being outwitted at every turn by our opponents and that our measures to carry the war to a successful conclusion are open to criticism on the ground that there are leaks through which they are supplies into Germany. That is not a true picture."

Mr. Dalton had failed to understand the scale on which we are working and the small proportion to the whole of those leaks. One could not expect to establish a perfect blockade.

Mr. Chamberlain emphasized the difficulty of conducting the blockade and said that Mr. Dalton gave them to understand that no neutral rights should stand if, by violating them, we could damage the enemy.

Forfeited Right Of Appeal
Mr. Chamberlain emphasized that we were trying to keep within the rules of international law and said that as far as Germany was concerned she had absolutely forfeited any right of appeal to international law against any violation of that law we might embark upon in order to injure her. But there were very few cases in which the matter was as simple as that.

When it came to infringing the rights of neutrals in our endeavour to engage the enemy at closer quarters, we must have some regard for those international laws to which we had appealed so often ourselves.

Referring to the allegation of Mr. Dalton that Norway had tolerated violation of her neutrality by German warships, Mr. Chamberlain said the British Navy and Air Force had kept a constant and continuous watch on Norwegian waters to see if German warships were violating them. And had we been able to establish a single case of that kind we would not have hesitated ourselves to enter those territorial waters and attack such ship. (Cheers).

Peculiar And Perverse
Dealing with criticisms regarding the Finnish war, Mr. Chamberlain described Sir Archibald Sinclair's speech as peculiar and perverse. He pointed out that the question of sending volunteers never could have played a major part in any assistance which could have been given.

We were told that trained troops were what Marshal Mannerheim wanted. Volunteers never could have played a major part in the campaign if they stood alone. We did not know that the situation was deteriorating up to a short time before the final collapse. We were told that the spirit of the army was completely unbroken and they were completely able to hold the Mannerheim Line.

It was only really a few days before the final collapse that we were informed that the situation was considered serious.

Referred To Chiefs Of Staff
Mr. Chamberlain said that every request the Finns made to us was referred to the Chiefs of Staff to now whether there was any justification in the circumstances in which we found ourselves. If we had considered solely those things which were naturally proper in the minds of the Chiefs of Staff, we should have sent very much less than we did. The Cabinet took the responsibility and risk in sending equipment and material which we thought might help the Finns to hold out.

Dealing with the criticism that the Government had been too late, Mr. Chamberlain stressed the enormous preparations required for such an expedition and said that the troops had to be specially selected and equipped to work in deep snow. Equipment had to be procured from another country, and transport had to be made ready.

It was not easy to pick up a number of ships at a moment's notice and make them ready for such a special expedition. Nevertheless it was done.

Everything was arranged according to a definite timetable.

Why Expedition Did Not Sail
The reason for the Finns' hesitation to make an appeal for assistance was too small or too late. It was neither hesitation nor vacillation. The only reason the expedition never sailed was because when the time came, the Finns could not make an appeal because Sweden and Norway flatly refused to allow troops to pass through their countries.

Replying to the criticism that Britain might have sent planes, the Prime Minister said that when the Finns required large quantities of bombers, these could only have been taken from the home defence or the B.E.F. Nevertheless we sympathetically considered the appeal but bombers could not operate without preparation for a ground staff, reserve ammunition and means of transport. They must be able to operate continuously from Finland. We were ready to supply the crews and a number of bombing planes if the appeal was made, but by that time we knew that negotiations were going on. We were not sure that the fighting would continue and could not contemplate sending large numbers, precious to ourselves, if after all we found that they failed to save the Finns and we could not get them

RIOTS IN LAHORE

25 Killed And 39 Injured

LAHORE, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—It is officially announced that the police had to fire after being attacked by a band of men from the North-Western Frontier who were trying to hold a procession in military formation in defiance of the Government ban.

Two police officers and 23 of the demonstrators were killed and 39 injured persons are now in hospital.

The District Magistrate was among the injured.

Soldiers Take Over
Military reinforcements have arrived and are patrolling the city. The men are members of the Muslim movement. They wear uniforms, carry spears and conduct military drills. They have encouraged rival movements among the Hindus. The aggravation of feeling led the Government to ban all processions of such societies.

Optimistic Hitler
Sees Success In New Peace Offensive

BERLIN, Mar. 19 (UP).—Hitler and his Foreign Minister arrived here at 11.25 a.m. today.

The Fuehrer was in excellent spirits and proceeded immediately to the Chancellery where he conferred with Goering and his military leaders.

Triangular Talks Soon
Informed quarters here understand that ranking Soviet officials, at present in Berlin, will soon begin triangular talks. The German Ambassadors Schulenburg and Von Papen are returning from the Balkans and Turkey to report before Easter.

Informed sources said that Moscow is shortly to be co-ordinated in the German-Italian programme to neutralise Anglo-French influence in the southeast. It is also understood that Hitler told Mussolini that Italy's political collaboration will be sufficient to force peace on the basis of the German-Italian terms.

Irrevocable Decisions
AMSTERDAM, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—Wilhelmstrasse spokesmen told neutral correspondents that people abroad still did not seem to understand that the German Government had taken two decisions:

(1) To continue the war until complete victory is achieved; Germany's vital interests once and for all and end the eternal menace of the plutocratic democracies.

In the meantime the Wilhelmstrasse is openly discussing the desirability of a better understanding between Russia and Italy.

"Reuter" understands that a visit by Herr von Ribbentrop, the German Foreign Minister, to Moscow is still possible.

Nothing More To Say
BERLIN, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—An inspired statement denying peace plan rumours declares that Germany has nothing to say on the question of peace after the rejection of the Fuehrer's offer on October 6, 1939, an offer made only once.

Welles As Pawn
WASHINGTON, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—Official quarters here persist in affirming that Mr. Sumner Welles had no hand in the Brenner Conference.

It is suggested here that Hitler is seeking to use Mr. Sumner Welles' presence for his own purposes.

The press here are of the opinion that Hitler is probably toying with the idea of bringing about improved Russo-Italian relations and that Mussolini will consider the stabilisation of the Balkans worth the price of shaking hands with Moscow.

According to the "Baltimore Sun", President Roosevelt is considering the resumption of full diplomatic relations with Germany and his choice for United States Ambassador for Berlin will probably be Mr. Clarence Piccott, leading figure in Quaker relief work and peace activities.

Even so, in response to an appeal from the Finnish Minister at the last moment we did send what bombers we could.

Did All We Could
Subject to the responsibility of winning the war against our own enemy, we did all we could in the time (Cheers).

On the question of production, Mr. Chamberlain said that he was convinced that during the next fortnight the House would be able to see an appreciable increase in production of goods. Although differences were expressed this afternoon, these were on the surface of an underlying unity of the parties. (Cheers).

Mr. Chamberlain said that he accepted and subscribed to the words of President Roosevelt the other day regarding what a peace should be. He concluded: "While we had not embarked on war, I did my best to avert war. Now that I have entered the struggle, I shall be just as determined and just as persistent in achieving the purpose we have in mind as I was in trying to keep the peace before the war started." (Cheers).

BRITAIN'S BUDGET

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

LONDON, Mar. 19 (UP).—The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir John Simon announced in the House of Commons today that he will present the Budget on April 23.

Sir Andrew Duncan, President of the Board of Trade, announced that the Anglo-Spanish Loan and Payments agreement was signed in Madrid on Monday.

Press Opinions
Sympathetic Roosevelt
Supporting Cause Of The Allies

LONDON, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—The New York "Mirror" says: "Certainly President Roosevelt is sympathetic to the cause of the Allies and antagonistic to the cause of the Dictators. Certainly he sent Mr. Sumner Welles to Europe to find out how America can help to effect a peace that will not embarrass or jeopardise the interests of the Allies."

The Swiss Press attitude to the Hitler-Mussolini meeting is best summed up by the "Bund" which says: "We cannot help believing that Hitler's journey must have some connection with Mr. Welles' last days in Europe."

The article ends: "The political significance of the meeting will consist in Mussolini once more reminding Hitler that Italy's actions are conditioned by Italy's interests and nothing else."

Tide Talk
The "Basler Nachrichten" says: "In Rome there is much idle talk of a possible change of Italian policy towards Russia, but opinion here maintains that there is no good reason now why Italy should want this."

The "Zurichers" says: "In Berlin and in transport circles here, it is believed that an increase in coal deliveries to Italy via Brenner is only possible if tremendous efforts are made and precise time-tables and organisation introduced. The slightest interruption will endanger the whole."

Soviet Press Views
Foreign news columns in the Soviet Press are lately occupied mainly with the following themes: (1) The imperialists, thwarted in the plot to force Scandinavia into a war against the U.S.S.R., are now busily trying to create a new war front elsewhere. Only the peace-loving policy of the U.S.S.R. has, till now, kept the European war from becoming a world conflagration.

(2) British designs in the Near East generally and the Balkans in particular are proved, by the presence of large numbers of British troops in Egypt, Iraq, Palestine and Kenya, and the army in the Near East under General Weigand;

(3) The Imperialists hope to repeat the "Finnish experiment."

The Russian Aim
These three tendentious reports, published daily, are designed to show an imminent conflict between the Allies and Italy as the result of ambitions clashing over the Balkans, the Suez Canal, etc.

The London "Times" in a leader entitled "Fishing For Information," points out that the German attack on Scapa Flow was a duck. The German Command must, therefore, rely on such information, as the British Government can be induced to vouchsafe.

The favourite German device is to vociferate inflated claims in the hope to provoke Admiralty detailed denials from which reliable information could be deduced.

Around The Courses CONCEPTIONS OF BODY WEIGHT

A.A. Lopes Wins Senior Championship At Country Club

(By "Birdie")

THE RAINS CAME—and let us thank whom we must for the brief but fairly solid showers that fell on golf courses during the past week. The fairways were quite unrecognisable in the fresh green colour they had put on. The Country Club course at Sheungshui lost its resilience and its parched appearance, and for the first time in many moons the sand greens played as though of turf.

The great match of the week-end past was the final of the Country Club Championship, in which A. A. Lopes beat E. Sadick 3 and 1, over 36 holes.

Lopes finished the first 18 holes one up, and at one stage in the second 18 Sadick had drawn level, but Lopes gradually forged ahead again, and ultimately became dormie two. He won the 36th and the match, 3 and 1.

BODY weight seems to be causing as much concern among men as among women in beauty parlour. I don't propose to take sides, and no doubt by this time people have formed opinions of their own. As I rather, there seems to be three schools of thought. (a) Mr. Davidson, who in quoting The Science of Golf by P. Fowles, M.B., appears to be of the opinion that a golf shot is body from alpha to omega; (b) "The Rough" acknowledges that body weight to a certain extent is essential, but that foremost is the work done by the wrists, and (c) Mr. Scott Harston and Mr. R. Hancock who take up cudgels on behalf of cricketers, and who are of the opinion that body work counts for nothing in making a cricket drive—that it is all a matter of technique and timing.

I should like to add my little bit which is again different from any of the foregoing in that, though like "The Rough" I agree that wrist-work and body-work are an essential combination for a golf shot, I would place the body as being the more contributory to force, and therefore, of primary importance. Unfortunately, in golf, there are two kinds of shots.

And finally the wrists snap the club head into position at the moment of impact. Now what should be considered at the moment of impact is the momentum of the club head and the inertia of the ball. If the one force reaction would be for the club head to bounce back, but the force of the club-head (I don't know what it is expressed in—foot-pounds or foot-pounds) is its speed multiplied by the weight. And that is something very much greater than the inertia of the ball.

Seeding Suggested For The Championships

A COUNCIL MEETING of the Lawn Bowls Association was held in the Board Room of the "S. C. M. Post" yesterday, and it was arranged that the annual meeting of the Association be held in the same Board Room on Friday, March 23.

Dr. J. T. Smalley, President, presided and was supported by Mr. R. P. Phillips, Hon. Secretary and Mr. L. A. Gutierrez, Hon. Treasurer. Explaining the balance sheet, Mr. Gutierrez said that last year's working showed a profit of $308, as against a loss of $181 the previous year. It had been practically no changes in the income and expenditure accounts except that the entrance fees were slightly higher. The position of the Association was very healthy.

It was agreed that the accounts be presented at the annual meeting, subject to audit.

SEEDING SUGGESTION

A LETTER from Mr. B. W. Bradbury, who is on leave, concerning the seeding of certain players in the forthcoming championship, this season, was read by the Secretary, and it was recommended that the letter be brought forward to the annual meeting.

A suggestion for a $50 donation to the Children's Playground Association will also be submitted to the annual meeting, as will also a proposal that the League Bowls be maintained.

QUARTER-FINAL BADMINTON

Scottish Eleven Chosen For International Cup

MACAO, March 18. With the coincidence of both the hockey and football Interport fixtures which are being staged in Hongkong on the coming Sunday, sport circles in Macao are very enthusiastic and the feeling runs high that the Macao teams stand a fair chance of giving a good account of themselves.

In the soccer match, Macao is being represented by a fine crew of local First Division players of whom a brief individual pen sketch follows.

Santos is very sure in his position as goal, and in recent trials has shown up as dependable in dangerous moments. Collaco, captain, has played in both previous Interports. He is so adaptable as an all-round player that he has been appointed to take charge of the defence instead of occupying his usual centre-forward or half-back positions.

Chin Fuh-shan as left back played for Canton Police prior to the Japanese occupation. He is very steady and will work like a Trojan. He clears beautifully.

Lou Hon-san, ex South China player, holds the important pivot position as Macao's centre-half. At all times a fine, clean player. Magalhaes is Macao's experienced and reliable right-half. Although heavy, he makes up by his quality of feeding the immediate forwards and marking his opponents.

Lau Hui-chol, a fast left half, combines well with the full-backs. Rego is tricky and has fine speed in the flank position of outside-right. Joaquin is a hard-working inside right and can be relied upon to combine with Macao's right winger.

Carvalho as centre forward is the most useful player. He possesses exhaustless energy and shoots accurately. Last year's goals for Macao.

Lau Chung-san is a footballer who having played for South China, is prominent on the forward line and needs little introduction. Always dependable. He is to play inside-left for Macao.

In Fong-tou, fast outside-left, is very tricky and has perfect understanding with his inside-left colleague. Centres beautifully.

Reserves.—Boyes, Cordova, Lau Chung-kuan and Leong Sul-va.

Eardley And Eardley Have Easy Match In Mixed Doubles

SEVERAL PLAYERS entered the semi-finals of the Colony Badminton Championships as a result of matches played last night at both Taikoo and King's College. H. Eardley and Miss D. Eardley, former Shanghai mixed doubles champions, beat D. Kwok and Mrs. P. Wilson 15-12, 15-0 to enter the mixed doubles semi-final; M. A. Silva and M. A. Oliveira beat A. L. Fisher and P. Wynter-Blythe 15-11, 15-9 to enter the semi-finals of the men's doubles, and N. L. Smith accounted for K. L. Lui 15-0, 15-11 and entered the semi-finals of the Junior Singles championship.

The only other game was at King's College, where C. Au and P. H. Wong beat R. Marques and H. F. Gonsalves 15-7, 15-2 in a first round match of the doubles.

The best game of all was the doubles game, Silva and Oliveira v. Fisher and Wynter-Blythe, at Taikoo. The winners, who are Recreio's strongest pair in the tournament, formed a brilliant combination. Silva was particularly fine at the net, and his cleverly concealed drop shots gained many points. Oliveira was an accurate and energetic partner.

Wynter-Blythe was the better of the two losers, and was most adept at returning hard smashes from any angle. Fisher, on the other hand, was rather weak with his back-hand, and dropped several points with feeble returns.

The scores were never steady, and were in continual fluctuation. At the critical moments, however, the Recreio pair became the steadier and were thus able to clinch the games.

EASIER GAMES
IN NONE of the other games could the winners be said to have been extended. The mixed doubles combination of H. and Miss Eardley showed a noticeable slackening in the first set when leading 11-3, and as a consequence their opponents crept up to 12 before the game ended. There was never any doubt in the second game.

C. Au and Patrick H. Wong, the Chinese M.C.A. pair, also had a comparatively easy match against Marques and Gonsalves. At no time were they extended.

Open Doubles Match On Friday

The remaining first round match in the Colony Open Badminton doubles championship, K. L. Yong and H. F. Chew v. H. M. Lau and S. C. Chung, will be played off at King's College on Friday, March 22, at 6 p.m.

Reserves.—Parnaby, Dignan, Gordon and Fraser.

Eden May Become Minister For Air

Cabinet Re-shuffle Indicated

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"
NEW YORK, March 18 (Dome).—A reshuffle of the Chamberlain Cabinet with a view to reinvigorating Britain's war policy is near at hand, according to the London Bureau of the "Associated Press."

The report says that political circles in London believe that a reorganization of the British Cabinet is inevitable.

The "Associated Press" further asserts that Sir Kingsley Wood, the Air Minister, Mr. Leslie Burgin, the Minister of Supply, and Lord Hankey, the Minister without Portfolio, will probably retire and will be replaced by Mr. Anthony Eden, the Dominions Secretary, Mr. Clement Attlee, leader of the Labour Party, and Sir Archibald Sinclair, leader of the Liberal Party respectively.

It is understood that the forthcoming reshuffle will bring about a National Cabinet to cope with the war.

Some circles suggest that Mr. Lloyd George, the Prime Minister during the last War, will also be enlisted.

Premier Gives No Hint

LONDON, Mar. 19 (Retur).—For many weeks past an idea has been canvassed that there might be some reconstruction in the Government at Easter, states Reuter's Lobby Correspondent.

The three main reasons advanced by the prophets for his reconstructions are:—

- (1) The War Cabinet is too large.
- (2) The personnel needs overhauling.
- (3) There is a general lack of drive in the Government's war policy.

Thus to-day's big speech by the Prime Minister in the House of Commons was awaited with special interest as likely to show the temper of the House towards the Government in particular and the direction of the war in general.

Little Criticism

The chief Opposition speeches which followed the Prime Minister's speech showed an understanding of the Government difficulties and even Mr. Horne-Belmont, the close adherents would be unlikely to deny that his speech stirred no dissident chord in any other quarters.

Indeed he was heard in almost total silence until the point at which he said that Czechoslovakia's cause was a righteous one—whereupon the loud ironical cries of "You were in the Government" were heard from the Opposition.

Whatever changes in the personnel which Mr. Chamberlain might have in mind for the Easter recess—and well-informed quarters continue to discount any such intention—they will not be a result of to-day's debate.

Made Out Good Case

The first impression gained from the reception of the Prime Minister's speech is that the House felt that he made a good case in regard to Finland and that if there is to be any further discussion of the war capacity of the Government it must await another secret sitting.

One of the outstanding features of the comments heard is that there is a universal regard for Finland and an understanding of the difficulties of the northern countries.

General Wavell's Visit To S. Africa

CAPE TOWN, Mar. 19 (Retur).—General Wavell, Commander-in-Chief of the British Forces in the Middle East, will fly from Capetown Rand to-day in a South African Air Force bomber.

General Wavell who arrived on Sunday for consultations with the Union Government yesterday visited the various defence points on the Cape peninsula.

He lunched with His Excellency and Lady Duncan and dined last night with General Smuts, the Prime Minister.

2 GIANT LINERS FOR AUSTRALIA

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

NEW YORK, Mar. 19 (UP).—Reports that the 81,200-ton Cunard-White Star liner Queen Mary and the 31,000-ton Mauretania are leaving New York for an Australian port now appear to be confirmed.

The greatest secrecy is being observed regarding the ultimate destination of the two great British liners, and reports that they are to be used for the transport of troops from the Antipodes to the war zone cannot be officially confirmed.

Some circles believe that the two ships are en route to Australia to remain there for the duration of the war.

It is pointed out in this connection that the Queen Mary alone is worth $55,000 a week.

There are only three deep-water harbours in Australia capable of accommodating the Queen Mary. These are Albany in Western Australia, Port Darwin in North Australia and Sydney.

Naval Protection

Reliable sources state that the two ships will sail in convoy, protected by units of the Royal Australian Navy and the Royal Navy, on Thursday.

They are both painted battleship grey, and appear drab in comparison with their pre-war colours. Over seven hundred sailors have arrived from England by the Cunard White Star liner Antonia and have been transferred to the Queen Mary and Mauretania, which have had only skeleton crews since they have been sent up.

This morning, for the first time in six months, smoke is pouring from the funnels of the two ships, indicating that their departure is imminent.

New York police guards have been warned to flash headquarters if any planes approach the two vessels at an altitude of less than 1,000 feet.

No Deliberate Attack

Lord Halifax On The Scapa Flow Raid

LONDON, Mar. 19 (Retur).—Reference was made to the Scapa Flow raid to-day by Lord Halifax in the House of Lords.

He said that from information at his disposal he was of the opinion that there had been no deliberate attack on civilians as such.

"I do not disagree with the suggestion that has been made as to the very legitimate consequences that may be drawn from that attack by the way of action which our Air Force may take at an appropriate time," he said.

Pointed Observation

Speaking of the Russo-Finnish war, Lord Halifax said, "Your Lordships can rest well assured that we shall not be defeated from our main objective, which is the defeat of Germany, by the fear that any particular action on our part at any time might damage our relations with the Soviet Union."

"I do not think I can define British policy more concisely at this stage."

FRENCH CABINET REORGANISATION

LONDON, Mar. 19 (Retur).—According to a French radio announcement, reorganization of the French Cabinet is imminent.

SHOPS TO CLOSE AT 8 O'CLOCK

New Regulations Come Into Force

THE EIGHT P.M. Shop Closing Act is now in force.

Under this Act all shops, with certain exceptions, must close at 8 p.m.

The penalty for a first offence is $50 and for subsequent offences $500.

Police Warning

The Police Department told the "Telegraph" this morning: "It is proposed to take action by warning shop-keepers rather than by summons."

"Instructions have already been sent out to police officials to convey this warning."

"The Act will be enforced gradually, and shop-keepers who disobey the first warning will be summoned."

A tour of the shopping centres in both Kowloon and the city last night disclosed that many Chinese shops have already initiated 8 p.m. closing.

Almost without exception, however, Indian shops remained open after 8 p.m. Several shops were still trading at 10 p.m.

Competitors Remain Open

An Indian shop-keeper told the "Telegraph": "We don't know where we are. We want to close at 8 p.m. but our competitors remain open. We would like to see the Act enforced, for then no-one will be able to take an unfair advantage."

The Shop Closing Act provides that premises must be closed for the serving of customers not later than 8 p.m.

The only exceptions are clubs, hotels, public houses, restaurants, eating houses, tea-rooms or premises open for the sale only of medicines, aerated waters, sweets, chocolates or other sugar confectionery or ice cream, tobacco or smokers' requisites.

The Act applies to the business of barbers or hairdressers, but excludes the sale of petrol or newspapers or the sale or distribution of milk, or the sale of programmes or refreshments at theatres and places of amusement.

The Act may be temporarily suspended for Chinese New Year or other special occasions.

PRISON WARDER ROBBED

Money and clothing valued at $1,935.40 belonging to Warden Ghulam Risoul, of Stanley Prison, was stolen from his quarters during the night of March 18-19. The property was kept in a wooden box. The Police, on being informed, made a search, and discovered the box and property valued at $1,740 lying on a nearby hillside.

Ranking Players En Route To Manila

A TEAM of ranking Japanese tennis players will be passing through the Colony on Friday en route to Manila. The team is comprised of Mr. Y. Kimura, ranked No. 4 in 1939, Mr. H. Kopen, ranked No. 3 in 1939, Miss Kamo, No. 1 ranking woman player, and her younger sister. The sisters were ranked fourth in the women's doubles. They will be seen in exhibition at the Kowloon Cricket Club in the afternoon, commencing at 3 p.m.

Around The Courses

(By "Birdie")

I wonder if this is a bit of Einstein's theory of relativity: it is all relative.

Included in these complicated movements is the transference of weight from one foot to the other. Then there is the advice to hit against a braced left leg. What do these things imply? The first is the bringing of the body into the shot, and the second is the checking of that force so as not to take one completely off one's feet.

Mind you, the wrists must have that certain strength in order to hold the club firm at the speed with which it is hitting the ball, but they have no great rebound to counteract—the momentum of the club-head does the very greater proportion of the work in sending that ball on its journey—the wrists see to it that the club-head is travelling along the right path.

In the iron shots, I grant, that the wrists do have a greater burden to carry. The arc of swing is not so full, and a greater "punch" has to be put into the shot with the arms and wrists. This is because the club is shorter and the swing is shorter. The speed of the club-head has to be generated over a much shorter distance. But the body work is still there—the transference of weight is still the same—and I wonder if it could ever be computed in terms of energy how much work is done by the arms (especially the forearms)?

Ernest Jones in his book "Swinging Into Golf" points out that he can sit on a chair and hit a ball some 200 yards down the fairway. Jimmy Thomson, one of the longest hitters in golf to-day, almost plays himself off his feet—and his wrists don't do that—while Alex Morrison has shown in a diagram that the muscles which do the greatest work in a golf shot are those of the back and thighs.

So it seems that elsewhere, too, there are different means of attaining the same end with a golf ball—so why bother too much about how you get there as long as you do?

THE annual golf match between Kowloon and Happy Valley will be played at Kowloon on Friday, and I notice that the first game of the singles is between these redoubtable golfers from the Royal Naval Dockyard—A. E. Davies (Kowloon) and J. T. Smith (Happy Valley).

Smith is the Colony champion who has done some great things at the Royal Hongkong G.C., Fanling, while Davies is his counter-part who has cornered the market of trophies at Kowloon during the past year. The odds are on Smith winning this match, but it would be worth following.

COULD "GINGER" UP WAR

DISCUSSING the possibility of the appointment of a British Minister of Defence, with unified control of the Services, the Springfield Republican writes:

"Such an arrangement would be more complex and probably more efficient than keeping the Navy, Army, and Air Force separate, with a fourth Minister for their co-ordination. 'If a point of this kind is to be created, Mr. Churchill is the obvious choice, whatever may be said about his principles. His appointment as General-Director of operations by sea, by land, and by air would unquestionably ginger up the war.'"

A Look Through The "Telegraph"

50 YEARS AGO
March 20, 1890.

It appears, says an American paper, that there are only about one hundred native born American tars in the United States Navy. All the rest are Chinese, negroes, Portuguese, Greeks, Cannucks, Greeks, Malays, and Filipinos. The one hundred are now lonely, and are about to petition the Secretary of the Navy to give them an occasional week ashore so that they will not forget how to speak the English language.

The popular belief in the sanitary efficacy of red underwear is a clinging superstition, nothing more. It was in ancient times considered a potent charm against the evil eye. At one time in the 16th century, when the evil eye was deemed to be especially triumphant in England, there was a boom in red tape which it has never since experienced. Many people to this day believe that a red string worn about the neck is a sure preventive of asthma, measles and mumps. The relics of this old faith are to-day best preserved in the great confidence which obtains in the medical virtues of red flannel, and a not so widespread belief that the milk of a red cow is better than that of any other. As to red flannel, it has the single merit over other colours that the dyeing material used destroys all vestige of animal life in the wool, and that red flannel does not shrink as white flannel does.

A new use has been found for the carrier pigeon in Russia—carrying negatives taken in a balloon to the photographers. The "Novoe Vremya" gives an account of some experiments to this and recently made, in which the Czar's winter palace was photographed in the air, the plates being sealed in paper bags impervious to light, tied to a pigeon's foot, and sent to the developer.

The use of compressed air as a motive power for tramways in France is extending. The system adopted in the Nantes tramways, which has been open since 1870. The inventor asserts that the system is far more economical than horse traction—the cost of coal per day of a machine, equal to eight or ten "ras" power being only 4s.—much cheaper than electricity or steam power and that the machinery is simple and does not require a skilled mechanic to control it.

25 YEARS AGO
March 20, 1915.

A Paris evening communist states: "Zepelin has dropped bombs on Calais, killing seven station employees."

The destruction of German power or influence in the Far East now having been accomplished, says the "London and China Express," the future of the Pacific—a problem that long filled the minds of the Chancellors of the world having interests in those waters—should be of early solution. The ex-German Colonies, of course, shall remain under the Union Jack, and in all probability shall be administered by Australia, save, perhaps, New Guinea, every inch of which must eventually come under the British flag by treaty or cession. Never again can Great Britain afford to take the risks that she has taken in the past 20 years by allowing a strong Power to challenge her supremacy at almost every point on the five continents.

10 YEARS AGO
March 20, 1930.

Hopes for the establishment of an air mail service between Hongkong and London, via Singapore and India, in the not too distant future, are encouraged by a statement in the House of Commons, yesterday, when Mr. F. Montague introduced the Air Estimates.

5 YEARS AGO
March 20, 1935.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, the Prime Minister to-day, told the House of Commons that Great Britain had already taken steps to defend herself against possible air raids in the future. The estimates provide for a programme involving an increase of the fighting machines of the R.A.F. to a total of 1,400 by 1938.

Declaring that the British Air Defence programme was entirely inadequate, Mr. Winston Churchill to-day caused a sensation in the House of Commons when he warned that the British Air Force had been allowed to stand inferior in strength to that of Germany's. The country was faced with something very like the possibility of a resumption of the War which ended in 1918, he challenged.

Speaking for the Government, Sir Philip Sassoon, Under-Secretary for Air, admitted that the political situation was most anxious, but asserted that the Government was determined to see that no stone was left unturned for the adequate defence of the country and the Empire.

The feature of the debate on the Air Estimates was Mr. Winston Churchill's address.

He bluntly asserted that, last November, Great Britain and Germany were virtually of equal air strength, but insisted that since then the British position had materially worsened. "We have entered into a period of gravest peril and are faced with something very like the possibility of a resumption of the war which ended in 1918," Mr. Churchill cried. However, he still hoped and believed that the danger of armed conflict in Europe might be averted. Replying for the Government, Sir Philip Sassoon, said that according to the Government's latest information he had every reason to think that Great Britain was still stronger than Germany in the air.

AMMUNITION DUMP BLOWN UP IN R.A.F.'s GREAT RAID

dropping its bombs on the northern part of the island. Simultaneously, heavy firing was heard from the direction of Heligoland Bight, and many bombs were seen exploding on Hornum, at the southern point of the island, and on the Hindenburg Dam, which connects Sylt with the mainland. The detonation of a single bomb was heard at 8.40 p.m., and a few minutes later there was a violent explosion followed by a brilliant flash which lit up the whole island.

WALL OF FIRE ACROSS ISLAND

The terrific explosion, which broke windows 38 miles away, was followed by a series of smaller explosions, the R.A.F. bomb obviously having hit the Nazi munitions depot.

The gigantic explosion was followed by a perfect frenzy of anti-aircraft fire, tracer projectiles of all colours lighting up the sky. "It was as if a wall of fire had broken out right across the island," said the Correspondent.

DRAMATIC BROADCAST

Members of the House of Commons were electrified when the Air Minister, Sir Kingsley Wood, rose to make an announcement.

SEVERELY DAMAGED

As the British machines finished their story to London, bombs were dropping on Hornum, the Nazi air base on the Island of Sylt.

One message relayed the information that the Nazi base had been severely damaged.

Full details of the raid are still awaited from the British machines.

This is the first time in the history of aerial warfare that the story of a battle has been released for publication while the battle has been in progress.

Only the science of modern radio communication has made it possible.

LONDON, Mar. 20 (Reuter).—The Air Ministry made the following announcement early this morning:

"The Air Force attacked and severely damaged the German air base at Hornum on the Island of Sylt to-night."

"This is one of the shore bases from which enemy aircraft operate against British naval forces and merchant shipping."

"This action follows the attack upon our own shore bases in the Orkneys."

The attack on Hornum was quickly announced in the House of Commons by the Air Minister, Sir Kingsley Wood.

The Minister said the report was based on a wireless message received from one of the leading machines.

He understood that the attack was still continuing.

Claim Raider Downed
 LONDON, Mar. 19 (Reuter).—The Germans claim that one British bomber was brought down in the Sylt raid, an official Nazi news agency says.

A house was set on fire, otherwise no damage was done, the agency adds. The bombers flew over in three waves, the first at 7.57 p.m., the second at 8.58 p.m. and the third at 9.10 p.m.

Eyewitness Account
 "I saw one R.A.F. bomber, apparently crippled, flying low out to sea, but it was not pursued, says the 'Exchange Telegraph' Correspondent at Rome."

"At 8.45 p.m. another attack was launched on Hornum and I heard the detonation of ten bombs."

"Following several other distinct attacks, another wave of British machines came from the north and dropped bombs on List and on Hornum."

"The planes continued over the island and dropped two bombs on Vantum. Then one of the machines flew back to List and dropped another bomb. It was greeted with an amazing barrage of anti-aircraft fire, but was not hit."

"The next attack was launched at 11 p.m. We heard the roar of the British machines as they flew to their destination and then the third of their bombs."

"All along the mainland people stood and watched the explosions, the resultant fires and the projectile display furnished by bombs, anti-aircraft straggles, star shells and searchlights."

Attempt To Murder Wife Charge
 A further remand of one week was granted by Mr. Sheldon at the Central Magistracy this morning, when a Japanese restaurant-keeper, Ohta Taisoku, 47, appeared before him on a charge of attempting to murder his wife, Ohta Mitsuko, on March 2. Bail of $1,500 was allowed.

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

The measure is being openly discussed in the press and it is not expected that the new Cabinet will eliminate the policies followed by M. Tanner as Foreign Minister, and that pressure from Moscow will be ignored.

LATE NEWS

Sylt Extensively Damaged

LONDON, Mar. 20 (Reuter).—It is learned in London that the raids on Hornum were carried out by a strong force of bombers which attacked singly in relays and maintained almost continuous assaults on the sea-plane base from soon after dusk until the early hours of the morning.

A vast quantity of bombs were dropped and early reports indicate that extensive damage was caused to the hangars, workshops and airways. The first aircraft to reach the island identified its target by the aid of bright moonlight.

Later, as successive waves of R.A.F. machines attacked, the fires started by the first bombs provided a guide to their targets.

By 3.30 a.m. all aircraft due back at that time had safely landed and preliminary reports of the pilots are now being analysed.

Typical of these was the following report from the captain of one of the first aircraft to reach Hornum.

"One bomb was observed to burst between the hangars," he said. Then three bursts were observed just north of a hangar. Two bursts were observed between the base and the airway."

The captain of another aircraft stated that an enemy fighter was driven off by the accurate fire of his rear gunner.

Air Ministry's Communique
 LONDON, Mar. 20 (Reuter).—The Air Ministry has issued the following communique: "Our attacks on Hornum were spread over a period of about seven hours."

"All our aircraft have returned safely with the exception of one machine, which is overdue and must be presumed to be lost."

"The information now available shows that the damage reported earlier is very extensive and includes direct hits on the airways and hangars."

Mussolini's Assurance

No Demands While War Is Localised

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"
 VATICAN CITY, Mar. 19 (UP).—Responsible Vatican quarters revealed to-day that Mr. Sumner Welles had informed His Holiness the Pope that he had received an assurance from Signor Mussolini that Italian revisionist demands would not be advanced as long as the present European conflict remained localised.

The Pope is reported to have assured Mr. Welles that, in his opinion, Signor Mussolini's assurance merited absolute faith.
